Snow Covers District as Aid Is Rushed To Bay Isles

Low of 20 Predicted Here, With Four-Inch Fall as Icy Wave Ruins Citrus Crops

A snowstorm which blanketed the deep South from Texas to Florida whirled into the District last night, after storm warnings went up along the Atlantic Coast and rescuers went by plane and boat to the aid of isolated communities on ice-locked Chesapeake Bay.

In the Capital the mercury was to drop to 20 early today, according to the Weather Bureau, while 4 to 5 inches of snow will pile up before noon.

Washington's wintry skies should clear this afternoon, but the thermometer will plunge 10 to 15 degrees below freezing again tonight, the forecaster states.

Gale Warnings Up

Light snow flurries began to powder Washington streets at dusk yesterday. Two inches had fallen by midnight.

The Weather Bureau warned that northeast or east winds would reach "gale force" in the area between Cape Hatteras, N. C., and Boston.

Pan-American clippers, both on the Bermuda and transatlantic runs, were using Norfolk, Va., as a temporary base. Baltimore's harbor is choked with ice.

Coast Guard Sends Food

Two Coast Guard vessels, the cutter McLane, and the patrol boat C. G. 288, were sent out of Norfolk to take food and medical supplies through the heavy ice to Tangier and Smith Island communities.

The vessels reached Tangier Island and the patrol boat reported that it had left behind a sick man it was to have taken because he was too ill to be moved, officials here said.

Heavy ice in a narrow winding channel blocked the seaway to Smith Island, and a radio-telephone appeal for milk sent out from the island to Crisfield, Md.

Pilot Lands Milk

Pilot Fred Ennis, of Salisbury, Md., took 40 quarts of milk in his light monoplane and landed at Smiths Island late in the afternoon. Ennis told The Post he believed another trip would be necessary today.

Ennis said that he stayed at the island only as long as was needed to unload the milk, and he took off in the teeth of snow flurries.

Ice, which gave District skaters a field day, extended over long stretches of the Potomac, but experts said that ice and snow conditions carried little threat of another flood like the one which hit Washington in 1936.

The South's record snowfall, which spread up to 15 inches over some sections, caught residents unprepared, tied up business and traffic and threatened million-dollar fruit and vegetable crops.

Richmond and Danville, Va., school authorities decided to suspend classes today.

9½ Inches in Atlanta

Atlanta's 9½ inch fall set a new record for that city, and 10 inches was an all-time record in Jackson, Miss., the Associated Press reported.

From southern Georgia west through Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana to Texas the snow piled up, and shivering Southerners dug in for several days' siege as forecasters predicted temperatures considerably lower than the 25-30 degrees which accompanied the storm.

The Dixie snow belt extended into the Carolinas and Virginia, spread over Tennessee, and reached far South into the citrus belts of Florida and Texas' Rio Grande Valley, menacing multi-million dollar fruit crops. In Florida, frost service officials said that truck farm losses

Witness Tells of Plane Striking Hill Near Riverside, Calif.; One Survivor Says Motors, Emergency Door Failed

By the Associated Press

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 23.—Caught in a blinding rainstorm, an Army B-18 Douglas bomber struck a hillside near here today, killing four of its six occupants.

Two, Sergt. Cecil C. Purvis, Glennville, Ga., and Private Frank Carroll, Hyde Park, Mass., parachuted to safety, the March Field public relations office reported. They were unhurt.

Others in the twin-engined craft:

First Lieut. Raymond W. Sumi, of Nashwauk, Minn., the pilot.

First Lieut. Benjamin G. Holloway, Columbus, Ohio.

Sergt. Gerald D. Wilcox, Bennett, Iowa.

Private Leonard E. Riley, Wichita Falls, Tex.

The plane crashed 2 miles northeast of Riverside on Box Springs Hill, only 7 miles from its Army air base destination at March Field.

D. M. Stephenson, of Riverside, only known witness to the crash, said Carroll landed near him by parachute and together they ran to the wreckage. Carroll was bleeding from the nose and mouth, but appeared uninjured otherwise.

Carroll's account of the accident, as told by Stephenson:

"We were flying high—about 9,000 feet, I guess—when the motors missed and the ship went into a spin, and we were all ordered out of the plane.

"Something, apparently was wrong with the emergency door, and only two of us were able to get out. The ship was spinning, and there was nothing we could do to stop it.

"I landed in Pigeon Pass, near the wreckage. Purvis came down on Blue Mountain, some distance away."

Stephenson said the plane nosed into the earth but did not burn.

"A doctor came along and pronounced the four men dead," Stephenson related. "That wasn't necessary though—they were all badly smashed."

March Field authorities said the huge metal ship was returning from war-game maneuvers at Monterey, via Sacramento. It was not part of a mass flight of 38 bombers from Hamilton Field, near San Francisco, which set out early today

Of that group, only one reached March Field. The others flew into

Soviet Bomb Kills 19 in Finn Shelter

Russian Offensive On Land Repulsed With 5,000 Slain In Three Days

By K. J. Eskelund.
Copyright by New York Times

Helsinki, Jan. 23.—The Russians yesterday continued violent attacks on the Karelian Isthmus and along the east front but were again repulsed with heavy losses.

In the last three days of fruitless offensives Russian losses were almost 5,000 killed alone, besides many thousands wounded. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of war material was destroyed or captured by the Finns.

The fact that thousands of Russian soldiers are continuously being driven to death against strong Finnish positions on the Karelian Isthmus and along the East Front, authoritative circles believe, is proof that certain Soviet generals fear Stalin's hard hand if they fail to obtain results.

Meanwhile, Soviet bombers ranged over Finland again, and in one instance killed 19 people and wounded many others with a direct hit on an air raid shelter at Nurmes. The Soviet planes flew low over the town, machine-gunning civilians, killing and wounding many more.

Hospital Bombed

In another raid on Hyryrnsalmi, 100 miles north of Nurmes, a number of people were killed when a hospital was bombed. Several other cities, including Hanko and Tamissari also were raided, but there were no reports of casualties.

(Copenhagen dispatches said four Finnish hospitals were bombed killing a surgeon and seven nurses. The weather was clear and the hospitals distinctly marked.)

An unusually fierce shell fire on the East Front preceded the last few days of attacks against the Mannerheim line, an officer told me today. Finnish soldiers at Taipala got almost no sleep during the past three days with the earth incessantly trembling from shells exploding over their underground positions.

Bombs Do Small Harm

Russian planes in the daytime are flying incessantly over the Finnish front lines, throwing down thousands of very small bombs, and as a rule doing little harm.

In periods between attacks, screams of pain are heard from wounded Soviet soldiers outside the Mannerheim lines defense area. The intense cold always kills the wounded within a couple of hours, but after every attack, hundreds of new corpses accumulate in front of the Finn lines.

Yesterday the fierce Russian artillery fire continued. A large Russian scout force, reaching the Finn lines, was repulsed and three tanks were destroyed.

Two Russian divisions just north of Lake Ladoga Monday again attempted to force their way westward, but Finn sharpshooters and machine gun fire drove them into flight, forcing them back beyond their original positions.—Antitank

Death on the Seas

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Jan. 24. Great Britain early today announced that her swift destroyer Exmouth had been sunk by a torpedo or mine and that all of nearly 200 officers and men aboard were believed to have perished.

It was Britain's twenty-second naval ship loss since the war began less than five months ago, her second destroyer sunk within four days and her heaviest loss of life at sea since November.

Normally Carries 175

An admiralty announcement, if anything more terse than usual, said:

"It is feared there are no survivors."

The 1,475-ton Exmouth had a normal complement of 175 men, but such complements usually are increased about 10 per cent in wartime.

The scene of the sinking was the North Sea where another British destroyer, the 1,485-ton Grenville, also a flotilla leader, went down Saturday with the loss of 81 men.

The sinking of the Exmouth with all hands was the greatest loss of life in a single naval blow since the German pocket battleship Deutschland sank the British armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi with 280 lost November 25 off the east coast of Iceland.

Shipping Losses Rise

Meanwhile, losses to British and neutral merchant shipping mounted.

The 2,433-ton Norwegian steamer Sydfold was sunk by a mine or torpedo off the Scottish coast with five of her 24 crewman missing, while the 1,598-ton Norwegian freighter Pluto and the 1,523-ton British merchantman Baltanglos went down off the English northeast coast after striking mines.

The recent sinking of the 1,304-ton Swedish steamer Foxen in undisclosed waters was announced by British sources.

Germans Scuttle Ship

Last week's toll as listed by the admiralty included four British and 11 neutral ships. One German ship was reported scuttled, one sunk by a mine and one captured.

Including the German losses, ships sunk in the last ten days totaled at least 16.

The Exmouth, of the same class as the Grenville, was completed in 1934 at a cost of $1,320,956. Of the "Admiralty" type, she carried five 4.7 inch guns, seven smaller guns

$13,314,000 More Slashed From Budget

Morgenthau Asks Increase in Debt Limit, New Taxes

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Congressional committees drilled four more holes in the President's "bedrock" budget yesterday as Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau went on record for spending cuts, new taxes and a $5,000,000,000 increase in the legal debt limit.

Morgenthau testified a $50,000,000,000 national debt limit involved no danger of inflation, published hearings revealed. He said a balanced budget would be "very healthy" and recommended Congress further reduce expenditures and increase taxes.

The House Appropriations Committee took him at his word and reported a $1,032,154,612 Treasury-Postoffice bill, slashed $11,491,000 below the President's estimates.

A subcommittee finished work on an Agriculture Department appropriation bill "substantially reduced" below $877,230,704 budget totals. The subcommittee sustained the Budget Bureau in failing to recommend another $225,000,000 for continuing farm parity payments.

The Appropriations Committee reported a $58,502,000 "urgent" deficiency appropriation, trimmed

See BUDGET, Page 4, column 4.

Budget Cuts Hit Postoffice and Treasury Workers

The Congressional economy ax fell heavily yesterday on employes of the Treasury and Post Office departments as the departmental supply bill was reported to the House.

The Appropriations Committee denied all budgetary increases for Administrative promotions and most requests for additional employes. The committee authorized transfer of employes in both departments from the emergency Administrative payroll to a permanent status.

The committee approved the merger of the appointment division and the personnel division of the Treasury and reported "a more uniform and better administration of personnel problems" has resulted.

Dies Inquiry Is Extended By 345 to 21

Committee Funds May Be Held to Less Than $100,000

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Brushing aside the opposition of a little band of New Dealers, the House yesterday decided by the overwhelming vote of 345 to 21 to continue the Dies Committee for another year.

Funds for the committee will be voted within a few days. It appeared last night that the sum to be requested might be somewhat less than the $100,000 it was indicated that the House would appropriate.

The enormous majority favorable to the Dies Committee was rolled up in the face of charges that Chairman Dies was linked with an associate of the Christian Front and that the committee itself had been used as a propaganda agency "designed to discredit liberal candidates of the New Deal."

Would Expunge Charge

The Christian Front allegation, put forth by Representative Hook (Democrat), of Michigan, will be expunged from the Congressional Record if a move initiated after yesterday's debate by Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, is successful. Hoffman's motion was referred to the Rules Committee, which is expected to hold that only part of Hook's attack on Dies should be stricken.

Yesterday's two hours of speechmaking at times took on the air of a confessional, as at least three members of the Dies Committee publicly admitted errors in past performance and gave the House assurance that they would try to prevent such mistakes in the future.

"Money Making" Charged

Their promises, however, failed to satisfy the opposition liberals who asserted that similar guaranties had been given by Dies when the committee was first set up in 1938 and again when it was renewed a year ago.

Charging that "members" of the committee were "making money" by delivering speeches and writing articles on the work of the committee, Representative Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri, vainly attempted

U. S. Refuses Stop-Gap Pact With Japan

Trade Relations to Depend on Nippon's Conduct, Envoy Hears

The United States told Japan in effect yesterday that continuance of commercial relations between the two countries soon will depend on Japan's conduct in the Far East.

This Government declined to exchange notes with Tokyo as a basis for temporary trade relations after the 1911 treaty between the two nations, denounced by this country six months ago, expires Friday.

In addition, the many Japanese businessmen now living in the United States as "treaty merchants," in order to remain here, must qualify as visitors temporarily admitted under the immigration laws.

These points were made clear to Japanese Ambassador Kensuke Horinouchi by Assistant Secretary of State Berle in a conference at the State Department.

Envoy Is Advised

The Ambassador, it was understood, asked three questions raised by expiration of the treaty under which business has been conducted between the two countries. Linked with American abrogation of the agreement is the threat on Capitol Hill to embargo all American goods used by Japan in her warfare against China, in retaliation for Japanese restrictions on American business in the Far East.

Ambassador Horinouchi asked whether death of the treaty would be accompanied by any change in American import duties or tonnage rates on Japanese exports. He was told the expiration would not of itself bring about any changes.

On his request for an exchange of notes defining status of trade

SOS From Ship Carrying 146 Believed Hoax

By the Associated Press

Boston, Jan. 23.—A strange report that an unidentified vessel with 146 persons abroad was sinking off Cape Cod sent 8 rescue ships scurrying to the scene tonight, but radio experts declared openly the "S O S" might well have been a hoax.

Four hours after the reported distress call, the Coast Guard cutter Gen. Greene reached a point between Nantucket and Marthas Vineyard, where the vessel was supposed to be sinking, but found no trace of a possible sea tragedy.

"Seas smooth. Visibility good. No sign of distressed vessel," the Gen. Greene radioed.

About midnight, the cutter Algonquin was relieved of search duties. Other service vessels, however, continued the search.

8 Ships Rush Aid

Seven Coast Guard vessels and the Navy destroyer Breckenridge had raced for the islands after Capt. Byron C. Brown, U. S. A., retired, telephoned that he had heard an S O S call, followed by the frantic voice of a "captain" saying that his vessel was sinking off Cape Cod with "146 men aboard."

Capt. Brown said he heard the call, which was cut off sharply, on the lowest band of his short wave radio. Radio experts said it would be highly unusual for a ship capable of carrying so many persons to send an S O S on so low a wave length.

Radio men pointed out that this low band was on or close to the amateur wave length of 20 meters, whereas the international distress wave is at 600 meters.

Often Used Abroad

Many foreign stations use the low band, and radio men added that it frequently was difficult to hear low-meter broadcasts close at hand because the radio waves tended to skip over long distances.

No vessels capable of carrying 146 passengers and crew were known to be in the vicinity mentioned, but Coast Guard spokesmen said "We couldn't take a chance."

The schooner Anna C. Perry, with six men aboard, was in the area, but carried no radio.

Japan Aroused As British Halt Second Liner

Navy Chiefs Weigh Measures to Prevent Recurrence

By the United Press

Honolulu, T. H., Jan. 23.—A British warship halted the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru off the California coast last Thursday night, less than 12 hours after the liner sailed from San Francisco bound for Hongkong via Honolulu, it was disclosed tonight.

B. W. Fleisher, Tokyo newspaper publisher aboard the Tatuta, radioed the United Press that a British destroyer stopped the Tatuta for half an hour at 11 p. m. Thursday, January 18.

The Tatuta had sailed from San Francisco shortly after noon on the same day, indicating the interception apparently occurred within 300 miles of the California coast.

Fleisher said the British did not board the liner. He said five Germans were aboard the Tatuta, and in Honolulu, United States Collector of Customs J. Walter Doyle reported the British apparently knew there were Germans on the passenger list.

Charlotte G. Bowman, 23-year-old Government stenographer, was choked, bound and gagged, then robbed yesterday by a colored intruder who gained entrance to her apartment as a building inspector come "to inspect the walls."

Miss Bowman, who lives at 1020 Nineteenth street northwest, told police the man escaped with $4 in bills, some change and a $20 watch of her roommate, Miss Dorothy Miller.

When she let the man in, she said, he seized her by the throat, flung her to the floor and cried:

Metropolitan Police Precinct Station No. 8, Jan. 23.—Among the mental qualities to which I attribute my meteoric rise in my profession is my almost uncanny knack of learning a thing quickly, and at the same time learning well.

Mine is not the dull, phlegmatic mind, requiring constant repetition to absorb a lesson. Rather it is that rare type of cranial equipment which drinks in knowledge readily and automatically sorts out the worthwhile facts it thus assembles.

Though the past few days formed one long succession of bitter setbacks, I did not feel the time was wasted. Each day, in the cruel classroom of experience, I had learned some added lesson which, in the long run, would serve but to assure my triumph.

Even yesterday's long hours of delay at the inspection station had added to my store of knowledge the discovery that each graybeard I found did not of necessity adorn the features of an erstwhile voter.

I knew now that I would have to delve more deeply, that I would have to look behind the beard and seek out those fine lines which only the passage of innumerable years can etch into the features of a man.

So it was that when I started out today, with spirits high and my inspection sticker like a green banner taut against the wind, it was with the firm determination not to be misled by surface appearances, nor to be trapped into any additional delays.

Carefully I made my way back across the city, stopping at each red light, skirting every circle,

Lewis Calls McNutt 'Adventurer Who Hopes to Buy Presidency'

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 23.—The United Mine Workers of America virtually scratched Paul V. McNutt off its list as a Presidential candidate today.

At the union's jubilee convention opening, John L. Lewis, whose opinions generally are law to the 600,000 miners, compared McNutt to the "ancient kings who sent out soldiers to protect strikebreakers."

Criticism also was directed toward Vice President John N. Garner, officers of the union asserting he is a leader in the movement for revision of the Wagner labor act and for enactment of legislation unfavorable toward labor.

As the audience of more than 3,000 delegates and spectators tittered, the president of the U. M. W. and Congress of Industrial Organization explained:

"Just like in Indiana a few years back when the Governor, whose name was McNutt, sent troops into the coal mine area to protect the strangers who were taking the jobs of mine workers.

"A political adventurer whose name was McNutt, who liked to pretend he was a soldier, who was accompanied by a motley crew of 2 per cent bagmen which he hoped would be able to buy enough votes to make him President of the United States so that he would have more soldiers to play with so he could protect more strangers who dis-

Senators Denounce Britain As U. S. Note Is Rejected

By the Associated Press

England's wartime censorship of American mails and interference with American ships stirred some Senators yesterday to voice caustic protests.

Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, frequent critic of British policies, said England was using the State Department "as a doormat."

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, in a lengthy floor speech, charged the British government with violating the International Hague Convention on mails of neutrals and inflicting a "humiliating indignity" upon the United States.

Senator Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina, suggested that the United States should "take retaliatory measures," but declined to say just what these should be.

Lundeen said this country should demand that Britain surrender Bermuda and other nearby British possessions "in payment of our war debts."

"I favor a vigorous protest," said Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois. "But after all what can we do? They are at war and we know what that means. The American public probably is not much aroused by censorship of mails or interfer-

Dewey Blames New Deal for 9,000,000 Idle

Assails Fiscal Policies as 'Unbridled And Spendthrift'

By the Associated Press

Boston, Jan. 23.—Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, charged the New Deal with "maladministration" tonight, and declared it stood "condemned because its policies have prevented the employment of 9,000,000 Americans who want to work."

Massachusetts Republicans gave the young New York prosecutor a rousing welcome as he keynoted his drive for New England support with an attack upon New Deal fiscal policies.

Bunting - bedecked Mechanics Hall, one of the largest in the city, was filled to capacity. Hundreds of persons stood and several hundred more poured into an adjoining auditorium to hear Dewey over an amplifier.

Attendance estimates ranged up to the 16,000 that Lieut. Gov. Horace Cahill (Republican) said were there to "welcome the people's counsellor." Police estimated capacity of the hall at 6,000.

The speech was broadcast nationally.

Dewey described the New Deal fiscal policies as "unbridled and spendthrift," and he declared the Roosevelt Administration was "fostering a defeatist attitude on the whole subject of our economic future."

He drew a round of applause when he said:

"The National Administration which will succed the New Deal next January must again release the energy of private enterprise to transform unemployment into employment relief into jobs."

Again he was applauded when he asserted the Federal budget "can not only be balanced, it can be brought down to a reasonable figure."

"Seven years of maladministration in Washington have temporarily held back the growth of our country. But I deny that the American people are finished. America is at the morning of its destiny."

He asserted that "it is perfectly plain that the Administration is too tired to do anything about its budget." He added:

"Only a new broom can sweep clean the budgetary litter of the New Deal."

The lawyer from Michigan, who rose to National prominence as a "racket buster" in Manhattan, maintained that ". . . in its first responsibility to the men and women seeking a livelihood, the New Deal has utterly and completely collapsed."

Dewey maintained that the Federal Government was spending $17,500 every minute, but was taking in only 55 cents for every dollar spent.

He said that "even waste of money is not the greatest offense of this Administration. The crime of the New Deal is its denial of human opportunity to millions of people."

Dewey declared the seven "lean" years have made it impossible for "any Administration" to balance the budget "overnight," and added that "we are not going to economize at the expense of the unemployed or the aged."

Birth Control Information Through Public Health Clinics Favored in Survey

By Dr. George Gallup

Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 23.—With the adoption by South Carolina of a plan for birth control education as a regular part of its public health service, the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted a survey to test public sentiment on extending this plan elsewhere.

Although birth control clinics sponsored by private organizations have been operating in many States, South Carolina is the second State to furnish birth control information in its public health clinics, and a formal announcement of its program was made this week at the annual meeting in New York of the Birth Control Federation. The birth control education plan was first adopted by North Carolina health clinics two years ago.

The Institute conducted its survery throughout the country among a cross-section of voters of all ages and in all walks of life, putting before them this issue:

"Would you approve or disapprove of having Government health clinics furnish birth control information to married people who want it?"

The vote of those with opinions was:

|---|---|
| Approve | 77% |
| Disapprove | 23 |

Approximately one voter in every ten (11 per cent) expressed no opinion.

The Institute has on this issue, as on many other questions of social importance, attempted to measure trends of sentiment in recent years. Taking no sides on any issue, its function is solely to report the facts about public opinion.

In the course of measuring trends on the birth control problem it has made three previous surveys.

A comparison with today's results shows a slight increase—between five and seven points—in sentiment favorable to the birth control movement. Regardless of the manner in which the issue was stated, all the Institute's studies have found sentiment running between 70 and 80 per cent favorable to the birth control program.

In 1936, before it had become possible, through court interpretation of the law, to send birth control information through the mails, the Institute asked in a survey:

"Should the distribution of information on birth control be made legal?"

The vote was:

|---|---|
| Yes | 70% |
| No | 30 |

A few months later, in July, 1937, another survey was taken on the following question:

"Do you favor the birth-control movement?"

|---|---|
| Yes | 71% |
| No | 29 |

In October, 1938, sentiment was recorded in the following issue:

"Would you like to see a Government agency furnish birth control information to married people who want it?"

|---|---|
| Yes | 72% |
| No | 28 |

These results compare with the 77 per cent vote today in favor o fbirth-control services in public health clinics.

The study found a higher favorable vote among young persons than among those in the older age groups. Thus, 65 per cent in the age bracket 50 years and over voted approval of furnishing birth-control information in public health clinics, as compared to a vote of 85 per cent among persons under 30 years of age.

No great difference of attitude was found by economic groups. Both the upper income level at one extreme, and persons on relief at the other extreme voted approximately 8 to 2 in favor of birth control service through the health clinics.

Voters who expressed their disapproval cited three main reasons: (1) That birth control is a private matter and should not be the concern of the Government, (2) that the practice or spread of birth control is contrary to religious principle, and (3) that it will lead to "race suicide." One voter's comment, typical of many, was: "Those who need it most wouldn't use it, and others shouldn't."

Those voting their approval expressed the belief that birth-control information should be made available in order to help the poorer classes, that it would allow "better spacing" of children and better living conditions for those already born, and that people might as well get "proper information instead of quackery."

French Face Falling Birthrate

While America gives thought to the question of regulating size of families by birth control, the French public, as shown in a survey made just before the war by the French Institute of Public Opinion, is gravely concerned over the problem of the falling birth rate in France.

Two weeks before war broke out, the French Institute, affiliated with the American Institute, surveyed French opinion on the question.

"In your opinion is there a birth-rate crisis which presents a danger to the future of the country?"

The vote was Yes, 85 per cent; No, 15 per cent.

When asked to name some of the causes, voters gave the following in order of requency: High cost of living, economic insecurity, fear of war, decline of the family as an institution, movement away from the land.

Among remedies suggested by voters were government subsidies for marriages and for large families, a tax on bachelors, better hospital care and greater control of abortion.

Within recent weeks the French government has tackled the birth-rate problem by authorizing grants for each child born, allowances for his maintenance, and loans to farmers who are about to marry.

Americanization Group to Dine

Citizenship and immigration laws will be discussed Friday at a dinner of the Americanization School Association at the Ebbitt Hotel.

Following brief speeches by Miss Maude E. Aiton, administrative principal, and James A. Crooks, chairman of the legislation study group, there will be a panel discussion.

A. F. L. Official and Writer Urge Congress To Regain Control Over Trade Treaties

By the Associated Press

Demands that Congress reassert its authority over tariff-making came yesterday from Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and Samuel Crowther, writer, who spoke in the name of New England's six Republican Governors.

Woll is president of America's Wage Earners Protective Conference which, aides said, represented between 800,000 and 900,000 of a claimed A. F. L. membership of 4,000,000. In a statement filed with the House Ways and Means Committee, which is considering Secretary Hull's request for continued authority to negotiate reciprocal trade agremeents, Woll opposed extension of the program in its present form.

Crowther urged that Congress set up an official commission of distinguished citizens to give the Nation "a full picture of our international commercial relations."

The view that high tariffs enacted during Republican Administrations had been an original cause of the present war in Europe—a view which Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, attributed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—was described by the writer as "almost pathological."

"U-Boats Will Give Us Relief"

Casper, Wyo., Jan. 23 (AP).—A Wyoming sheepman argued today that German submarines may provide United States wool growers a protection against foreign imports which was surrendered under the Administration's reciprocal trade agreements program.

"The U-boats will give us some relief from reciprocal trade agreements," Tom Cooper, of Casper, told the convention of the National Wool Growers Association.

"But after the second World War is over, our markets will be flooded with an accumulation of agricultural products."

Grady Assails Opponents

Texarkana, Tex., Jan. 23 (AP).—Henry F. Grady, Assistant Secretary of State, said tonight the "future welfare of the Nation as a whole and our influence in favor of enduring peace" depended upon the extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act.

Grady lashed at its opponents in a radio address before the Texarkana Junior Chamber of Commerce, and said

"Not only have foreign markets for American products been expanded, but owing to the increased employment which growing export trade gives, the domestic market has also been more active."

Navy Silent On Farnsworth Investigation

Action Taken Is Department Secret, Officers Say

What the Navy did, if anything, about John S. Farnsworth's confession that he stole its secrets for Japan for three years is a department secret and will not be made public, officers said yesterday.

The signed confession of Farnsworth, a former lieutenant commander, was revealed by The Post yesterday, after it had been hidden in confidential files and court records for 3½ years.

Samuel F. Beach, who as an assistant district attorney prosecuted Farnsworth, declared publication of the confession had been a "public service." Every act and fact of the confession was true, Beach said, and would have been proved if Farnsworth had gone to trial in 1937 instead of pleading nolo contendere (no defense) and being sentenced to a 4 to 12-year term in prison.

Confession Investigated

Farnsworth told of imposing on numerous naval officers, who "lent" him confidential material at his request, although some of them never had seen him before. Inquiry of the Navy Department whether the Japanese spies actually got the documents as Farnsworth said, and whether any officers were disciplined, brought the response that no announcement had been made of the investigation of Farnsworth's confession.

Lieut. Comdr. B. L. Austin, of the Navy public information office, said that of course the department investigated the confession and had been familiar with its contents since it was made. After consulting his superiors, Austin made this statement:

"As I told you this morning, the Navy Department did investigate the incidents recited in the Farnsworth testimony, but in view of the fact that confidential and secret matters having to do with the national defense were involved, the disclosure of which would not be in the public interest, no statement as to the findings or action taken as a result of such investigation has been made.

"And, of course," it is still as much a matter as it ever was, not to make any statement at this time."

Beach Willing for Trial

Rear Admiral Walter F. Anderson, chief of the division of naval intelligence, could not be reached for comment.

Beach said he felt that the public interest had been served by the detailed disclosure of Farnsworth's activities. Had Farnsworth stood trial the story would have come out at that time, instead of yesterday in connection with Farnsworth's third effort to obtain release from prison by a writ of habeas corpus.

"I was perfectly satisfied to go to trial," Beach declared, "and prove every material item in that confession, to support the indictment," which accused Farnsworth of plotting with two attaches who used the Japanese Embassy as a base. They were Lieut. Comdr. Akira Yamaki and Lieut. Comdr. Yosiyuki Itimiya.

"We investigated every act and every fact in the confession," Beach explained. "We traced telephone calls and telephone numbers. We traced the taxicabs Farnsworth used, when he rushed to have photographic copies made of the Navy papers he had stolen. When Farnsworth was spying at the Naval Academy he stayed at a hotel in Annapolis. His hotel bill showed a Washington telephone number he had called. This was an unlisted telephone, but we traced it to a diplomatic establishment.

"Two officers of the Naval Intelligence and two special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation spent three months checking up on the Farnsworth confession. They directed the work of scores of field men. I remember that the preliminary report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was an enormous document, with reports from agents in a dozen cities."

3 Killed, 3 Injured in Traffic Accidents In Washington and Nearby Areas

The demolished cab and driver's seat of a heavy truck in which the operator and a passenger were crushed to death. Tons of steel forms were hurled upon them from the rear of the van when it crashed into another truck yesterday on the Baltimore-Washington boulevard in Beltsville, Md.

Traffic accidents claimed three lives in and near the District yesterday, and three persons were injured on Washington streets.

A load of steel killed a truck driver and his passenger when their machine collided with another truck in Beltsville, Md. The dead were Willard C. Williams, 25, of Laurel, Del., and Caesar Esposito, 27, Bronx, N. Y.

Robert Herman, 84, 213 Seventh street northeast, died at his home, apparently the victim of an automobile accident November 28, police reported. He was struck by an automobile on the Baltimore boulevard at Beltsville, and treated at Casualty Hospital until December 18. An autopsy will be performed.

Police said Williams' truck, loaded with steel forms for a Washington construction firm, crashed into the rear of the other truck which had stopped for a street car crossing.

Impact of the crash drove the second truck, driven by James F. Robertson, 34, of Winston-Salem, N. C., 30 feet. The load of steel slid forward and crushed the cab of Williams' truck. Six men worked more than two hours to extricate the bodies.

The bodies of Williams and Esposito were taken to the Gasch funeral home in Hyattsville. Dr. James I. Boyd, of Forestville, Md., Prince Georges County coroner, decided the accident was unavoidable.

Alfonsa Weldon, colored, 14-year-old member of the schoolboy patrol, was injured by a hit-and-run driver while assisting children across New Jersey avenue at New York avenue northwest.

Mrs. Dorothy Robertson, 25, of 67 Gallatin street northwest, and John D. Chaffee, 23-year-old Marine attached to the Naval Air Station, were injured in an accident in the 3600 block of Nichols avenue southeast.

Committee Hits Small Sentences in Dope Violations Here

The probability of a Congressional investigation of dope peddling in the District increased yesterday as Capitol Hill officially recognized the gravity of the problem.

Individual Senators and Representatives have deprecated the Capital's growing reputation as an "easy" city for narcotic traffickers, but yesterday the House Appropriations Committee, in reporting out the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill, observed:

"The committee was sorry to learn that the situation in the National Capital is not progressing in the matter of correction as satisfactorily as it is in most other places in the United States.

"The Commissioner of Narcotics reports . . . that while the number of prosecutions in the District of Columbia had increased 100 per cent in the calendar year of 1939, as against the calendar year of 1938 through efforts of the bureau and the cooperation of the crime-enforcement agencies of the municipality, the addiction is not decreasing as it is in other areas where more severe penalties are imposed by the courts than have been inflicted by the courts in the District of Columbia."

Peddling Increasing Here

Testimony before the committee by H. J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, was the basis of the committee's adverse report on the Washington problem, which may herald a Congressional inquiry.

Anslinger, pointing out that addiction and peddling are on the decrease elsewhere in the United States, said the reverse is true here. Although he declined to criticize the courts, the narcotics commissioner said, in reply to questions, that whereas the average sentence here is 15 months, it is 3 years in Maryland, 4 years in West Virginia, and 2½ years in Virginia.

"In other districts, where more severe penalties are imposed than in the District of Columbia, has there been a substantial reduction in the narcotic traffic?" Anslinger was asked by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York.

Emphasized in Articles

"This is especially true in Maryland and Virginia," was the reply, "where the imposition of heavy sentences in narcotic cases has been a substantial factor in bringing about a noticeable reduction in the illicit narcotic traffic."

This point—the falling off of dope peddling in nearby States and other jurisdiction where short terms and resort to probation are uncommon—was emphasized in a series of articles on the local problem which The Post published last November.

Among the members of Congress who subsequently expressed conviction that steps should be taken to put an end to the District's "peddlers' paradise" reputation were Chairman King of the Senate District Committee, Chairman McGehee of the House District subcommittee on the Judiciary, and Representative Thill (Republican), of Wisconsin.

Farley Commends Party's Activities

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley said in a prepared speech today "the physical plant of America is in better shape than it ever was before because the Government had the foresight to employ the Nation's idle manpower during a period of economic stagnation."

The Democratic Party chieftain's address was prepared for the dedication of Pensacola's new $475,000 Federal Building.

"While the Roosevelt Administration has been sharply criticized for its policies," Farley asserted, "a study of the various measures written into law will convince any fair-minded person that the sole purpose behind them was to protect and preserve the economic security of the great mass of American citizens."

Alas and Alack! Homer Loses to A Horse Laugh

Looking a Gift Nag In the Teeth Costs Hornblow a Victory

until at last I had left behind the overpopulated section of the city where policemen lurked in every nook and cranny.

As the first, full realization dawned upon me that at long last I had arrived in that thinly settled area wherein beyond a doubt a voter would be found, a throaty cry of joy burst spontaneously from my lips and reverberated throughout the countryside.

More slowly now I drove along, looking cautiously from right to left, carefully appraising each native I passed, weighing with trained eye each graybeard's step, discarding those whose spryness obviously meant that the passage of the years did not yet weigh heavily enough upon his back.

For miles I drove, and with each passing mile a nameless fear clamored more persistently within me. At length I could ignore the fear no longer. Could it be that I had misplayed my cards? Could it be that the man I sought would not be found in this area at all? Or, more awful still, could some unkind fate have taken from the world the last man who once marked a ballot in the District?

I do not hesitate to confess that for a time I struggled on that dark precipice below which looms the abyss of despair.

But then, when all seemed lost, a ray of hope appeared. Off to the right, in a green pasture from which winter's hand had shrunk, there appeared a most venerable man, a man whose faltering step nad snowy locks stamped him as a citizen who might well have seen the Capital develop from its infancy.

Across the pasture toward the picket fence that lined the road he tottered, and in his footsteps, like some faithful pet, followed a rack of skin and bones that might once have been a horse.

Uttering a silent prayer of thanks, I stopped the car. Carefully, so as not to frighten him, I approached the man. Not once did he look up, nor by any sign nor flicker of expression, give evidence that he had observed my presence. Instead, hard by the picket fence, he halted and turned resolutely to confront the horse.

As I watched, completely mystified, the old man took the creature's head and lifted it until the full light of the winter sun shone in its face. Then, with trembling hand, he rolled back the ancient animal's ago-worn lips and looked full into its mouth.

Hesitant as I was to interrupt this ritual, I could no longer keep myself from speaking.

"Kind sir," I said, my voice respectful of his years, "please tell me . . . did you ever cast a vote in Washington?"

Slowly he turned and the creaking in his joints must have been heard for blocks around. His watery blue eyes, dimmed by time's passage, surveyed me carefully. At length he spoke.

"Well, son," he said, "though I don't know what business it can be of yours, yes, back in the 70's I voted like any other man."

For a moment, overcome with relief and thankfulness, I could not speak. Here, then, was the end of the trail. Once more my perseverence had been rewarded with success. Finally I found my voice, and, hurriedly, told the whole story of my long search for him.

"I wonder," I concluded, "if you would be kind enough to grant me an interview?"

For a long time he stood there, as though pondering the question. To me, in my impatience, it seemed that hours passed.

Finally the old man spoke again.

"Why, I suppose I will," he said, and as he spoke each word seemed to hover for a moment, suspended in midair, before the next thin sound came haltingly from that ancient throat. "I suppose I will, my son, if you'll do me a favor."

Unhesitatingly, I agreed.

"Well, you see," the old man said, "this here horse was give to me. It's what you might call, I guess, a gift horse" . . .

He paused, and a dry chuckle rattled in his throat.

"So," he continued, "much as folks has said about lookin' a gift horse in the mouth, I thought I'd try it."

Thinking it best to humor whatever whims the old man might have, I nodded.

"Well," he went on, "I just had a look, and I couldn't see a thing."

He paused again, and for a moment he looked sad.

"I guess my eyes are gettin' weak," he said, unhappily. "I was just a-wonderin' if you'd have a look for me?"

Despite the fact that it seemed a queer request, I hastily agreed, and, striding over to the horse, I peered into its mouth. Inside that yawning cavern, all was dark. I told the old man so.

"Perhaps," my host suggested, "if he dies down you'll get a better view."

Waiting not for my opinion, he approached the animal and uttered a command.

Obediently the horse reclined upon the ground, and I bent over it . . .

I did not hear the approach of the policemen. They must have stalked me silently. The first inkling I had of what was happening was when strong arms were thrown about me and I was led, struggling, away.

All evening I have attempted to explain just what took place in that green pasture. But my task is made more difficult by the fact . . . for which I can find no explanation . . . that when the officers arrived the old man had disappeared.

And as I sit here, awaiting ruefully the morning and the hearing at which I must prove my sanity, I am tormented by the haunting notes of a horse laugh ringing in my ears.

D.C. Map Represents Year's Work

Robert Van Garrison, 6633 Eastern avenue, Takoma Park, Md., is shown with scale model map of District of Columbia on which he spent a year. Forty-one square miles, including much of Arlington County, is included in the study. Tallest structure on the map is the Washington Monument, which is five-sixteenths of an inch high would reach several thousand dollars.

Unfamiliar with icy-road driving, Southern motorists had tough going. They skidded into drifts and stuck. Most had no tire chains. City streets and country highways were dotted with marooned cars.

Pedestrians shared the plight of drivers—they plowed on foot without galoshes. Children had the chance of a life-time for winter sports, and took it.

Ohio River Jammed

The worst ice gorges in 22 years jammed the Ohio River for 100 miles. Longest of the formations was from Gallipolis Dam to Long Bottom, Ohio.

Air travel ceased during the day at the Atlanta terminal. Trains ran two to three hours behind schedule. Many northbound bus trips were canceled and southbound buses were seriously delayed.

Snow and sleet postponed maneuvers of 8,500 troops in the Army's First Division, gathered at Fort Benning, Ga. The men, housed in a tent city, huddled as best they could against the cold.

Snow-shrouded ice floes clogged the Mississippi River south of Greenville, Miss., making progress hazardous for stern-wheel steamers.

Official snow depths through the South, reported by the United Press, included Monticello, Ark., 15 inches; Gadsden, Ala., 14 inches; Grenada, Miss., 8 inches, and Vicksburg, Miss., 9 inches, with the fall continuing.

to offer an amendment to the continuing resolution which, he said, would "stop Dies from cashing in" on the committee's activities.

The roll call revealed the tremendous strength of the committee in the House as only 20 Democrats and one American Laborite shouted "no." They were Representatives Bradley, Dunn and McGranery, of Pennsylvania; Thomas F. Ford, Geyer, Havenner and Izac, of California; Coffee and Wallgren of Washington; Fries, Keller, McKeough, Mitchell and Sabath, of Illinois; Hook and Tenerowicz, of Michigan; O'Day, of New York; Pierce, of Oregon; Shannon, of Missouri, and Schulte, of Indiana (Democrats), and Marcantonio, of New York (American Labor).

Although Dies is ill at his Orange, Tex., home, the other six members of his committee all voted for its continuance. The total opposition vote of 21 compares with an opposition of 35 a year ago.

Dies was quoted last night as saying that the first act of his renewed committee would be to ask Representative Hook to appear before it, and the second would be to hear charges that the Communist Party recently offered $3,250 for "a false affidavit that I am sympathetic to the Christian Front."

In the debate on the continuing resolution, Representative Havenner (Democrat), of California, asserted the Dies Committee had been used to "discredit" liberal New Deal candidates "and brand them as reds and radicals." He warned leaders on both sides of the aisle that "neither of you can win in the coming election without liberal votes."

Another California Democrat, Representative Geyer, charged that the committee had "acted to influence National elections in at least three States."

Acting Chairman Starnes, asking that the committee be continued, said it had accumulated "an immense amount of material," as yet unpublished, dealing with subversive activities in the merchant marine, schools and agricultural occupations.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew!

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

$13,314,000 More Is Slashed From Budget

It approved an $11,000,000 transfer of current parity price appropriations for payments under the 1938 price adjustment act, but refused $1,400,000 additional for the cotton export subsidy program.

Economy axes continued to swing as the day's total recommended saving of $13,314,000 brought to more than $128,000,000 the aggregate amounts already lopped from the President's $8,424,000,000 budget by House and Senate Appropriations Committees. This did not include the as yet untabulated cuts in the agriculture bill.

Morgenthau's stand for budget-balancing cuts and taxes, plus a debt limit increase, was disclosed in the printed report of the Treasury bill hearings.

Pressed for his detailed views on cuts and new taxes, Morgenthau testified:

"Do I think the budget should be balanced? Yes. Do I think expenditures should be cut down? Yes. Do I think taxes should be increased? Yes. But if you say 'Morgenthau, what kind of taxes should there be?' I cannot answer that, because I do not know."

Morgenthau said flatly he thought the debt limit should be raised from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000, and replied "No" when asked if that was his idea of the "ultimate debt limit."

"I am willing to say now, gentlemen, that there is no particular danger involved if Congress would raise the debt limit to $50,000,000,000," he testified. "Beyond that I would not venture an opinion."

He said it was not the Treasury's function to say where the cuts should be made, but suggested there are certain types of public works and public roads expenditures which "in view of the heavy rearmament program could either be reduced or temporarily dispensed with."

Sees "Serious" Situation

Morgenthau actually appeared before submission of the President's budget message, but told members he believed the Administration "can get along" until June 30 without increasing the debt limit.

Asked what would occur if Congress refused to appropriate funds beyond the debt limit, he said the situation would be "serious," but "you make the laws, and I simply pay the bills in carrying them out."

Undersecretary of the Treasury Bell said the Treasury had $17,400,000,000 of gold on hand, which Morgenthau estimated at 65 per cent of the world's gold supply. He said that until further notice the Treasury will "buy all gold offered to us at $35 an ounce." Bell said the Treasury also had $1,790,000,000 of silver at a monetary value of $1.29 an ounce, and 1,200,000,000 ounces of silver carried at its cost of $612,000,000.

If the Government did not buy foreign gold, Morgenthau said, our foreign trade "would fall off by that amount."

He testified that United States credit now is "at the top." He said he believed "business conditions will be at least as good in 1940 as they have been this (1939) year. That is the best I can do, and it is just a guess."

In reporting to the House the closely cropped Treasury-Postoffice bill, Representative Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana, said the measure actually was $740,422,915 below current appropriations, but attributed the saving chiefly to transfer of the old-age reserve account, the Public Health Service and the Treasury's public buildings branch to other agencies.

The bill provided $218,691,530 for the Treasury and $813,463,062 for the Postoffice. Chief reductions included a cut from $15,000,000 to $12,500,000 in funds for purchase of strategic materials, and a slash of $3,519,000 in funds asked for the Coast Guard's neutrality patrol.

The first $251,822,588 deficiency defense bill meantime went to a Senate test, with Appropriations Committee chiefs battling on the floor to preserve $20,176,000 in economy cuts. Committee slashes of $3,000,000 in Army field maneuver funds and $1,000,000 in Army transportation costs were sustained, but Senator Thomas, (Democrat), of Oklahoma, forced postponement until tomorrow of a final vote on eliminating $200,000 for purchasing an ammunition depot site in Puerto Rico.

Wang Signs Peace Terms With Japan

Former Chinese Premier Opens Parley to Promote Puppet Government

By the Associated Press

Shanghai, Jan. 23.—As former Chinese Premier Wang Ching-wei opened an oft-postponed crucial conference at Tsingtao today to promote establishment of a Japanese-approved new central government in China, his followers here disclosed that a "gentlemen's agreement" already has been signed for a peace with Japan.

It contains 12 points under which Wang would, in the name of China, grant Japan most of the objectives for which she invaded China.

Wang's followers here said the principal terms of the tentative peace agreement were:

Recognition of the Japanese conquest of Manchoukuo.

Signature of a Japanese-Manchoukuoan-Chinese anticomintern alliance.

Agreement by Japan to withdraw troops within two years from any area of Central or South China where "the new government demonstrates its ability to maintain peace and order."

Joint government of Inner Mongolia by the Japanese army and the Chinese.

Establishment of North China as a semi-autonomous area.

Maintenance of permanent Japanese garrisons in North China and Inner Mongolia.

Drawing up of detailed plans for economic development of China's industry and resources.

Japan to "Supervise" Customs

"Supervision" by Japan of Chinese customs.

Permanent Japanese occupation of Hainan Island, opposite French Indo-China, for purposes of "national defense" and naval operations.

Establishment of the seat of the new government at Nanking.

Creation of a central political council as the supreme governing body, composed of representatives of the present Nanking and Peiping regimes, of Wang's followers and of other Chinese elements not now associated with any of these groups.

31 U. S. Citizens Escape Poland, Say 100 Remain

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Jan. 23.—Thirty-one American citizens of Polish origin, including five Catholic clergymen connected with Notre Dame University, arrived here today from Russian-occupied Poland with a story of difficult conditions there.

All fled Warsaw as the Germans approached the city last fall, only to be detained by the Soviet army of occupation at Lwow.

The five connected with Notre Dame are Hilary Paszek, of South Bend, Ind.; Joseph Kmiecik, of Texas; Boleslaw Sztuczko, a native of Lithuania; Roma Witowski, of Chicago, and Hormisdan Spanier, of Lwow.

Others whose names were listed included John Kozak and Theodore Makar, both of Washington, and Miss Wanda Pater, of Chicago.

Paszek said more than 100 American citizens remaining in Warsaw were unable to leave because of lack of funds.

Christian Front Leader Called Criminal Alien

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Mayor LaGuardia said tonight William G. Bishop, a leader of the Christian Front members held on charges of seditious conspiracy to overthrow the Government, was subject to deportation as a criminal alien.

He said a report by Police Commissioner Valentine showed Bishop had admitted in 1935 that he had been born in Switzerland and entered this country illegally in 1926.

Bishop, identified in the police report as a Nazi propagandist whose real name was William Arneck, served a 90-day workhouse sentence after the conviction in 1935 of posessing a pistol without a permit.

Veteran Missing, Wife Reports

A shell-shocked World War veteran was sought by police last night following an appeal from his wife, Mrs. Henry T. Crozier, of 1806 G street northwest, who said he had not been seen since his discharge from a hospital at Perry Point, Md., seven months ago.

Crozier is described as 6 feet tall, very thin with brown hair and a small scar on his upper lip. He carried a black leather case containing insurance and Naval discharge papers and a driver's permit.

British Bomb Own Warships, House Is Told

Information Is Given As Reason for Not Unifying Air Force

By John G. Norris

The House Naval Committee was told yesterday that British air force pilots had unwittingly bombed their own warships on several occasions since the European war started, as an argument against establishment of a separate air arm for the United States.

Representative Sutphin (Democrat), of New Jersey, said naval officials had informed him British bombs had damaged a number of their vessels and struck a cruiser on which an American naval officer was present as an observer.

As a result of the bombings, Royal Air Force pilots have been ordered off the seas, Sutphin declared his informants had said.

Committee plans for cutting the naval expansion bill were disclosed during the hearing. Chairman Vinson asked Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson, coordinator of shipbuilding, to bring in estimates for a two-year program. Last week the group cut $549,000,000 by substituting a three-year program for the six-year plan presented by the Navy.

Indications were, however, that only a few cruisers and submarines would be eliminated as the present program contemplates laying down most of the ships during 24 months.

Rear Admiral Towers, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, told the committee that a minimum of 4,900 planes is desired by the Navy.

Diplomatic War Is Raging Over Rumanian Oil Exports

By Raymond Daniell
Copyright by New York Times

London, Jan. 23.—Many pieces are missing from the Balkan puzzle, but there are enough at hand to put together the broad outlines of the picture forming there.

In the center is Rumania with rich oil fields, coveted by Germany of necessity, and by the Allies with a dog in the manger attitude. On the Eastern and Northern borders, German and Russian divisions have been gathered while in Bucharest, the capital, swarm Allied and German agents, countering threats with bribes and vice versa in a terrific war of diplomacy and economics.

In this atmosphere Sir Reginald Hoare, the British Minister to Rumania, has informed that country that the Allies hope nothing will happen to impair present cordial relations between them and the little country they have guaranteed against aggression.

Recent events have caused concern here over what is to become of 7,000,000 metric tons of oil which are produced annually from Rumanian wells.

About 4,500,000 tons of Rumania's total output is exported annually. Germany's present quota is 1,000,000 tons. Italy takes 650,000 tons, Great Britain another 500,000 and France 250,000. Recently Germany has been exerting pressure to increase oil imports from Rumania.

Russian Bomb Kills 19 Finns In Air Shelter

Soviet Offensive On Land Repulsed With 5,000 Dead

guns destroyed several Russian tanks.

At Kollaanjoki, 12 miles north of Ladoga Lake, where the Russian army attempted to advance along the railroad running southwest to Saatavalla, Monday, hundreds of new Soviet soldiers fell over the bodies of the thousands the Finns killed on this front during the last three days.

Along the Aittojoki front, 40 miles nort hof Ladoga, Soviet artillery for hours Monday thundered against the Finnish positions. The Soviet troops attacked several times, but each time were forced to retreat with heavy losses.

Six Russian planes were shot down Monday.

Snow Heavy in Helsinki

In Helsinki it was snowing heavily when the air-raid alarm sounded at 2:30 p. m. today. The sky was so gray that people running for shelter wondered how the Soviet fliers could find their way. The planes and antiaircraft guns were heard, but nothing could be seen. It is reported that bombs were dropped outside the city.

Major attention centered on activity across the Gulf of Finland, where the Russians were rushing ground preparations for further air onslaughts against the Finns from the new Soviet bases in Estonia.

New damage inflicted on the Red fleet was reported by Scandinavian correspondents, who said the 23,606-ton Russian battleship Marat was damaged in a Finnish air raid Sunday on the Soviet naval base at Kronstadt, near Leningrad.

These dispatches said the 8,500-ton Soviet cruiser Kiroff, presumably laid up in Kronstadt for repairs previously caused by Finnish shells, was struck again in the same raid.

Additional dispatches, from Latvia, said the Red fleet had lost three destroyers, a number of auxiliary vessels and a battleship since the war started. The battleship October Revolution, flagship of the Baltic fleet, was said to have been put out of commission for several months by Finnish warplanes which bombed her in port.

In addition, mines were reported to have sent to the bottom two Russian submarines and four minesweepers.

The Red fleet sank two German and two Finnish vessels, one Estonian merchant ship and several Estonian fishing boats before it became virtually frozen up two weeks ago.

a furious snowstorm north of Bakers Field and landed at that city. They were under orders to remain there overnight and return to Hamilton Field tomorrow if the weather permits.

The storm halted all commercial aviation in southern California. It forced Allen Russell, Los Angeles pilot flying Howard Hughes' transcontinental record-holding speedplane from Newark, N. J., to Burbank, Calif., down at Palm Springs, in the desert east of Riverside.

Two other airplane deaths in California also were reported today. The bodies of Paul L. McMullen, 55, and P. Delaware Smith, 46, Oakland building management executives, were found near Livermore in northern California in the wreckage of their private monoplane. They apparently were killed Sunday.

Buck, who has won many prizes for his paintings and etchings, says an artist should not neglect living issues for his pictures. ence with ships."

London, Jan. 23.—The British Government stood adamant tonight in defense of its war blockade practices in an increasingly serious conflict with United States interests, even at the risk of new strain on Anglo-American friendship.

Britannia, confident it (rules the waves," indicated sympathy with American annoyance at lengthy delays of ships and partial seizure of cargoes, especially at Gibraltar, just as it did on the questions of the Pan-American neutrality belt and interference with United States it had a ready and uncompromising reply.

In this case an official British spokesman replied to an aide memoire given to Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador at Washington, last Saturday, by Secretary of State Hull. Objecting to "discriminatory" treatment of United States shipping in the Mediterranean.

Gives Four Reasons

The British spokesman gave four reasons why United States ships were delayed at contraband control stations three times as long as those of Italy, which, incidentally, is the object of intensive British diplomatic courtship:

Failure to supply advance information concerning their cargoes.

The mixed nature of these cargoes, often including as many as 300 items, thus requiring a longer time for examination than those of Italian ships, which are largely bulk.

Varied destinations in the Mediterranean of United States ships, whereas Italian ships usually go only to Italy.

Neglect by United States shippers to take full advantage of various British schemes of guarantees that goods carried will not reach Germany.

The French government, at the same time, issued a statement refusing to renounce the right of allied ships to counter-attack if fired upon by German warships in the 300-mile Pan-American safety belt. This followed a previous British declaration similarly reserving belligerent rights in the zone.

and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

She was the sixth British destroyer lost and the first to go down with all hands.

With the sinking of the Exmouth, Britain's acknowledged naval losses to date total 82,088 tons. The biggest casualties were the 29,150-ton battleship Royal Oak, torpedoed at the Scapa Flow naval base November 14, and the 22,500-ton aircraft carrier Courageous, torpedoed in the English Channel September 18.

Commanded the Danae

Only last December Capt. R. S. Benson, commander of the Exmouth, received the distinguished service order for "successful action against enemy submarines." He was on the bridge of the Exmouth at that time.

In August, 1937, Capt. Benson figured in the Japanese-Chinese war during the Japanese attack on Shanghai, where he was stationed as commander of the British cruiser Danae.

He appealed unsuccessfully to Japanese Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa to move his flagship, the Idzumo, from alongside the Japanese consulate general at the International Area on the ground it would induce Chinese bombing of the area.

Against the British sinkings, Germany has admitted the loss of only the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, a few submarines and two 400-ton patrol boats. Winston Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, claims, however, that the Nazi sea losses have been much higher, including "half the U-boats."

"Mine or Torpedo"

The admiralty communique said: "The secretary of the admiralty regrets to announce that H. M. Destroyer Exmouth, Capt. R. S. Benson, has been sunk by either a mine or a torpedo and it is feared that there are no survivors. Next of kin have been informed."

The other destroyers lost, besides the Grenville, were the Blanche and the Gypsy, sunk by mines; the Jersey, damaged by a torpedo, and the Duchess, lost in a collision. The Grenville, like the Exmouth, was said to have been sunk "by mine or torpedo."

Roscoe Toliver, colored garage helper, was indicted yesterday for unauthorized use of an automobile belonging to former Representative Virginia E. Jenckes, of Indiana.

Toliver's joyride ended at 3:30 a. m. December 16 in a collision with a taxicab, which led to his arrest on that charge. He pleaded guilty in Police Court.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey presents Kirsten Flagstad in a song recital Tuesday night in Constitution Hall. Edwin McArthur, accompanist, in a program of songs by Handel, Beethoven, Bach, Hugo Wolf, Brahms, Sinding, Hannikainen, Merikanto, Jordan, Wagner and Joseph Marx.

Kirsten Flagstad drew to Constitution Hall last evening an audience that filled every seat and most of the stage, as well, and received from that assemblage the kind of hearty welcome and enthusiastic response that her superior artistry deserves. One of the greatest singers of the last half-century, she satisfies her hearers as only the elect among vocalists can—by the sheer simplicity and utter sincerity of her singing. There are technical tricks that may astound for the moment, as there are personalities that may excite a temporary furore, but the kind of singing that endures in the memory is that which links the singer and the listener with the bond of sympathy.

The secret of Mme. Flagstad's greatness is the honesty of her art. For her the endowment of her voice is a gift which she shares with others in a generosity native to her character. Devoid of artificiality and innocent of pretense, she sings for the joy of singing, and one surmises that she still feels surprised at the renown which has come to her.

Her first group last evening contained Handel's "Somni Dei," "Beethoven's "Wonne der Wehmuth," Bach's "Willst du dein Herz mir schenken" and the same composer's "Mein glaubiges Herz." It was not until she began to intone "My Heart Ever Faithful" that the full warmth and power of her voice was released. Thereafter its strength, its tenderness and its emotional color were continually in evidence.

In a delightful group of lieder she brought together Hugo Wolf's "Ueber Nacht" and "Anakreons Grab" with Brahms "Liebestreu," "An ein Veilchen" and "Wie froh und frisch." At the insistence of the audience she added to these Schuberts "Ungeduld."

Her third group consisted of songs in Norwegian, Swedish and German. Sindings "Mainatt" and "Der Skreg en Fugl" were followed by Hannikainen's "The Moon Boy's Story," Merikanto's "The Wood Pigeon's Call" and two songs by Sverre Jordan: "And See, She Comes" and "Autumn Is Nearing." In her last group, which was followed by several extra numbers, she sang Wagners "Traeume" and "Schmerzen" and two lieder by Joseph Marx: "Waldseligkeit" and "Hat dich die Liebe beruehrt."

Nazi Atrocities Again Reported By Vatican

Acts in Poland, Too Horrible to Be Printed, Broadcasters Charge

By Herbert L. Matthews,

Copyright by New York Times

Vatican City, Jan. 23.—Two Vatican City radio broadcasts today gave additional details of the atrocities allegedly being committed in German-occupied Poland.

It is now clear that the Holy See is throwing the whole weight of its publicizing facilities into this expose of conditions which the first of these broadcasts yesterday said "profoundly pained" the Pope.

The material for these talks, it is now learned, forms what amounts to an unofficial "blue book" compiled by the office of Cardinal August Hlond here in Rome, which the cardinal feels has been fully authenticated. Some of the material, it is stated, is too horrible to be given over the air or printed.

In Gniezno, for instance, a majority of the clergy were declared to have been arrested.

Since September, all churches in the districts of Inowroclaw, Szubin, Znin, Wyrzsk and Wrzesnia have been closed. Later, a number of priests were imprisoned, others sent to concentration camps and still others sent into Germany or to the suburbs of Warsaw and forced to do manual labor, the broadcaster said.

British Search 2d Japanese Liner

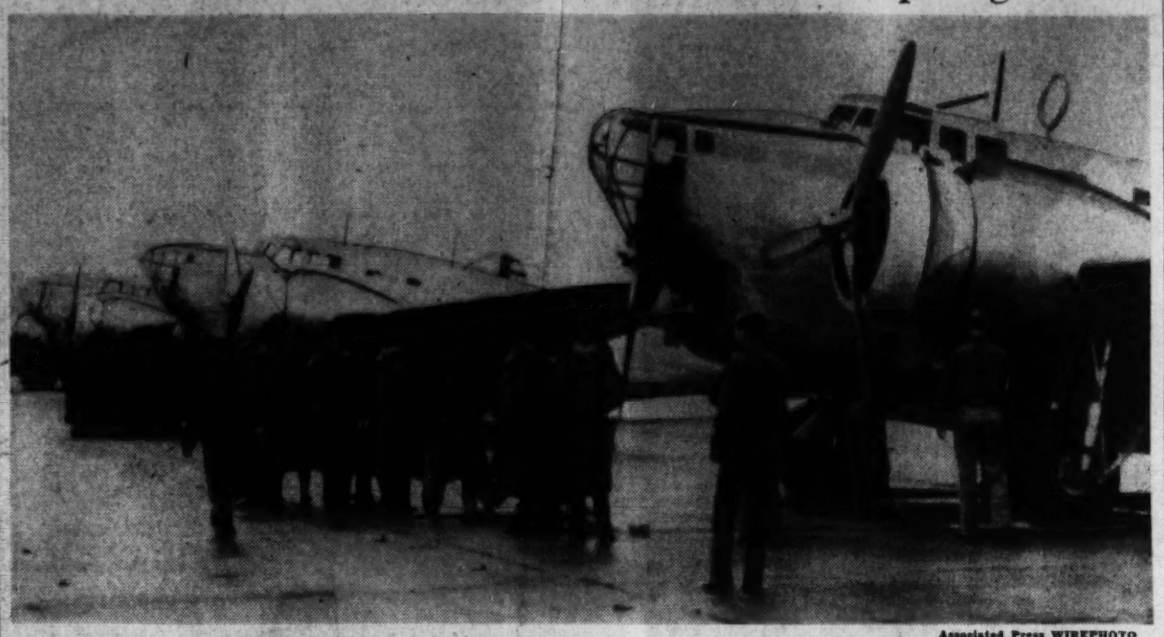
tive news agency, reported that ranking naval officials in Tokyo had discussed "measures designed to prevent a recurrence" of the incident.

Foreign Minister Arita summoned British Ambassador Craigie to an hour's conference yesterday during which, Domei said, Arita repeated his government's protest against the affair and also a request that Britain refrain from further halting of Japanese ships. At least three other Japanese ships now on the seas are known to be carrying Germans.

(In London a British spokesman said the Japanese protest did not challenge Britain's right to halt and search a Japanese ship but expressed concern over the status of the Germans. The spokesman said Britain considered the captured seamen a potential part of a belligerent force because Germany has conscripted its manpower.)

Navy Minister Admiral Zengo Yoshida met with admirals commanding the Japanese fleets and naval bases. A spokesman declined to discuss their decision other than to say "we are waiting for Britain's reply to the Japanese protest."

Storm Forces Down 37 Planes in Mass Troop Flight



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Soldiers were pictured yesterday preparing to board bombardment planes at Hamilton Field, Calif., for a test flight involving mass movement of ground troops by air. All but one of the 38 planes were forced down at Bakers Field by a rainstorm. The other landed safely at March Field, station of the Army bomber that crashed yesterday 2 miles from Riverside, Calif., killing four men.

relations, Mr. Berle said that the matter would have to be held open, and would presumably form a part of the discussions which have been taking place in Tokyo between the American ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, and the Japanese foreign office.

The envoy was told that further commercial relations would depend upon developments.

Questions as to the future status of the "treaty merchants" now living in the United States brought the reply that aliens who cease, in the absence of treaty provisions, to come within the immigration act provisions concerning treaty merchants, would be permitted to qualify as visitors temporarily admitted for business or pleasure under the provisions of the immigration act.

This involves the necessity for making application for visas, and renewal of the visas at regular intervals.

The entire field of Japanese-American relations is expected to be considered by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next Wednesday. It already has before it proposals to authorize an embargo on American goods to Japan.

placed miners."

The "2 per cent bagmen" apparently referred to political campaign assessments made in Indiana when McNutt was Governor.

[In Washington McNutt said his administration as Governor of Indiana "gave the working men . . . and the labor movement of that State its bill of rights."

"I am amazed," McNutt said, "that any responsible leader of organized labor should single out for attack the record made by my administration in Indiana . . ."

McNutt said he ordered the National Guard out in the 1935 strike when the mayor and chief of police of Terre Haute had petitioned the organization's executive office for guardsmen "to restore order and assure the safety of citizens." He added that "I did what I believe any chief executive, sworn to uphold the law and order, could not escape doing."—Editor's Note.]

Lewis urged the miners to protect their union from "industrial spies, the corporations and the scheming politicians."

The convention received a report of its international officers recommending liberalized pensions and other changes in the social security program.

Recommendations included:

Payment of at least $15 a week in unemployment insurance to all jobless persons until they find suitable employment, (payments are now confined to a limited number of weeks);

Extension of unemployment insurance to agricultural labor, domestic services and casual labor;

Creation of a national system of unemployment insurance, replacing the State setups, to insure uniform benefits;

Abolishing pay roll taxes, as a means to financing social security, and substituting revenues from higher income, inheritance and gift taxes, and

Poles in Tears As Paderewski Pledges Fight

Former Premier, 79, Forsakes Piano to Head Exile Government

By the Associated Press

Paris, Jan. 23.—Weak with the weight of his 79 years, but undaunted in spirit, Ignace Jan Paderewski stirred the Polish Parliament-in-exile which elected him its president today to tears in pledging that body to raise Poland "from the ruins."

Although he had to be helped to his feet by a secretary, Paderewski's voice gained strength and rose almost to a shout as he cried:

"Poland is immortal. We will deliver her from captivity and will raise her from the ruins. We take this engagement before God!"

The one-time premier of Poland declared the creation of a powerful army was the government's first aim and appealed for unity in internal matters to concentrate on rebuilding Poland.

He gave special thanks to America's Poles "to whose generosity we owe a great part of our power to aid the Polish refugees and population in distress."

Accompanied by a Congressional delegation, Mrs. Borah, and Mrs. Cora Rubin, the Senator's secretary, the body arrived here this morning.

Allies May Send Men to Finns

By Frederick H. Kuh,

United Press Staff Writer.

London, Jan. 23.—Military and political experts, describing the Russian-Finnish war as the pivot of a greater conflict, said tonight British and French volunteer forces may be sent to Finland before spring to bolster Allied influence among the neutral nations.

Those speculating on this possibility recalled that during the Spanish civil war the word "volunteer" became a synonym for an expeditionary force.

The report was one of several indicating Allied policy is moving in new directions, far different from that of last September when Britain and France were trying to neutralize Russia.

Russia Viewed as Enemy

The feeling is growning in Britain and France that Russia is a potential enemy if not already a "co-enemy" alongside Germany. American opinion and the attitude of the Scandinavians and other neutrals have buttressed this attitude.

In the economic field, impartial experts agree that the Allied contraband control of German imports and exports falls far short of a decisive blockade.

There is scant hope here of bringing the Nazis to their knees economically so long as Germany enjoys access to raw materials and food markets in the Balkans and Scandinavia.

Churchill's Plea Is Recalled

Winston Churchill's radio plea to neutrals to "stand together with the British and French empires" apparently reflects Britain's conviction that the neutrals would not only assure their own survival but would shorten the war by joining up with the Allies.

Such a development would compel the dispersal of Germany's military forces and deprive Germany of many vital markets, so long as the neutrals withstood German pressure.

DID F.D.R. SIGN AWAY 1940?

Did the President sentence the Democratic party to defeat in 1940 when he quietly signed the Hatch Act, barring Federal jobholders from politics? Read what Washington key men think of "the most important political reform since Civil Service" and how the Hatch Act may upset this year's election. By Charles T. Lucey, in the Post out today.

WHAT LABOR UNION CZAR WOULD HOLLYWOOD "LIKE TO SEE DEAD"?

Why are Hollywood stars squabbling over their own labor unions? Who is this muscle-bound ex-Chicagoan at the bottom (and on top) of it all? Whose union has raked in $4,500,000 from movieland's 12,000 film workers? Who has the film stars scared they'll be "adopted" next? Here's the first full-length story of that man who boasts, "them producers would like to see me dead in every room." Read "All Right, Gentlemen, Do We Get the Money?" by Florabel Muir.

WHERE'S THE LOOPHOLE IN PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION?

Is "P. R." the answer to the reformers' prayer? Don't say "Yes" until you read how this Poll Reform backfired into a racket in Cincinnati. And how the P. R. system of vote-counting put Tammany on top again in New York City. An editorial in this week's Saturday Evening Post exposes the mathematical trick by which P. R. can be twisted into a farce by clever politicians. See page 26 in the issue out today.

Going! Going! Going!
Three Swell Months of Fun!

The model illustrated is the BUICK SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1109 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional. No extra charge for the two-tone finish shown.*

SOMEWHERE in this town there's a certain man who has his mind made up—"come spring" he's going to walk down to his Buick dealer and get himself one of those 1940 honey lambs.

To him we'd just like to say, why the delay?

Why pass up even one month of sheer joy behind the husky big Dynaflash straight-eight power plant that's the talk of the town for pull—and the marvel of the nation for smoothness?

Why go without the unduplicated comfort of soft, steel BuiCoil Springs, or pass up the sure-footed steadiness of a car keeled like a battleship with a stout six-foot torque tube?

Why wait to get acquainted with finger-flick Handishift transmission, the convenience of the Flash-Way Direction Signal, the close-to-five-feet spread of the Buick Super's Foamtex-cushioned front seats?

Why go on doing without any of Buick's more-than-six-dozen new features and conveniences, while months of glorious Buick fun slip surely by?

We know tradition says spring is the time to buy. But that tradition started before cars acquired the rugged strength this Buick's got. Now any season's the right season to start a Buick off and winter's the time you're most likely to need good tires, sure brakes and things like that.

So for your own sake drop that "come spring" idea and get in on the gaiety now. You'll want to sign on the dotted line instanter — when you hear the low delivered prices Buick dealers are quoting.

Not a six but an EIGHT for $895 and up delivered at Flint, Mich. Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories extra. Price subject to change without notice.

Walter Wanger Is New President of Academy

Famous Producer Outlines His Policy; Why 'Gone' Is So Eagerly Awaited; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

WALTER WANGER, long recognized as one of Hollywood's most courageous and progressive motion picture producers, has been elected the new president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Frank Capra, retiring president, has been drafted to serve as first vice president. Other new officers are Edward Arnold, second vice president; Robert Riskin, secretary; John Aalberg, treasurer, and Donald Gledhill, executive secretary.

BELL

President-elect Wanger lays stress on his purpose to continue the broad, liberal and independent policies instituted by Capra's administration of the Academy, now in its thirteenth year. Part of his credo is expressed in these words: "There should be a closer understanding between the film creators and their audience. The Academy is the only institution in which actor, director, writer, technician and producer members function as individuals, irrespective of their economic or studio affiliations. The Academy should and will attempt to present to the world their ideas and ideals with frankness and authority."

Members of the Academy directorate for 1940 are Frank Capra, Frank Lloyd, Ronald Colman, Clark Gable, Cecil B. De Mille, Howard Estabrook, Mervyn LeRoy, Robert Riskin, Douglas Shearer, David O. Selznick, James Stewart, Norman Taurog, Sam Wood, Walter Wanger and Darryl F. Zanuck. Mervyn LeRoy will act as chairman of the annual Academy awards dinner, scheduled for February 29.

Lucky thing it's leap year!

And still they come. Brian Aherne and Joan Fontaine, his wife, will arrive in New York from Hollywood on January 29 to confer with Cornelia Otis Skinner and Gilbert Miller with regard to the latter's forthcoming production of "The Beaux' Strategem," in which Miss Skinner and Mr. Aherne will be starred and Miss Fontaine featured. Rehearsals are expected to get under way early in March under the direction of the producer. And now for that "and still they come" business. Spring engagements which, accoraing to present plans, will include Washington, along with Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Chicago, will precede the New York opening.

Sidney B. Lust, Chief Barker of the Variety Club of Washington for 1940, has completed the assignment of his various committees for the new year. Under the direction of Mr. Lust, Chief Barker; Hardie Meakin, first assistant; J. E. Fontaine, second assistant; Sam A. Galanty, treasurer, and Nathan Golden, secretary, the following committees, representing practically the sum total of "show business" in Washington, will serve:

Entertainment, Carter Barron, chairman; Harry Lohmeyer, Hardie Meakin, Gene Ford, Harry Anger, Phil Hayden, Adlai Mann, Archie Engel, Jimmy Lake, Eddie Plohn, Herbert Sauber. Welfare, Rudolph Berger, chairman; George Crouch, Joseph Morgan, Fred Rohrs, Fred Kogod, A. E. Lichtman, Charles Schulman, Emil Holz. Membership, Nathan D. Golden, chairman; Carter Barron, Sam Flax, A. J. Brylawski, Sidney Lust, Samuel N. Wheeler, House, J. E. Fontaine, chairman; Jake Flax, Kemp Mohler, Robert Grace, Fred Rohrs, Harry Brown. Sports, S. A. Galanty, chairman; Carter Barron, Harry Brown, Herbert Sauber, Charles Schulman. Finance, A. J. Brylawski, chairman; A. E. Lichtman and Clark Davis. Publicity, Hardie Meakin, chairman; Ray Bell, Nelson B. Bell, Jay Carmody, Andrew R. Kelley, Don Craig, Charles "Tony" Wakeman, William Hoyle, Art Brown, William Dolph, Edward J. Melniker, John J. Payette, Edmund Plohn, S. L. Sorkin. Executive, John J. Payette, chairman; Harry Lohmeyer, S. A. Galanty, Orangelo Ratto, Sam Flax.

The critical fraternity is becoming increasingly articulate. Elliott Norton, drama critic of the Boston Post, will join John Mason Brown—scheduled for an address at the Shoreham next Saturday—and others of the craft by embarking upon a lecture tour this spring under the management of our old friend William Fields. It was "Bill" Fields, long associated with Cornelius Otis Skinner and the Playwrights' Company, who booked Alexander Woollcott's recent cross-country junket.

That print of the Warner Brothers celluloid saga of "The Fighting 69th" will get a good workout today, preparatory to the opening of the picture on the screen at the Earle Theater Friday. It will be unspooled for the drama desks this afternoon at 1:30 and again tonight at 8, in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel, under the auspices of the local chapter of the Rainbow Division veterans. That ought to take the kinks—if any—out of it.

That veteran dancing comedian, Pat Rooney, is returning to the Atlas Theater to headline the vaudeville portion of the bill beginning next Sunday and continuing through Tuesday. One of the most famous of the theater's dancing stars, Pat always receives a hearty welcome in Washington—whether accompanied by Marion Bent and Pat 'd, or working as a "single"—and never fails to deliver, stalwart old trouper that he is.

A part, at least, of the acute interest being manifested by Washington in the coming of "Gone With the Wind" to Loew's Palace on Friday, must be explained by the following letter reaching this desk from 2418 Observatory place:

"Dear Mr. Bell:—It seems 'Gone With the Wind' is 'catching' these days, when we read and hear so much about it. So I want to relate a little personal history also. In the book, Miss Mitchell mentions an Alabama regiment joining the Confederate army, bringing along their locker trunks and colored boys. My father, Capt. Joseph Shackelford, was one of them and my sister, Mrs. C. M. Howard, Arlington, Tex., has this old leather trunk, made in Philadelphia, in her possession. He served in Gen. N. B. Forrest's cavalry first as a first lieutenant in Capt. William Allen's company, his sister's husband. When Capt. Allen was killed at the Battle of Atlanta, he was made captain. My Aunt Mary left Capt. Allen's uniform and boots with spurs on them, just as they were returned to her from the battlefield, in an old trunk in her room. At her death, it was placed in the Confederate Museum in the capitol, Montgomery, Ala. So much of 'Gone With the Wind' seems so familiar to me, as I heard it all related by my aunts and father. My grandfather was the owner of a large plantation and Negroes in Alabama and I was told many things about the antebellum days and Civil War times that most Southerners have heard all their lives. I am sure the picture will interest me and I hope not disappoint a daughter of the Old South.

"I wonder if there are any other 'daughters' living in Washington, who might have a personal interest in the picture?

"Pardon this little bit of personal narrative. I hope I have not bored you. Sincerely, (Signed)

"EVA SHACKELFORD BROWN."

Not only are we not bored, but feel that the reader will not be, either. "Gone With the Wind" must strike very close home to many hearts in and about Washington.

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Jan. 23.

I've never known Clarence Brown to be so enthusiastic about any picture as he is Edison. When he went to Detroit he said, "I never thought I'd get wtihin 40 feet of Henry Ford. I not only met him, but spent four days with him." Clarence says every one should see Greenfield Village, which is chuck full of Americana, and the entire Edison laboratory, where they've duplicated every instrument and chemical. He took a cameraman along hoping to get permission to take shots so he could duplicate it. He never took one—Mr. Ford gave him hundreds. And the set is now at Metro, even to the organ in the laboratory, which Edison played for relaxation with one finger. His favorite song was "Sweet Genevieve."

HOPPER

They tried to bring 82-year-old Francis Jehl out for the picture. He's the only man living today who started with Edison in his laboratory. When you think of his incredible patience it makes your head spin. He tried 9,000 different materials for the filaments inside the light bulb before he found one that worked. Which was a piece of cotton thread covered with carbon dust and baked. He tried every color of human hair, bamboo from China, and after the 4,000th test, they said: "Don't you think you'd better give up?" The answer was: "No. You see, I've achieved so much, I now know 4,000 ways not to do it." He was responsible for $40,000,000,000 worth of inventions. Think of it!!! . . . Spencer Tracy, who plays Edison, tells me he's having so much fun playing with Henry Travers, Charlie Coburn and Lynn Overman. Overman is a member of Spencer's club, they've never worked together before. Other members are Cagney, O'Brien and McHugh and they meet every Wednesday for laughs.

Louis Bromfield told me this transatlantic idyll while lunching at the Brown Derby. Seems Louis, while in Paris, was given a very attractive cigarette case by a very particular friend who said, "Now, Louis, when we meet in New York in three weeks, the first thing I want you to do is to offer me a cigarette from that case." Well, forgetful Bromfield lost the case just before he sailed, dashed over to Cartier's in Paris to buy one like it—found that it was not an ordinary piece, worth $500, and not another like it in the city. Distracted, Louis ordered a replica and dangled his feet three weeks so he could keep his word . . . At the Derby, too, I spied Sam Wood with a young beauty beside him. "Oh, you've found her," said I. "You bet I have. Isn't she a beauty?" And when I went over to congratulate her on getting the lead in "Our Town," Sam said, "But this is my daughter, who's going into 'The Man Who Came to Dinner' with Alex Woollcott. She toured for a year in 'You Can't Take It With You.'" "But Sam, she'd be perfect for 'Our Town'" "I know it—but she wants another season in the theater before she hits pictures." So Martha Scott, who played "Our Town" on Broadway, also does the picture . . .

When I asked Maureen O'Hara about her rumored divorce she said, a la Will Rogers, "I only know what I read in the papers. As a matter of fact, I don't even get to read my husband's letters from Ireland—they're blacked out." And, alluding to her latest picture, "Bill of Divorcement," Maureen told me, "If anybody says my acting is like Katharine Hepburn's it will be purely accidental. I wouldn't see her picture before I made mine, because I wanted to bring a completely fresh characterization to the screen. But I saw it yesterday and it's wonderful" . . . Instead of putting daylight saving time into effect early in March, England and France will put their clock ahead an hour earlier in February—so they'll have more time in which to knock the daylights out of their enemy . . . And while Europe is setting back civilization a thousand years, our one hope is that for 1940 our greatest exports include wheat, cotton and WAR MONGERS!

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Jan. 23 (INS).—Talked with Hal Wallis yesterday and he told me that he has bought "Jupiter Laughs," Dr. A. J. Cronin's new play. That's the one that all the boys were bidding for after the success of "The Citadel." Hal says it is one of the greatest doctor stories he ever read and that it should make a corking picture.

LOUELLA PARSONS

He'll cast Errol Flynn in the role of the doctor in charge of a hospital for nervous diseases. This will be the second time Errol has played a doctor, the first time in "Green Light." The play will have a Broadway run before the picture so much as starts. I tried to pin Hal down on the price, for I knew it would be plenty with all the bidding, but he refused to be cross-examined. So I did a little sleuthing and learned $80,000 was the price paid.

Greta Garbo arrives in New York today. Well, didn't I always say, in spite of denials, that Gaylord Hauser had put an engagement ring on her finger? She'll be met by Gaylord and together they will go to Florida and later possibly to Havana. So quiet did she keep her departure that when I tried to check the story at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, no one had heard anything about it. But I get it so straight that there's no reason why I shouldn't print it. Hauser makes no secret of his feeling for the Swedish star and she, as I told you, was on the telephone to him every day during the holidays—and that's a lot for the frugal Swede, who doesn't spend her nickels telephoning.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Louise Stanley and Addison Randall are marrying this week—and let's hope this time it takes; Vivien Leigh and Laurence Oliver walking bareheaded up Benedict Canyon road didn't arouse a ripple, probably because so few people saw them; later they dined with Jimmie Stewart and Olivia de Havilland at Perinos; Joan Blondell's mother is in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for observation; that was Elise Knox at the movies with Lew Ayres; the amusing act Reggy Gardiner put on at the Franco-British benefit has been added to "The Doctor Takes a Wife" scenario and Reginald will play it.

Bob Taplinger sprained his ankle playing tennis just the day before he took off on the plane for New York—he will limp his way to the preview of "The Fighting 69th;" Eleanor Powell and Merrill Pye, an Earl Carroll twosome; Ethel Butterworth has joined the Russell Birdwell agency as special socialite representative; all four of Bing Crosby's young hopefuls are battling the flu; Venita Oakie goes into the hospital this week to have two wisdom teeth extracted; Ray Milland and D. W. Griffith talking shop over the luncheon table; Mary Rogers and Eddie Grainger taking up where they left off at the Cafe Lamaze; Marlene Dietrich dining with Maria Erich Remarque before she went East.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Actor's Alp Stunt Results in 'Jam'

Tom Neal turned mountain climber recently and consequently, traffic along the Roosevelt Highway was held up for more than 20 minutes.

The young actor, with a day off, spied one of the steep cliffs adjoing the highway that he thought he could climb, stopped his car, and proceeded on the upward trek.

Many people stopped to watch the feat. Soon there were more. Finally, when Neal reached the top and looked down, it was to look upon a complete traffic tie-up of many cars with motorcycle policemen busy trying to clear the road.

Justice Wheat Refuses to Send Clerk Back to Illinois Prison

Jurist Declares John Herndon Never Has Been a Fugitive and Has Been Large Abiding Since His Parole

John Herndon, 821 Fifth street northwest, was freed yesterday of the fear of being returned to the Illinois prison he left 14 years ago.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the District Court, refused to send Herndon back to Illinois for a technical parole violation. Herndon never has been a fugitive, the Chief Justice said, and has been a law abiding citizen ever since he was paroled.

Herndon was arrested on a traffic charge, which brought him to the attention of Illinois authorities. They demanded his return to complete a 10 years to life sentence for a robbery in 1920, saying he stopped mailing reports to parole officers soon after he was freed in 1926.

Attorney Denny Hughes argued that such a technicality ought not to outweigh Herndon's good record. Mrs. R. W. Eddins, Herndon's sister, of Durham, N. C., testified that she wrote the Illinois officials to ask whether Harndon need continue his reports and received no reply.

Following Chief Jutice Wheat's ruling, Police Judge Walter J. Casey imposed and suspended a sentence of $50 fine or 30 days in jail on the traffic charge.

Herndon is a clerk at the Smithsonian Institution.

Jurors Question 4 Communists

Four men associated with Communist activities were questioned yesterday before the extraordinary grand jury investigating activities of foreign spies and propagandists in Washington.

William E. Browder completed his testimony yesterday morning. He is a brother of Earl Browder.

Also testifying were Carl Brodsky, who has been New York State campaign manager for the Communist Party; Avrum Landy, president of the company which published the Daily Worker, official Communist organ; Harry Monroe, treasurer of the Daily Worker Co.

Senate Committee to Study Plans for Aiding Finns Today

Brown's Compromise Loan Proposal Remains Undisclosed as Group Gets Ready to Hear From State Department

What the United States may do to aid Finland will be discussed today by the Senate Banking committee, considering a compromise bill enlarging Export-Import Bank funds for trade credits to foreign agencies.

Secretary of State Hull was scheduled to testify in executive session but may be prevented by illness. Committee spokesmen said the hearing will go forward in any event, with State Department witnesses.

Still undisclosed was a substitute bill drafted by Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, reputedly doubling the Export-Import Bank's $100,000,000 revolving fund, and limiting trade loans to any one nation, without specific mention of Finland.

Administration Senators may press for a vote following committee hearings. A majority of the banking committee was reported in favor of a resolution permitting the Export-Import Bank committee to advance further credits in South America and elsewhere, but without committing Congress to the Finn loan alone.

Under a Senate agreement reached last week any Finnish aid legislation reported by the Banking Committee must go next to the Foreign Relations Committee, less favorable to the loan.

As the proposed legislation is not confined to the Finnish situation, some Senators said yesterday the Foreign Relations Committee may not ask jurisdiction. But unless the latter relinquishes its claim on the bill, or the Senate by unanimous consent voids the agreement, any Banking Committee measure on the subject still must be referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman Wagner, of the banking group, discussed the proposed legislation with the President at lunch at the White House yesterday, but withheld comment. Earlier, Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones, who last week outlined the Export-Import Bank plan to the Banking Committee, conferred with the President.

Mr. Roosevelt told reporters any further developments on the Finnish aid question must come from Congress.

100 on Italian Ship Still Unreported

Genoa, Jan. 23. (AP).—One hundred passengers and crewmen from the burned Italian liner Orazio still were unreported tonight after two rescue ships disembarked some 500 injured, forlorn survivors.

Two-thirds of those missing were members of the crew, lost when the storm-tossed liner burned Sunday on her way to Barcelona and South America.

Nearly half the suruvivors suffered from burns or other injuries. Survivors said one lifeboat had been swamped as the blazing liner was abandoned and all occupants were feared lost while many more died from exposure.

Browder Files Appeal From 4-Year Term

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist leader under four-year sentence for passport fraud, filed notice of appeal today while his comrades took up the cry that his conviction was brought about by the Roosevelt Administration to silence a party that once had supported the New Deal.

There was every indication the efforts to vindicate Browder would provide a noisy and bitter month before the special election on February 6, at which Browder hopes to be elected to Congress.

Committee to Study Orders of Allies

President Roosevelt has created a special committee headed by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to study European war orders in this country and to make sure that they do not interfere with the U. S. defense program or the needs of private business, the White House announced yesterday.

The committee plans an extensive first-hand study of the problems involved and is particularly interested in protecting this Nation's warplane expansion program.

Mr. King To The Rescue

Washingtonians are again in debt to Senator King, who habitually rallies to the support of this disfranchised community on the not infrequent occasions when something is being "slipped over."

It is the mysterious plot to oust the District health officer which now very properly interests the chairman of the Senate District Committee. He is not discussing the technical qualifications of Dr. Ruhland. But he is taking issue with the backstairs and wholly offensive effort to force a change through a section covertly inserted in the pending reorganization bill.

And Senator King takes issue on grounds of principle which are vital to everyone who wishes to see a larger measure of self-government granted to the city which is the Capital of the American democracy. "I am opposed," he says, "to the United States Public Health Service having anything to do with selecting the District health officer, as I am opposed to any other Federal bureau having anything to do with selecting any other department head in the District."

Senator King attacks the notorious Section 209 because it would so clearly reverse the whole effort to emancipate Washington from its servile political status. But that is not the only important reason for liquidating the current plot without further delay.

When the District Medical Society meets tonight its members will have the high duty of considering what Section 209 implies in the way of degrading professional standards. They will, undoubtedly, consider what the plan means in subordinating medicine to politics. And they should be willing to make some statement comparing the open record of Dr. Ruhland with the secret scheming of those who, rather too cleverly, are trying to knife him in the back.

Aiding A Racket

Every legislator serving the District of Columbia and 21 States with ineffective small-loan statutes ought to read William Trufant Foster's pamphlet entitled "Loan Sharks and Their Victims," just published by the Public Affairs Committee. In brief space Mr. Foster has exposed one of the oldest, most lucrative and most shameful rackets in the country.

In a vague way most people realize that thousands of families in desperate circumstances are mulcted each year by unscrupulous money lenders. Mr. Foster supplants such vague impressions with concrete evidence. And the facts he presents are far more disturbing to anyone with a public conscience than are loose charges and rumors.

A majority of the States now have relatively effective laws controlling the small-loans business. Nevertheless, Mr. Foster concludes that the sharks "are still reaping illegal profits of at least $100,000,000 a year." Interest charges which they exact from the poor, in some cases exceed 1,000 per cent a year. Apparently the standard rate collected by these racketeers is about 240 per cent. Since loans are made only to those desperately in need, this fact alone suggests the misery, the despair and poverty that follow in the wake of the loan shark.

Washingtonians will not be inclined, however, to concentrate their sympathy on the resident of Dallas who paid $1,053 in nine years on a loan of $20. Citizens of the District who fall into the clutches of loan sharks fare no better than those of any backward State. For the local statute is almost wholly inoperative. It permits such meager profits on small personal loans that legitimate companies cannot serve the borrowers most susceptible to exploitation. They are driven into the arms of unscrupulous, illegal lenders.

The sharks are bitter foes of legislation designed to permit legitimate companies to operate in this field. Mr. Foster cites various instances where they have attempted to bribe legislators and where they have used well-intentioned citizens as cat's-paws. They are adept at arousing indignation over proposals to legalize 24 or 36 per cent interest on very small loans, because they wish to continue charging 240 per cent outside the law.

"Even more indicative of the far-flung undercover influence of the high-rate lenders," writes Mr. Foster, "is the fact that they still operate in the District of Columbia, over which Congress has complete control." They have been able to defeat several constructive small-loans bills by appealing to the dislike of legislators for high interest rates. So the District is left with a "dead-letter" law, and the sharks continue in business because desperate individuals frequently have to borrow money at any price.

Some members of Congress may be surprised to learn that they have played into the hands of the 240-per cent lenders. Voteless Washington can only hope that their indignation will become sufficiently intense to bring about enactment of the long-delayed small-loans bill.

The Browder Sentence

There is not the slightest doubt of the guilt of Earl Browder in the criminal offense of making a false statement in obtaining a passport. There is equally no doubt, although this was not the major point at issue, that prior to the commission of this crime, in 1934, Browder had obtained passports fraudulently. The evidence against the Communist leader was overwhelming; the jury took only 45 minutes to declare him guilty, and that verdict, as Judge Coxe noted, was "the only one possible."

There is, furthermore, little doubt that Browder aroused justified prejudice against himself by his inept defense. His insistence that the charges against him were purely "technical" and "frivolous" was as absurd as his later statement that "my conviction is part of the Administration's drive toward war." Fritz Kuhn, that other and very similar "ordinary small-time forger," might have said the same with equal lack of relevancy.

As a matter of fact Browder, in the long and muddled harangue to the jury which Judge Coxe patiently let him make, completely gave away his own case. He argued, quite correctly, that "there is no such thing in law as the illegal entry of an American citizen into the United States." But he seemed blissfully unaware that this very fact makes false statements in the obtaining of a passport a very serious matter. The privileged status which possession of an American passport conveys on the bearer itself makes fraud in the obtaining of such a document much more than a misdemeanor.

Nonetheless there seems something excessive in the sentence of four years imprisonment, and $2,000 fine, inflicted on Browder. It is true that this, in each respect, was but half the maximum possible. But it is equally true that the United States attorney, from whom leniency was not to be expected, asked the court to impose a total sentence of only five years and $2,000 fine. The judge might properly have shaved this recommendation more substantially.

To have done so would have been in the best interests of justice, which is always more impressive when it is tempered with the quality of mercy. Nothing is gained and much may be endangered if it can be argued with any show of reason that the courts fail to use self-restraint in the exercise of their enormous power. And in the Browder case that will be argued by many who are not Communists.

The Communist reaction is immaterial. Both as individuals and as a political party that group is now utterly discredited throughout the United States. Precisely because of that, however, it would have been very much in order to let the unimpressive American leader of this riffraff off more easily. The wise words spoken by the judge in the comparable case of Fritz Kuhn recur to mind. In sentencing the Bund leader to 2½ years, when 30 years might have been imposed, Judge Wallace said he had no thought of imposing "a cumulative sentence and making a martyr of him."

Musical Suicide

Nothing could have been less opportune than the demand of the musicians of the National Symphony Orchestra for pay increases that would augment next season's budget by $27,000. In the face of this insistence the orchestra association has thrown up its hands and canceled its plans for raising the sustaining fund rather than send its volunteer workers into a campaign doomed in advance to failure.

In the nine years since its foundation the National Symphony has shown a steady and indeed astonishing improvement. The time seemed not too distant when its performances would bear comparison with those of the best orchestras in the land. For this the musicians themselves deserve much of the credit. It is no disparagement to the labors of Dr. Kindler and of his concertmaster, Mr. Taylor, to say that no orchestra can be better than the best that its members are willing to give.

Evidently the musicians now feel their work has merited a greater tangible reward. It is, however, not a question of what is deserved but of what is possible. No symphony orchestra is self-supporting, and the National Symphony exists upon a far more precarious form of subsidy than many others. It has no endowments and there are few large contributors. The life of the National Symphony is dependent primarily on the continued interest and generosity of some 6,000 subscribers, many of them in very modest circumstances.

Of this the musicians ought to be aware. They must also realize that this year the demands upon private charity are being enormously multiplied and that the tendency in such times as these is to consider symphonic music a luxury.

Barring some well-nigh providential intervention, the intransigeance of the musicians can have only this result: There will be less employment for them next season, and Washington will be deprived of one of the most promising and most valuable elements in its cultural life.

On Keeping Company

When the Dies Committee made public the local membership and mailing list of the American League for Peace and Democracy, last October, the apparent purpose was to pillory a large number of Federal employes because of the company they kept.

None of these individuals was actually accused of being a Communist by Mr. Dies, who said "There is no evidence to this effect." The offense seemed to be that nine months after the committee had branded the American League for Peace and Democracy as a Communist front organization, Government employes affiliated with it continued to permit their names to remain on its membership rolls or mailing list.

Congressman Dies now finds himself hoist by his own petard. The charge of "guilty by association," which his committee has frequently and recklessly made, is now being leveled against him. He is accused of having knowingly participated in a number of meetings organized by individuals and groups suspected of harboring un-American views.

Of course this would not mean that Congressman Dies is a Fascist or an anti-Semite, a Christian Front adherent or even a Silver Shirtwaist. But in view of his attitude toward those associated with radical organizations, Chairman Dies, the investigator of un-American activities, has a good case against Martin Dies as a fellow traveler.

Indeed, others besides Congressman Hook, of Michigan, will wonder whether Mr. Dies' friendly association with elements clearly deserving his committee's attention will explain why some of these individuals and organizations have so far escaped investigation. The Dies Committee, having been voted funds for another year, can only dissipate these suspicions by showing an even-handed impartiality in ferreting out un-American activities whether on the Right or the Left.

A Lincoln Memorial

When it came to a showdown between the world premiere and the film itself, the movie of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" won hands down. That is a point on which even the critics were unanimously agreed. Neither searchlights nor celebrities could successfully distract attention from the highly realistic portrayal of the formative years of one of America's most beloved heroes.

The historical narrative must rely for effect as much on the associations it conveys as on the plot itself. Without knowledge of the sequel the drama of Lincoln's early life would have little meaning. But at a time when current problems seem at least as complex as those of the Civil War period, a faithful presentation of even part of the Lincoln saga carries an enormous impact.

Many will agree with Mrs. Roosevelt, who noted in her column that she was especially impressed by the use of Lincoln's own words. Certainly two of the most moving and best acted scenes are Lincoln's two speeches, the "House Divided" debate and the farewell to his neighbors in Springfield, both using the simple and eternal sentences as this great orator really spoke them.

This general fidelity to detail, however, made more of an anticlimax the glaring anachronism which has "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" sung several weeks before the outbreak of the Civil War and months before the fighting which inspired its composition by Julia Ward Howe.

The Popgun Peril

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Is law and order or world peace safeguarded by dumping a load of toy guns into the river? We're law-abiding and peace-loving, but we can't believe there will be any result from this action, just committed by order of the supervisor of the East St. Louis WPA toy shop, except disappointment among youngsters.

A make-believe gun is as much a part of boyhood's rightful treasures as a sled or a football, and about as malign an influence. We realize there is a Nation-wide movement, led by perturbed worriers, to outlaw the popgun, and the charge is made that playing with toy weapons leads to a desire to handle the real thing. Well, probably every criminal did play with toy guns in youth, but so did virtually every bank president, pastor and philanthropist. So what? If sale or possession of a wooden pistol becomes a penal offense, there will be just that much more fun for Junior to carve one from a chunk of wood, as a goodly proportion are made, anyway.

Disarm the ancient game of cops and robbers? Sissify the pioneer sport of cowboys and Indians? Forbid youngsters to keep up with current events by re-enacting the wars their elders talk about? Let's be realistic and face the truth—crime waves and wars aren't caused by boys playing with toy guns. The sentimentalists will have to look further if they want to be constructive agencies rather than spoil-sports.

Traffic Enforcement

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your article today by Howard Wentworth about automobile speeders is good. It is time to reduce the terrible number of fatal and ther accidents very materially and this can be done if the regulations are rigidly enforced as to reckless drivers.

The traffic authorities should curb these people and enforce all of the regulations much more thoroughly than they have in the past. Many excellent suggestions have been made recently but the most important one is to enforce the regulations about speeding and reckless driving generally, including the one about taking the pedestrians' right of way at intersections and the one referring to the speed allowed in alleys and stopping before leaving the alley. It is extremely dangerous to dash through alleys clear out to the curb without stopping.

Of course, pedestrians are very foolish when they pay no attention to traffic lights, etc., but the automobiles are the instruments that injure and kill people.

I make the suggestion that when an automobilist strikes a pedestrian his driver's permit be taken away from him and his car be impounded for a long period. Prosecution in the courts should also be secured.

If the party struck by the car refuses to prosecute the driver, the police or some District official should prosecute, and not allow the case to be dropped without a proper trial in court. Until we really mean to stop these killings and take the necessary steps to accomplish this result they will go on. G. T. CHASE.

Fortifying Guam

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Of what are our national leaders and naval officials thinking, promulgating a power drive for greater military expenditures? Where is the need, what is the goal; what will be the ultimate result to the Nation, to the world?

The Navy has a case in its efforts to decrease the vulnerability of the Panama Canal. But where will fortifying Guam get us, the building of monstrous warships, other than additional irritations?

Against whom must we defend ourselves? Certainly not the present combatants. By the time anything is settled these nations will be exhausted. If peace should come first it is doubtful if their respective leaders would be able to swing the people into another war.

Even if Germany came through fresh and vigorous and could revamp the Soviet forces into an efficient fighting machine, what would the Baltics and the Balkans be doing while these aggressors focused their eyes on the western hemisphere Or, if Japan should face east, there would be China again, or still, at her back, and the Soviets would be some place in the picture.

In the meantime we still have able statesmen around. Are we going to so conduct our affairs that we will be the lone wolf of the world, so that there will develop a coalition of many nations against us?

If we, the most powerful neutral in the world, the most powerful nation in the world, have to barricade ourselves and show fear and distrust there will be inculcated what hopelessness and defeatism in the lesser neutrals. RAMSAY NEVITT.

Finland Also Wants Peace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am both terrified and dismayed by your recent editorials urging the President and Congress to throw caution to the winds and authorize millions of dollars in loans to Finland.

Terrified because I have been brought up (I was born during the last war) with the idea that our entrance into the first World War was a horrible mistake—and that it was mainly caused by loans to one side, loans which had to be "secured" by a follow-up of men.

Dismayed because I have just seen our President suggest the slashing of appropriations for relief, housing, health, farmers and youth—slashes which mean hardship and misery for millions of American citizens. And I cannot reconcile these slashes (made, ostensibly at least, to balance the budget) with proposals to unbalance that budget almost immediately for the benefit of a foreign nation.

Furthermore, I cannot understand why, after weeks and weeks of debate on a neutrality bill which was to have been airtight, there are all these admonitions to cast aside the "hypocrisy" of neutrality. I don't believe that the majority of the American people are in favor of such moves. We want peace—and we also want jobs for the unemployed, housing for slum dwellers, health for the sick, aid for the aged and for the underprivileged youth.

So far it seems as though our Senators and Congressmen are more aware of our needs and desires than your editors. I am one who sincerely hopes they remain so.

In Praise of Dr. Ruhland

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of the now admittedly illegitimate recommendation of removing Dr. Ruhland, the District's Health Officer, may I add an emphatic "no" to any such illogical proposal? To dispense with the services of Dr. Ruhland, who has conclusively proven that he is the best man for the position by successfully guiding the activities of the Health Department through a labyrinth of confusion to a clear and enviable position in the annals of health in the District.

Unquestionably, all of Washington owes Dr. Ruhland a debt of gratitude for his untiring efforts to improve health conditions here, which, incidentally, according to a recent article, "have reached a new high in 1939." To disrupt the continuity of this progress for a diaphanous reason is almost criminal in a matter of such vital importance as the health of a city.

From all accounts, it is evident the plan to replace Dr. Ruhland is merely a desire to graft another political plum to the tree of sustenance for "deserving Democrats." Everyone in the District should vigorously oppose any such move, and it is indeed gratifying to note the support given to Dr. Ruhland by various civic organizations.

On Taxing Large Fortunes

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please page Bob Ripley! Your correspondent, T. H. Russell informs us that labor can function without capital, which is really equivalent to saying that an auto can run without gas. Mrs. Russell then goes on to say that stocks and bonds would not turn a wheel. Well, doesn't the money these bonds represent—money saved by the people—build our factories, run our trains, light our homes, thereby creating millions of good jobs at good pay for armies of men and women?

T. H. Russell also advocates taxing all incomes 100 per cent "above a rational amount." Just what constitutes "rational" sums? Here relativity enters the picture, not to mention the "human" angle.

As a matter of fact, huge fortunes are taxed tremendously and they should be taxed. Nevertheless, nothing has happened to indicate that the "struggling worker" would not accumulate millions if given the opportunity. The "take from the haves to give the have nots" theory never made sense and never will unless human nature undergoes a fundamental change.

Capitalism, of course, is an imperfect system of government, but what has been devised in the old world that is as good? Certainly Utopia will never be established until Gabriel blows the old trumpet! HORSE SENSE.

Washington, Jan. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mrs. T. H. Russell in an interesting letter questions the advantage to the working people of great private fortunes. As she says, taxing away the unspendable excess incomes of the rich would create employment and help balance the budget.

The real trouble is to get such laws passed. The people who have incomes from $10,000 to $50,000 do most of the saving for investment. It is not because they do not need more things that they save, but because they wish to get rich, independent, sure of a living. They are keeping money out of circulation because there are no good investments for their savings. Money is being saved faster than business can use it.

It is incomes of this class principally that need to be taxed more heavily for the sake of business recovery. But here's the rub. All the Congressmen and Senators are in this class; and if it is left to them, thrift will not be discouraged, even if thrift ruins the country.

When a candidate can get more votes by promising to vote for higher income taxes than he can by accepting help from wealthy backers, there will be hope of solving the unemployment problem. The non-owners need to be less considerate of the owners and begin to think about their own interests. The Townsend people have the right idea. Make the candidates promise. Some of them will keep their promises. A. CRAIG.

Washington, Jan. 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to Mrs. Russell's letter of January 11, I'm curious about two things:

1. She states that "labor is essential to capital, but capital is not essential to labor." Since when has labor worked without pay?

2. How long would Mrs. Russell stay in business and employ people were she taxed 100 per cent?

Critique Of Impure Reason

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The philosopher Immanuel Kant was well detached. He died on February 12, 1804, and the battle of Friedland did not take place until June 14, 1807. The "Kritik der reinen Vernunft" had been published some 25 years before, in 1781.

Could it be Hegel that you were thinking of? Hegel was at Jena at the time of the battle of Jena (October 14, 1806). He might have been working on the day of the battle at the Phaenomenologie des Geistes. But that was not merely philosophical detachment; Hegel was glad that the French had come; he was looking forward with satisfaction to the probable overthrow of the Prussians. C. B. KIDD.

Night Worries Of A Farmer

(The following was taken down verbatim from the account of a 13-year-old boy.)

When people go to bed at night and are running a farm they've got plenty to worry them. Did they stop up the little pigs with their mother? Did one get loose? Is it in a mudhole? And did he get drowned in the mudhole? Has the sow caught her foot on a piece of wire left in the pen?

Did you finish taking all the rocks out of the pen? Have they rooted out all the straw and are they cold? Has the top of fodder pen fallen in on them? Have the bigger pigs been left out in the rain and will they get rheumatism? Pigs root your best pasture land if they get a chance. Then you have to ring them right away if you want any grass left.

Cows are dumber than pigs, almost anything can happen to them. When coming home from a movie you are always worried whether or not you'll get to bed right away. About 300 yards from the gate you usually see a couple of cows out in the road.

You say, "Well, it's certainly lucky it's a full moon out tonight," because you're going to have to drive them all the way up to the barnyard because they're too dumb to climb back over the fence the way they got out.

They said mother made $600 on pigs, but it wasn't made, it was just taken in—not all profit—about 2 cents profit, and all used up anyway on repairing fences, and getting 2 tons of lime, and machinery repaired, and repairing broken wagon-bed, making new hayframe, fixing a broken wheel, getting horses shod, getting pig rung, paying veterinary bills, repairing the drill for sowing lime—I guess that's used up 600 already.

My father says a farm is a rich man's hobby—"what you make on the peanut you lose on the banan." And after paying for all those things you owe about 200 more, and mother makes some money at the social service and puts all that into the farm as well.

You are also worried if the horse will kick the little calf, and if the calf has lost its mother will she be able to find it without first falling in the creek and maybe breaking its leg, because if it does break its leg it will cost from 20 to 50 veterinary bill more.

A horse is a much smarter animal than a cow, one of the smartest barnyard animals there is except when there is a fire or barns caving in and any other disaster happens and then they're the dumbest. Chickens and ducks and all other animals will get out of the way except the horse.

According to books they're the smartest, but I can't think how. In the first place a horse won't try to get over a fence if he knows he can't jump. They're not stubborn. Mostly the trouble happens when a horse is in foal. The night when the colt is supposed to be born you are most worried because colts are very valuable animals and also horses and they often die.

About an hour before the colt is born you usually send for a veterinary, which is an expensive $5, to take care of the horse and when the veterinary has waited an hour and a quarter and nothing has arrived he will get disgusted and start smoking violently one cigarette after another, and throwing a lighted cigarette down it will catch onto some hay and while you are fainting the veterinary is doing his best to put it out.

He has now been here an hour and a half and the colt is born. In another half hour you go to bed and wonder if the mother has enough milk because if she doesn't have you will have to feed it on bottles and that is a lot of trouble.

When going to bed at night you worry about the puppy that arrived that day because it will howl and scream all night away from its mother. At 12:30 it will howl. You will have to give it some milk to make it stop. Since it is a chilly night and it won't stay in its box you will have to take it to bed with you.

The dog licks you in the face and then you put it at the foot of the bed inside the covers and being only a puppy he chews your toes and I give her a slight kick which makes her quiet and we both go to sleep until about 5:30 in the morning when she is biting at my toes again. I yawn and get up and I know she's hungry so I get her some more milk.

When I get back I can't find her because she has fallen out of the bed and crawled under it. First I look down under the covers and find that it is all wet and I know what has happened, so I am very mad and begin looking for her. I look under the chair and then under the bed and I see her chewing the end of the rug.

I pick her up and put her out. She has done all she wants to do, so she wants to come right in. I give her milk and by that time it's time to get up. This happened for three nights and of course now she barks in the middle of the night sometimes.

You always begin your worrying at night. You hardly ever worry in the daytime. You never have to worry about chickens or hardly ever—but you really worry about ducks, which makes up for the chickens.

They're usually dying all the time. Weasels get in the coop and if they get in they usually kill at least eight ducks by sucking the blood out of them—the jugular vein—and if weasels don't get in and if it's raining some of the water is sure to get in and drown a few.

Three were drowned, rats ate two and the weasels ate eight this year. Somebody coming in from the movies usually runs over a big one—three this year. If you raise a brood of 300 to 500 little chickens they usually freeze to death or burn up in the brooder house. Two had gotten in a corner and froze to death. Three got too near the stove and burned up.

So you see a farmer has plenty to worry about.

THEODORE CLEMENT MOORE.

Coughlin Showdown

BOTH THE Government and the newspapers for years have handled Father Coughlin far too gently, but now that he has identified himself with the so-called Christian Front he has called for a showdown. On the other side, Robert Jackson, the new Attorney General, appears to have accepted the challenge in saying that the Federal investigation would cover the activities of any individual or group who shall have aided, financed or incited the 17 men arrested in New York on charges of conspiring to wage an armed revolution. So we seem to be in for a hilarious brawl in the course of which anyone who questions the activities of this priest will do well to wear his oldest clothes and be reconciled to the necessity of burning them afterward.

Coughlin fights like Huey Long and Adolf Hitler, and Huey summed up his rules of controversy in a sentence: "Never bother a porcupine unless you expect to get some feathers on you"—a polite paraphrase of a quainter and much more pungent remark which was made famous in Washington by ex-Senator Jim Watson, of Indiana.

Leading Clerics Denounced Coughlin

IN CONTEMPLATING the activities of this man it should be remembered that any American citizen has a right to be anti-Semitic and that there can be no law requiring any person to embrace the Christian religion or any other. Coughlin may be responsible to the Catholic Church for his utterances and extrapastoral activities, but the law can't punish him for bad taste, bad faith, recklessness or lack of charity.

On the other hand, if the inquiry should reveal evidence of activity which seemed to violate the law neither the church nor individual members of the faith would have any right to regard prosecution as hostility to the church. Some of the best Catholic clergymen denounce Coughlin and, in discussing him, refer to him by his last name, pointedly neglecting to use the title of "Father."

I have thought that the newspapers were negligent or leery—more likely the latter—because it has seemed to be fear of a boycott that has deterred the decent journalism of the country from doing a duty imposed on it by the privilege enjoyed by a free press. It is too bad, and a reproach to our journalism, that it was left to a little Communist sheet to conduct an investigation in Detroit and Wall street to come up with an expose which may have been truthful but which, from its evil surroundings, absorbed the characteristic odor and color of slander.

Dies Tiptoed Around Coughlin

CHRISTIANITY, in the religious sense of the word, is no part of the belief of the so-called Christian Front, and Semitism, or Jewishness, is not associated with Bolshevism or Communism. In the meaning of the so-called Christian Front all white persons who are not Jewish are Christians and all Jews are Bolsheviks or Communists. They are not interested in the Negroes.

But within this month Adolf Hitler, having made a military and world-revolutionary alliance with Bolshevism, abruptly discovered that the Jews were not Communists now, but capitalists, and declared his mission to exterminate Jewish capitalism within the present century. Hitler would not be called a Christian, however, and there are other anti-Semitics, including men under Christian vows and attired in the cloth, no more worthy to be so called.

The Dies Committee should have treated Coughlin just as it treated Earl Browder, but tiptoed around him for fear that he would cry up a holy war. But his record would show that the party or lobby which he formed in the 1936 campaign, in the same period when he was speaking with ominous insinuation of a resort to bullets instead of ballots and when he was escorted by an armed guard in uniform, was a dictatorial organization of which he was the leader with unquestionable authority. His program was to elect a stooge President who was to be responsible to the people who put him in the White House, and the will of the people was to be interpreted and expressed to that President only by the people's leader, to wit, himself.

Press Feared Charge Of 'Church Attack'

THE CONSTITUTION of his organization plainly shows his dictatorial ambition, and even if he had used the hearings of the Dies Committee as a soap box he would have showed up himself and his plan. The contitution was published in full in the Cleveland papers in the summer of 1936.

If Coughlin had worn the cloth of any other religious faith than the Catholic he would have had an open fight on his hands from most of the American press years ago, and the delicacy with which his activities have been ignored all this time, although it may be a tribute of confidence in the Christianity and citizenship of the rest of the Catholic clergy, is open to a suspicion of less honorable motives. My version is that the press passed him up for fear that Catholics would regard an attack on Coughlin as an attack on the church.

By Dorothy Thompson

Unpublicized Items in Dies Report

I OWE the Dies committee an apology. In making it, I wish, however, to raise some further questions. In my column of January 17 I asked—apropos the arrest of 17 members of the Christian Front—how it came about that the Dies committee had not discovered the American public in its report.

I based my statement on the summaries of the report carried in the American press. These summaries listed the names of the organizations that had been investigated. They named the Communist Party and a considerable number of its "front" organizations as well as 11 trade unions in which Communist influence was strong.

But, on the Fascist side, the only organization named in either the Times or the Herald Tribune's description of the report was the German-American Bund.

The public was therefore not informed that the Dies committee discovered that the Nazis are operating in this country with the same sort of "front" organizations that the Communists have.

Whereas, the Communist "front" organizations are mostly camouflaged under the label of leagues of friends of the "workers" or of "democracy," the Nazi fellow travelers are camouflaged under the names of "Christian" or "patriotic" or "American." Otherwise, the setup and the technique are the same.

Christian Front Was Mentioned

I DO NOT KNOW whether the summaries of the Dies report were put out in the form of releases, or whether they were prepared too hastily by people who had not carefully studied the report; I do not know why the public accounts of the report were so weighted against the Communists and their affiliates. But I do apologize to my readers for a careless piece of journalism.

The Christian Front was brought into the testimony of none other than Mr. Fritz Kuhn. (Page 16 of the report, union calendar No. 5, Report No. 1476, 76th Congress, House of Representatives), and I advise my readers to send for the report and read it for themselves, in toto.

That petty racketeering mimic of bigger and better racketeers testified that the German-American bund had "worked sympathetically with other organizations throughout the United States, and cooperates with them. Kuhn testified that some of the organizations are the Christian Front, the Christian mobilizers, the Christian crusaders, the social justice society, the Silver Shirt Legion of America, the Knights of the White Camelia, the various fascist, white Russian, and Ukrainian organizations."

The report further tells us (on the testimony of Mr. Kuhn) that the standard reading in the Bund camps is Hitler's "Mein Kampf," Pelley's booklets and his publication "Liberation;" the books of Julius Streicher (the perverted and sadistic drink-the-blood-of-Jews leader of the Nazis in Nuremberg, who became even too strong medicine for Hitler sometime ago), and the Rev. Father Coughlin's publication, "Social Justice."

The report further finds that in these camps where Chuck Coughlin's publication is the chief "American" reading matter besides Pelley's "Liberation," "you are taught nothing concerning American institutions and ideals, are encouraged to be extremely critical of the United States and its Government. Uniforms are in every respect similar to those of the Hitler youth movement, and the Nazi salute was the accepted gesture of greeting." (Page 17.)

One Bund Leader Has Fled From U. S.

WE ARE ALSO informed that one bund leader on the West Coast—Arnold Risse, has since fled the country; and we are given the names of people who participated in an "anti-Communist" convention in bund headquarters in Los Angeles. The reports says, "the convention was in no real sense an anti-Communist convention, but rather another of a series of attempts to unite some of the various forces of intolerance—racial hatred, naziism and fascism—in order to achieve greater influence in the United States."

We also learn of a "mysterious international figure who has since fled the country," namely "Mrs. Leslie Fry, alias Pauita Louise de Shishmareff." (Page 18.) "Mrs. Fry" was leader of the "Militant Christian Patriots," and her collaborators were James True, George Deatherage, Gerald Winrod, Robert Edmundson and Fritz Kuhn.

Mr. Pelley, from whom I received a letter some time back, has gone into hiding somewhere—"either in or out of the United States," in order to escape a subpoena (Page 20).

Now, the role of Coughlin in respect to this whole movement is difficult to define. Coughlin is one of the greatest squirmers above the ground level of the earthworm. He manages to be a power behind the throne, while openly allying himself with no specific organization. (That, at least, is his claim.)

His publication, "Social Justice," is quoted continually by the publications of all the other rabble-rousing Fascist organizations. His anti-Semitism becomes incitement to violence, only when it has left his mouth and been transferred to several other and less cautious mouths.

Indeed, he oilily repeats that he is a friend of all religious Jews, while publishing anti-Semitic matter put out by Nazi propagandists inside Germany (notably the World Service), which matter is also the base of the propaganda of Mr. Pelley—he of the Houdini disappearing act—of Edmondson and Deatherage.

No Fiery Protests Of Nazi Pogroms

HIS DEFENSE of religious Jews has not led him to any fiery protests about what is happening to the deeply religious Jews of Poland—stronghold of Jewish orthodoxy and piety—under the Nazis!

On August 14 Social Justice published a statement of Chuck Coughlin, in which he, "as a clergyman," finds it necessary in order "to protect his usefulness," not to be associated with "the Christian Front." But he finds he can support "a Christian Front," whose "advertised principles and whose officers propose to defend Christianity against the unjust aggressions of anti-Christian forces."

In other words: Include me out, boys, because it will impair my usefulness as a public speaker, etc., and isn't becoming to a clergyman.

Coughlin is his own "front" organization for the elements that are trying to upset the order of this country by inciting race against race, and by spreading terror and confusion. Long ago they resorted to brachial violence—beatings on the street. Now, some of them are indicted for planning organized and armed violence. Coughlin is as much their fellow-traveler as the League for Peace and Democracy is a fellow-traveler of the Communist Party—which it is.

Coughlin Reticent On Finland Subject

AND BIT BY BIT, the anti-Communists and the Communists approach each other in this country, as they have already approached each other abroad. They work the two sides of the street, the one on the left side and the other the right. At the moment the whole kit and kaboodle of them are declaiming against "war"—by which is meant that they are declaiming against Great Britain and France, the last refuges of some sort of law and order in Europe.

On the subject of Finland, Coughlin, who was eloquent for Franco as Europe's savior from the Reds, is peculiarly reticent. It puts him somewhat on the spot . . . or would, if his skating abilities were not so notable.

Coughlin is a misfortune. He is a misfortune to this country, and he is a misfortune to his church. For some of the finest and most constructive thinking in the world today is coming from Catholic intellectuals. There has seldom been a time when Christianity had greater attractive power, not merely as a means of personal salvation, but as a social program.

In both the Protestant and Catholic churches movements are apparent which are of the greatest significance for the future.

It remains for Coughlin to debauch and distort ideas and ideals that others of his faith are trying to hold aloft.

And it is gratifying to this column that a large part of the approving letters that came to our office, apropos the first column on Coughlin, came from Catholics.

Footnote On Senator Borah

ONCE AT LEAST, President Roosevelt and Senator Borah had a long talk about their efforts in behalf of progressive government. That was on February 7, 1936, only a few days after Borah had opened his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, with the avowed determination of throwing out the old leadership and liberalizing his party.

Through mutual friends Borah sent a friendly message to the White House. The gist of it was that he wanted the President to know that whatever the outcome of Borah's campaign for the Presidential nomination he would make no direct attack on the President during the 1936 campaign.

The President promptly invited Borah to lunch in the seclusion of his office. Senator Borah came out smiling, but did not disclose what they had talked about.

Politically, the meeting was helpful to them both. To the Republicans it was a hint that Borah might bolt. The President, faced with the threat of a bolt by the right wing of his own party, was eager to compensate for the anticipated loss by strengthening his position among the Republican progressives.

Efforts To Liberalize G. O. P. Commended

WHAT WAS NOT realized at the time was that the two men really got down to brass tacks. The President said that the continuation of liberal government depended on getting all the liberals under one tent. He commended Senator Borah for his efforts to liberalize the G. O. P., but expressed doubt that he could get very far. The Democratic Party, the President thought, had become the better vehicle for progressive government—as the record of the last several years had shown.

Senator Borah agreed that under the President's leadership the Democratic Party had many fine progressive achievements to its record. But, he felt, the dead weight of conservatism in the Democratic Party in the South, and also some of the city machines in the North, were serious handicaps to the President's efforts to make the Democratic Party a continuing agency of progressive government.

The President agreed that the conservatism of the Democratic leaders in the South was a drawback. He feared that with his patronage distributed, he might have a harder time with them in a second term. But he felt that if all the progressive strength could be mobilized it could dominate the Democratic Party, whereas there were not enough progressives left in the Republican Party to get control of it.

Declared Roosevelt A Great President

THIS WAS THE substance of their conversation on liberalizing the two parties, as Borah related it to me one afternoon during the Republican National Convention of 1936. It was the afternoon the platform committee was struggling with the stiff anti-monopoly plank he had insisted that it adopt. He already knew he had no chance at the Presidential nomination and had requested that morning that his name not be presented to the convention.

"Roosevelt has made a great President," he said. "If he had been a little more careful about the constitutionality of some of his measures there would be very little to criticize in his record."

When I reminded him of the NRA, which he fought from start to finish, he added that Roosevelt had got off on the "wrong track" there but that he did not regard the President's own social philosophy as favorable to monopolies. Since the demise of NRA he thought the Administration had been moving in the right direction on the monopoly question.

The Republican platform-makers had accepted part of Borah's anti-monopoly plank.

"But they have cut the heart out of it," he added. "I don't think they will put it back."

Adopted Democrats' Anti-Monopoly Plank

HE DID NOT seem angry or disappointed. He grinned as he handed me the full text of his plank, which had not been made public, and grinned as I read it. The deleted "heart," which was not restored, read:

"We favor a declaration by law of the conditions upon which corporations shall be permitted to engage in interstate trade, including, among other things, the prevention of holding companies beyond the second degree, of interlocking directors, of stock-watering, of discrimination in price, of price-fixing, and of all monopolistic practices which may be defined by law.

"We believe the Sherman anti-trust law has received a judicial construction depriving it of much of its efficacy, and we favor the enactment of legislation which will restore to the statute the strength which it previously possessed and which it has been deprived of by such interpretation."

The Borah anti-monopoly plank had been taken almost verbatim from the Democratic platform of 1912.

Borah's economic views savored of the first decade of the country. But he did not try to dodge the fact that great concentrations of economic power could be dealt with only by the national Government. He saw that private economic power had to be broken up or regulated. Within limits, he favored breaking it up, but where that seemed impracticable he did not shrink from regulation.

This is only a footnote. The passing of Borah is too great a loss to be summed up in a column. In him passes the most effectively liberal voice in the Republican Party. Are any new liberal voices arising to fill the void?

Power Overcharge In 2 States Placed At $85,000,000

By the Associated Press

An assertion power consumers in Pennsylvania and Maryland were overcharged more than $85,000,000 annually was made yesterday by Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi.

"What a pity we do not have a TVA on the Susquehanna River," Rankin said, adding:

"The record shows that in 1938 the American people were still overcharged $889,392,747 according to the TVA rates . . . and that the people of Maryland were overcharged $13,191,408 and the people of Pennsylvania $72,513,570 according to the TVA rates.

"These are the two States that use practically all the power generated at the Conowingo Dam. It is distributed through the Philadelphia Electric Co., and could be distributed at TVA yardstick rates without loss to legitimate investors.

Rankin submitted his figures to the House in defense of the Federal Power Commission and its 14-year-old investigation of the costs of the Conowingo project on the Susquehanna River near the Pennsylvania-Maryland border.

Another German-Russian Deal?

GERMANY AND RUSSIA make strange bedfellows. There is probably little love lost between them. But to believe that they are soon likely to fall out is to indulge in dangerously wishful thinking.

At least as long as the present European wars continue the force of necessity alone will keep Germany and Russia together and probably will bring them closer.

Except for the other, neither now has friends or allies in a world that each finds increasingly hostile. The deal with Moscow, followed by the attack on Poland, lost the Third Reich her former partners. Italy, Spain, Hungary, Japan all withdrew from the German orbit and went their separate ways.

For Russia, the German deal and the assault on Finland had an equally disruptive effect on old ties. She has lost the once considerable support she commanded as an unaggressive power preaching the doctrine that "peace is indivisible." Except for Germany she has no allies. Even Turkey, with whom she enjoyed such friendly relations from 1920 to 1939, must now be reckoned as among the potential enemies of the Soviet Union.

WHAT IS MORE, the fate of both the Hitler regime in Germany and the Stalin regime in Russia are now inextricably bound up with the war each is waging. It is impossible to conceive of a German defeat that would not automatically lead to the overthrow of the Fuehrer. A Russian defeat in Finland would, without question, have a similarly disastrous effect on the fortunes of the Red dictator.

In view of this situation it is entirely beside the point to examine current Russo-German relations from the viewpoint of the long-run interests of either nation. Thus, while there may be innumerable practical reasons why Germany can hardly be pleased with Russia's penetration into the Baltic, the possibility of her successful conquest of Finland and, perhaps, of a consequent Muscovite thrust in the direction of Sweden and Norway, they weigh less in the scales than the immediate necessity of preserving Russia's friendship.

Equally, historic reasons, manifested again and again during the centuries, would seem to preclude any favorable Russian attitude toward a German penetration of the Balkans and a German thrust in the direction of Istanbul and the Straits, yet immediate necessity may compel Stalin to sanction just such a development.

TO BE SURE, no one can speak with any certainty of what Germany and Russia may be planning to do. There is a possibility, however, and one which must not be lost to sight, that they are working out another deal in which Germany will help Russia in Finland in return for a freer hand in the Balkans. Just as the Brown and Red dictatorships partitioned Poland, so they may divide northern and southern Europe into spheres of influence, with Russia marking out the former for herself and Germany taking the southern sector.

The next weeks may show whether such an arrangement is actually being worked out. In the meantime there are some stray bits of evidence to indicate that some such deal is at least being contemplated in Berlin and Moscow.

IN THE FIRST place, there are reports from Finland to the effect that the Russians have tried to break Finnish morale by broadcasting that "the Germans are coming to help us and all Finns will be killed."

Germany has denounced these reports as Allied propaganda designed to create a rift between the Reich and Russia by forcing the Berlin government to make an invidious denial. But if the Russians have been making such broadcasts, the fact clearly suggests that Moscow is beginning to consider the advisability of asking for German assistance. And whether such assistance is direct or indirect, great or small, Russia would have to pay for it. In contrast to the situation that obtained at the time the Ribbentrop-Molotoff agreement was made, Russia in its relations with Germany is being thrust into the role of suppliant, Germany the one from whom aid has to be sought.

THERE ARE reports that Russia has already begun making concessions to the Reich, particularly in Poland.

One of the curious aspects of the partition of the latter country last year was that the Eastern Galician area, with its oil wells, was turned over to Russia, which suffers no shortage of oil, rather than to Germany which is desperately in need of it. It was also curious that Germany permitted Russia to extend her frontier to the borders of Hungary, a nation which hates communism like the plague.

Now, it appears, Germany has been given the right to police the railroad running from Cernauti, in Rumania, through Lwov and Jaroslaw (in Russian Poland) to German Silesia. With the Danube unnavigable at this time the road is indispensable to Germany as the artery over which grain and oil from Rumania must come. In the meantime there are reports of five additional German divisions having been sent to Slovakia, although for what purpose is not clear. And finally, there are rumors, that a rearrangement of the frontiers in Poland, so as to give Germany Eastern Galicia and Russia an additional stretch of territory to the west of her present holdings and including Warsaw, is in prospect.

All these rumors add up to something, although to just what is not yet clear. They do nonetheless reveal a further drift by Germany and Russia in the direction of greater cooperation. And that has ominous possibilities for the rest of Europe.

2 Agencies Fight for Control Of Federal Radio Activities

By Alfred Friendly.

A serious inter-agency controversy appears to be developing over where to lodge control of and responsibility for Government radio activity, it was revealed yesterday.

The dispute, smoldering, but not yet broken into flame, is between the Office of Education and the Office of Government Reports.

The issue is which of the two agencies should become the central Government establishment in charge of coordinating and supervising the daily increasing use by other Federal organizations of the air waves as a channel for dissemination of education and information.

Both agencies deny harboring "czaristic" ambitions to control the Government's radio activity or even that they want to expand their present radio functions. And the heads of both establishments—Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker and Director of Government Reports Lowell Mellett—are on cordial terms.

The fact is, however, that Government departments and offices are becoming increasingly interested in using the radio as a publicity medium. And by the nature of the radio publicity, as distinct from the "press release" technique, increased use will necessitate a central agency in a supervising and directing capacity.

One of two agencies would appear to be the logical establishment to assume this function.

Although funds for Mellett's radio service were transferred to the education Office by the second reorganization order last summer, the small staff doing the work has remained in the Reports office, and is still being paid from the transferred funds.

That Defense Tax

Dear Uncle Sam:

Inclosed find my check for $150 to cover the 10 per cent super tax for national defense purposes. I am now in such a condition from overtaxation that I need all the defense I can get.

I suppose you have your own idea about how to use my money, but I would like to make a few suggestions, inasmuch as it is my dough and I always like to know what is being done with it. Would you split it up and use half to defend the West Coast and half to defend the East? I have friends in both places.

And could you use my money for light cruisers? It's just a personal idiosyncrasy of mine. I like my cruisers light. Whatever you do, please don't use any of this $150 for submarines. I do not like submarines. I regard them as highly speculative and do not want my money invested in 'em. Besides, I regard submarines as inhumane and sneaky and I could not sleep well nights if I thought $150 of my hard-earned money was in one.

If you use my $150 in a lump sum to build forts, could you let me know where they are and send me some postcards showing how they look? I like forts. If I ever had to take it on the run for one, it would be nice to know I was a part owner.

Please do not use any of the $150 for bombs. If there is one thing I hate it is a bomb, and I want no part of one. Use somebody else's dough for bombs, please, as I do not like the thought of having a bomb, even when used on my worst enemy. Please do not use my dough for bombing planes, machine guns or bayonets, either.

If you use my $150 in part payment for a tank, I wish you would have the tank coprighted so toy makers could not infringe on it, as my kids got a load of toy tanks for Christmas and I have done nothing but trip over them ever since. I do not think a tank is the right kind of toy for a child, anyhow, although I prefer it to a bow and arrow or an air rifle.

Could you possibly take the trouble to see that my $150 goes to buy a general's horse? I like horses. I particularly like a horse that never gets to the front. And a general's horse never gets anywhere near it. This would make me feel better about my $150. (It would also make the horse and the general feel better.)

If you are not using horses in the next war, could you spend my $150 for bugles or flags or for more cloth in sailors' pants or something? Anyhow, will you please do what you can to ease my conscience, as this is the first time I have had the bee put on me for a direct contribution to war, and it makes me feel very funny? Yours defensively,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

P. S.—If the Army has any new chemical for exterminating cooties, use my dough for that.

The Story:

A $3,000,000 school building program, financed by District appropriations and Public Works funds, is nearing completion.

Three new buildings and five additions to present structures will be ready for occupancy next fall.

Included is the new Calvin Coolidge Senior High School, which will serve boys and girls in the Manor Park, Brightwood and Takoma Park areas. The building is completed with the exception of a girls' gymnasium. The Commissioners last week asked approval of a deficiency item of $16,000 with which to build the gymnasium.

The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Junior High School and Library, at Seventh and I streets southwest, is about 40 per cent completed. It is due for completion August 29.

The other new school is the Cuno Rudolph Elementary, which is about two-thirds completed. It occupies the lot at the northwest corner of Second and Ingraham streets northwest.

Additions were built to the Crosley Noyes, Bunker Hill, Smothers, Kingsman, and the M. M. Washington schools.

College Man's Affair With Girl of Easy Virtue Leads to Marriage Demands; Should He Oblige?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college student 23 years of age. For several months I have been infatuated with a local girl a year my junior, and several times during our association we have been intimate. Now, she informs me that she is pregnant as a consequence of our intimacy. We agreed that the only thing to do was to get married. But I have since learned from unimpeachable sources that she is not the innocent girl I had supposed.

I have learned, in fact, that she is what is commonly known as a "college widow," and during the time of our association, had been intimate with other men. I can't understand why I didn't become aware of this fact before. But until this year, girls have never interested me and this is the first time I have had this sort of relationship. On the surface, she doesn't appear to be the promiscuous type, as she is quiet spoken and refined.

I asked her about her relations with other men and she became very indignant. She issued an absolute denial and threatened to bring the matter into court unless I marry her. My problem is this: Should I go through with the marriage, in spite of the fact that I am convinced of her moral laxity, and when I cannot be sure that the child is mine?

I am anxious to do the right thing, although I dislike very much accepting a woman of her character as my wife, even though I have contributed to her delinquency. Any advice you can offer toward solving this unforunate situation will be gratefully accepted.

W. J. T.

'The Right Thing' Not Easily Determined

DEAR W. J. T.: In view of your moral disdain for the lady whose favors you accepted, it is definitely debatable whether you would be doing "the right thing, in marrying her, even if it could be established that you have an ethical obligation to make her your wife. And I am not sure that the latter point could be established, if it is indeed demonstrably true that she was engaged in several intrigues simultaneously.

However, a woman's word carries considerable legal weight in court, when the delicate matter of disputed paternity is being adjudicated. But even so, there is no legislation which requires a man to marry the mother of his illegitimate child (which perhaps explains the sometime folk custom of "shotgun weddings.")

The most that is legally required of him, if his paternity is established, is suitable financial support of the child until the fourteenth year or thereabouts. And such cases, incidentally, are not brought into court for hearing until after the child is born. So there is a humiliating ordeal ahead for the girl if she literally intends to "take the matter into court" in an attempt to prove that you, among her several lovers, are responsible for her plight.

I feel that you might be doing the girl more harm than good from a psychic standpoint, if you married her "for keeps," when you despise and distrust her for her alleged profligacy and deceit, and when you cannot be sure her child is yours. Whether a transient, marriage-of-convenience (made to "save her face" until she can make other, long-term, socially protective arrangements for herself and the child, which leave you out of the picture)—whether this would constitute a "right" solution is a question for you to ponder.

From society's viewpoint, this might seem to be either minimum decency or great chivalry on your part. From the viewpoint of the churchman, who regards marriage as an irrevocably binding sacrament, it might seem a blasphemous device, if based on mutual agreement that divorce would follow in fairly short order. And from a practical standpoint, it might mean putting your head in the noose for life, if the girl is untrustworthy in all aspects of behavior. Once she got your name on the dotted line, she might attempt to hold you implacably to the letter of the contract, instead of being grateful for the figurative protection it afforded her.

But these are things I think you should talk over with her. And I also think that, in attempting to determine and discharge your responsibilities while protecting yourself against undue exploitation, you should have the services of a competent legal counselor, who is exclusively concerned with your individual welfare. Actually, this is the sort of problem that a boy should feel free to take to his father; and I believe many fathers would rise to the emergency with greater grace and understanding than the average son realizes. All fathers were boys once themselves, you know; and thus aware of the temptations to which a boy is subjected.

The Important Club Woman

(Following is another catechism in the series on "How To Be Important," by Mrs. Aurelia Puffer Swagg, noted authority on "Front.")

Q. What should be the first move of the club member who wants to become important?

A. Her first move is to get in with the Right Clique in the club.

Q. How should she go about doing this?

A. By keeping her ear to the ground and cultivating the members that are already important and those that seem to be going places.

Q. How should she go about cultivating them?

A. For one thing, by calling them up and asking them to advise her on what stands to take and how to vote on issues and in elections.

Q. What other steps should the new club member take?

A. She should build up her general popularity in the club.

Q. How should she go about doing this?

A. By getting a club roster and memorizing the names of all the members. Also by getting appointed on the hospitality committee so that she may graciously receive members and guests at the door.

Q. How can she be popular and at the same time avoid getting in with the Wrong Clique in the club?

A. By being nice to everyone—but not too nice to the Wrong People.

Q. How should the new and ambitious club member work in her organization?

A. She should work with great enthusiasm—but not too hard. And she should at all costs avoid becoming a club hack.

Q. How can she avoid this?

A. By getting on the right committees and in the right offices.

Q. What are the right committees?

A. All committees that enable their members to get into the limelight—such as hospitality, courtesy, program, legislative, etc.

Q. What are the wrong committees?

A. Notably ways and means or finance, transportation, picnic, and refreshments (under no circumstances should she ever get on the sandwich committee.)

Q. What should the would-be club woman of importance do about offices?

A. She may be a sergeant-at-arms, a delegate, a parliamentrian, a vice president, possibly a corresponding secretary, but she should avoid being a treasurer, recording secretary or auditor.

Q. Should she attend meetings faithfully?

A. Yes—at the beginning—and especially all meetings at which photographers may be present.

Q. What sort of a reputation should the new club member seek to build up in the club?

A. A reputation of being a Gracious Personality.

Q. Why?

A. So that everyone will remark that she would make a gracious presiding officer.

Q. How can she do this?

A. By entertaining frequently the important club members and the chairman of committees.

Q. What is the chief pitfall of the rising club member?

A. Getting involved in a club row.

Q. How can she avoid this?

A. By never taking such a definite stand on any issue that she cannot retreat from it, and by being as cagey as possible about committing herself on election candidates.

Q. Does smart dressing aid the new club member?

A. Decidedly—but she should avoid so many clothes she will make other women envious.

Q. What is the ultimate reward of the important club woman?

A. To become president of the club and after that an ex-president—and possibly to move on to a more important club.

You'll feel like playing leapfrog in these "Rana Cueras" pictured below. # Skins of Frogs Being Used For Newest Spring Shoes

Are Smooth in Surface, Neutral Tan in Color, And Spattered With Bubbles; Used With Matching Belts and Bags; Have High and Low Heels

INSTEAD of eating frog's legs this season you'll probably wear them on your feet. Frogs are being made into shoes now and are guaranteed not to hop or jump, for they are fashioned of only the most sedate and degnified frog skins. The newest innovation in footwear for spring, they will be introduced around the middle of February by a local shop. Despite the fact that only choice lady frogs' skins are used (no bullfrogs need raise a dissenting croak or creak) and that six or seven entire skins go into the making of every single slipper—their price range will be no higher than that of any other well-made, high-quality shoe.

Neutral Tan Color

By way of giving the Washington woman a preview of what frog skins will look like on her feet, we have to report that they are a gentle neutral tan in color and smooth in surface. They are highly polished and the texture, instead of being horny and rough, is spattered with constellations of bubbles—Iridescent as the pool the frog lives in. Andrew Geller, pioneer shoe stylist, who is the originator of frogskin shoes last season pondered upon their slightly fantistic yet practical possibilities and sent out scouts all the way to Brazil for Rana Cueras (just the South American way of saying frogs). The gentle coloring of these shoes makes them an ideal suit or town boot in either high-heeled pumps or oxford styles. Upon arrival of the Rana Cueras in Washington there will be matching belts and bags to contrast with the new spring dress colors.

As for the high styled resort shoes which are still traveling south this month, the walled last and open-backed resort type is making good groundwork. Devotees of the diverting new club-footed shoes claim they are very comfortable, while more conservative women swear by the open-toed Roman-striped sandals, the platform shoe with springs, or the cozy D'Orsay-type shoe for slacks and sports wear. There never has been as popular a shoe as the classic sports pump which is still a favorite for Southern wear. It takes on newly smart proportions this year in a soft cream color, trimmed with turf-brown alligator rather than the usual brown or black plain calf.

Fifty-Seven Varieties

Advance spring observations indicate it is to be a black spring once more—but when hasn't it been? Washington's own partiality for blue, however, will be justified for navy comes next to black in significance. And there are actually 57 different varieties of browns and tans going to be exploited in one shop or another for suits and sports wear. What is even newer and more important is the fact that brown will loom into some prominence as a dress shoe.

Most exotic contrast of the season is that of brown or black gabardine with Oriental tiger-snake, a gray and tawny grained reptile. Most amusing of the new afternoon shoes is the corset-backed one, of criss-cross bands of patent leather, above teetering heels. These are lighthearted and slightly zany, as are the patent dots centering the embroidered flowers on the same patent and gabardine pumps. And it may interest last year's heretics who voted against nipped-in corsets an open toes and heels that about 90 per cent of the new shoes will be open-worked this spring.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Jan. 23.

THE CURRENT crop of dream boys and wonder girls from Hollywood get all the spotlight and newspaper space, of course, when they arrive on furlough. But all around this town are ladies who were once charmers of the silent screen, living happily, married for years to the same blokes and enjoying a circle of friends. I like that sort.

Alice Hughes

There's lovely Florence Vidor, long the wife of the great Jascha Heifetz, who plays ping pong almost as well as he fiddles. And there's little Ruth Taylor, happily married to Broker Paul Zuckerman. And there's Phyllis Haver, first seen as one of the memorable Mack Sennett bathing beauties—a group also adorned by Gloria Swanson when she was the wife of Wallace Beery, and a Swedish comic in those times. No girl about New York is better liked or has a much better time than Phyllis, still mighty pretty, but a little plumper than when she adorned the sands of Santa Monica for Mack's cameras.

After Phyllis was graduated from bathing suits, she went to playing bad girls for the silent films. And how she played 'em— bad and beautiful! Probably her best part was Roxy Hart in the movie version of "Chicago." She was great in that. And then the beauteous Haver up and fell in love with young Billy Seeman, scion of a mighty wholesale grocery family and business. Eleven years ago they stood up and were married by Mayor Jimmy Walker—and haven't look back since. They live in a penthouse high above Central Park—they have fun—and Phyllis never regrets the phony and synthetic glamor of filmland.

She has the right answer. "I got out of pictures while they still wanted me!" is her story, and it's true, Hollywood is filled with former stars no longer in the lights nor the money. Phyll Haver is much luckier—out of the racket at the peak, and with 11 happy and successful years of marriage.

UNSEASONABLE news is that our local sports will have 24 more acres of beach on which to loll and frivol at Coney Island next summer. Town is spending nearly a million to move the boardwalk farther back from the sea.

Dieting Only Effective Way To Reduce

Exercise Doesn't Take Off Poundage, It Merely Slims

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT makes us smile to ourself is overhearing a question like this: "If I come in for massage three times this week can I lose 5 pounds?"

Massage has nothing to do with the number of pounds you lose. Massage isn't reducing—it' slimming. It helps you to lose inches but not pounds.

Exercise is also a slimming measure. But the chance of your losing any considerable amount of weight by exercise is remote, to say the least. Take washing, which is hard work. But to lose one single pound, you have to rub on the board at the rate of 35 times a minute for 28 hours straight! Or, if you prefer to take your exercise in pleasure, you could lose the pound by climbing to the top of the Washington Monument 20 times.

Only Diet Can Reduce

Exercise increases your energy expenditure and helps you to burn more ca' -ough not enough to lose very much weight. Anyone with only 10 pounds to lose could gradually reduce that small amount by increasing her exercise. But it would be foolish for anyone with 50 excess pounds to try to exercise them off. In the first place, anyone with that much excess weight probably would not be in physical condition to take strenuous exercise. Moreover, very few people have the time or energy required to reduce by exercise alone.

Just remember that there are approximately 4,000 calories in a pound and you have to convert every single calorie back into energy before you can lose one pound. It's much easier to leave 4,000 calories out of the week's menu and lose a pound. It is perfectly safe for you to cut 500 to 1,000 calories off the daily requirement and lose between one and two pounds a week.

Since calorie subtraction through proper diet is the only effective means of reducing the weight, you may wonder why all the stress on exercise and massage. The answer is, it makes little difference in weight, both are beautifully slimming. By toning and shortening the stretched flabby muscles, they take inches off your measurements.

Exercise is more effective than massage—but massage is the easier of the two. In cases where exercise is prohibited, massage is a very good substitute. It is also excellent for relaxing. Many of the Hollywood stars take massage on Monday to give them a good start for the week and again on Friday after a hard week's work. This is an excellent plan for the business woman who can afford it.

Diet, exercise and massage have their place in a figure program. A low calorie diet which forces you to draw line on the stored fat is the way to lose pounds. If you want to really improve your figure, you'll exercise!

Scores of Photographs of Crowned Heads And Other Notables Gaze From Walls Of Home Taken by Hull's Special Aide

By Hope Ridings Miller.

IF YOU FEEL AS IF you should drop a curtsy and mumble "Your Majesty" every time you turn around in the house that the Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies have taken at 2700 Macomb street.

HOPE R. MILLER

The residence was leased furnished from the Walter Schoellkopfs, but Mrs. Davies has brought in many of her objects of art, her portraits and scores of inscribed photographs of crowned heads. Royalty gazes out at you from handsome frames all over the spacious drawing room and decorates walls in both the reception hall and the expansive dining room.

King Gustav of Sweden has a place of honor on the piano. The King of the Belgians, playing golf with former Ambassador Davies, stands in a frame on a table near a drawing room window. A photograph of the Christy portrait of Mussolini is one in the gallery and there are other equally impressive pictures of notables all over the place.

A number of American faces also are scattered about, including several inscribed photographs of the President. One picture that caught my attention pictured him and his mother and was inscribed "To my old pardner, Joe Davies." I saw a photograph of Mrs. Roosevelt in the collection; also a picture of the Salisbury portrait of the President, framed in silver and bearing at the top the seal of the United States.

Salisbury Portraits Are Admired

When Mrs. Davies entertained members of the Women's National Press Club at luncheon yesterday, two stunning portraits done by Frank O. Salisbury were centers of special interest. The one of Mrs. Davies, painted in 1934, hangs in splendor over the magnificent marble fireplace at one end of the room. The other, a portrait of Mrs. Davies' daughter, Mrs. Eleanor Rand, adorns the opposite wall. Mrs. Rand, incidentally, recently returned from a cruise and will be off on another soon. Between trips she has been staying here with her mother.

Mrs. Aldace Walker and Mrs. Robert Leon Grosjean, both daughters of Mr. Davies, were on hand both in photograph and in the flesh at yesterday's party. A number of their pictures were around the room, and presently both assistant hostesses appeared on the scene to help Mrs. Davies look after her guests.

Mrs. Grosjean was trimly turned out in a dark red velvet suit, cut on simple lines and worn with a small matching felt hat. Mrs. Walker wore a smart black frock with a white felt turban, trimmed with flowers of the same material and a black veil.

The hostess, who received informally, had on a frock of burgundy moire, set off with a gold clip at the neckline and a gold bracelet, and shoes of the exact shade as her dress.

Press Women See Scrapbooks

Massive bouquets of roses, iris, jonquils and acacia sprouted from tall silver vases in the drawing room, and dripped from a slender silver holder that centered the dining room table. Members of the club, turning out almost a hundred per cent came early and stayed late.

A feature of the party was the showing of four scrapbooks, which contain an interesting array of clippings and pictures recounting steps in former Ambassador Davies' career in this country, and in Russia and Belgium.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft will have guests at dinner this evening . . . Mrs. John Pershing, of Scarsdale, N. Y., who has been the guest of Mrs. Marshall Diggs the last two days, left yesterday afternoon to return home. While here, Mrs. Pershing also spent some time with Mrs. Lauriston Hardin . . . Col. and Mrs. Herbert Frost have as their guest at the Shoreham Hotel, Mrs. John Humphrey Bassett, of Rye, N. Y., for whom they will entertain at dinner this evening before the horse show at Fort Myer . . . Mrs. Diggs will have Mrs. Bassett and one or two other guests lunching with her tomorrow at Pierre's . . . Assistant Secretary of State Henry F. Grady, who was in Texarkana, Tex., to speak yesterday, will fly to Boston today for another engagement. From there he will go to New York and thence to Georgia for still other speeches before returning home in a few days.

ON THE CALENDAR: Senator and Mrs. Charles McNary have invitations out for a dinner on February 12 . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leon Grosjean will be feted at a tea on February 2 by Mrs. Grosjean's mother, Mrs. Emlen Knight Davies, and Mrs. Millard Tydings . . . Mr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat will give a luncheon on Sunday . . . Mrs. Fred Bugher will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon in her home on Massachusetts avenue . . . Mrs. Harry Coffee and Mrs. Herron Pearson will be hostesses at tea on January 30, the party to take place at Mrs. Pearson's residence, 1801 Sixteenth street . . . Miss Nancy Strong will give a luncheon at the Shoreham on Saturday in honor of Miss Berenice Merchant.

FLASHBACK: Mrs. Arthur Woods, who left yesterday for Tuscon, Ariz., where her husband started a ranch school for boys several years ago, gathered in a few friends at tea Monday afternoon in honor of her aunt, Miss Anne Morgan. For the first time since she purchased the Robert Todd Lincoln house in Georgetown last summer, two of the large west rooms were opened to guests. Among those who dropped in for a cup of tea were the French Ambassador, Count de Saint Quentin; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Wadsworth, Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. Lawrence Baker, Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, Mme. Benech, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann.

Mr. van Troostenburg de Bruyn has been ordered to Berlin. They will sail February 9 and plan a brief stay in Holland.

Chitterlings, Pig Jowls and Broiled Rattlesnake Fillets Favored by Garner

DID YOU KNOW:

That Vice President Garner's favorite fare includes such virile dishes as chitterlings, pig jowl and broiled fillets of rattlesnake . . . One of Washington's largest apartment buildings is reported owned by Queen Wilhelmina of Holland . . . The Finnish Minister is answering personally many of the hundreds of letters and telegrams he has received since his country "attacked" Russia . . . A well-wisher of the Civic Theater goes into a Yogi trance before every production to bring it luck . . . Ruth Tuckerman is the only girl on a men's indoor polo team . . . That because of the devotion he showed Simone Simon on her recent visit here Pendleton Hogan's friends are calling him "Mr. Hogan-Hogan."

POLITICOS—New Dealers, Republicans and discontented Democrats mingled with "just social" guests at the dinner given for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies on Monday by Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings. Majority Leader Alben Barkley, Mrs. Barkley, Presidential Possibility Burton K. Wheeler, Mrs. Wheeler, Minority Leader of the Senate and Mrs. Charles McNary, and anti-New Dealer Senator Harry Byrd were among the guests who sat at long tables decorated with masses of pink roses.

After dinner a newsreel and a Donald Duck took the distinguished guests' minds off problems of state. The party was very formal and ended early. Mrs. Tydings is Mr. Davies' daughter. Another daughter, Mrs. Aldace Walker, and Mrs. Eleanor Rand, Mrs. Davies' daughter, made it a family affair.

Mrs. Davies' enormous black and white feather fan, and her long, white ermine coat edged with black fur were admired by everyone there, including Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, the Norwegian Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Breckinridge Lonas, the Walter R. Tuckermans, the Edward Finkenstaedts, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Mitchell Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Essary, Gen. and Mrs. Louis McC. Little, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd. The party was held at the Sulgrave Club.

SOUTHBOUND ARE: Mrs. Joshua Evans, who has left for Puerto Rico to write some articles about the vanilla industry there, and Miss Mary Louise Marsh, who hopes to go to Florida late in February. She will visit Mrs. Noyes Lewis in Palm Beach while there.

NOW THAT the debutantes are either reluctantly studying for midterm exams or recuperating from the holiday whirl, the calendar is given over mostly to dignified dinners. The newly named Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. George Messersmith will entertain on Saturday, February 3, and other hosts will be Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, February 9, and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, February 11. Mrs. Marion Worthington Luke will entertain before the Friday Supper Club on February 2.

THE BRILLIANT audience which witnessed the world premiere Monday of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" wondered why Star Raymond Massey seemed so upset when he spoke a few words at the conclusion. His hands shook and he hesitated painfully between words. Someone suggested that he might have had stage fright at the idea of making an impromptu address before so many. After all, actors are used to having their lines all ready for them.

Mrs. Roosevelt disconcerted photographers for a few moments by turning her back at the array of cameras on entering the lobby. But the First Lady was determined to see that her party was still with her and not caught in the jam on the sidewalk outside. After she rounded them all up, she graciously posed for the newsreels and other cameras.

Eleanor McAdoo And Her Daughter Visit Washington

Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of President Woodrow Wilson, former wife of William McAdoo, once Secretary of the Treasury and later Senator, slipped into Washington over the week-end and spent Monday and yesterday in the Capital.

She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary Faith McAdoo. They are visiting in Charlottesville, Va., as Mrs. McAdoo is anxious that her daughter should know something of the State of which her famous grandfather was a native. Mrs. McAdoo has recently been writing fiction.

Venezuelan Sets Housewarming

The Venezuelan Ambassador and Senora de Escalante have set February 24 as the date of the housewarming for the handsome new embassy now completed on Massachusetts avenue.

Here for the affair will be Col. Isaias Medina, Venezuelan Minister of War and Navy, who will arrive in New York today from Caracas on the S. S. Santa Paula. He will be met by the Ambassador who will bring him to the Capital for a rest after several days in Manhattan.

Irimescu to Land In Italy Saturday

The Rumanian Minister, Radu Irimescu, who is on his way home to the bedside of his mother, will land in Italy in Saturday and will go straight to Bucharest.

Mme. Irimescu entertained at dinner last evening, the event having been planned before the Minister was called home. She will be hostess at a ladies' luncheon today.

Miss Flowerree Queen of Ball In New Orleans

Capital Debutante Visits With Parents In Crescent City

Pretty Miss Ellen Flowerree, leading Washington debutante, served as queen of the ball given on Saturday in New Orleans by the Krewe of Athenians. It was an "Alice in Wonderland" party, all the characters of that famous story being brought to life again by the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Floweree, her parents, entertained at a supper dance following the ball. Their blonde daughter, who represented the Queen of Hearts, wore a glittering creation of golden net, heavily embroidered with gold sequins and worn over a foundation of gold lame. Made along princess lines, the dress flared below the hips into a long, flowing train. The front of the skirt was encrusted with silver sequins, rhinestones and blue moonstones, with three bright red jeweled hearts forming the central motif. From a wide wing collar made of heart-shaped petals of gold and silver sequins hung a mantle of bright red velvet. The mantle, many yards in length, was shaped like a heart, bordered in ermine and embroidered in black velvet hearts outlined by ermine tails.

Miss Flowerree, who spent the winter here with her uncle, Clarence Hewes, is visiting her family in New Orleans until April 2, when she will return to the Capital. Her uncle, now in the Louisiana city, will visit Palm Beach before opening her house in March.

Finnish Relief Concert Friday

Mrs. Smith Hempstone, chairman, has issued invitations for the concert on Friday afternoon, February 2, for the benefit of Finnish relief. Garfield Swift, barytone, will sing, and Evalyn Tyner will play the piano. The Pro-Musica quartet of the National Symphony Orchestra will also perform.

Wives of Congressmen Urge Women in Politics

Mesdames Taft, Vandenberg, Engelbright, Brewster, Church and Butler Speak at League of Republican Women's Class

When the woman's suffrage amendment was passed in 1919, it not only gave women the right to vote but paved the way for the 1940 campaign speeches now in the making. Thanks to Mrs. Hugh Butler and other speech teachers, and to the native enterprise of women, there will be more feminine political campaigning this year than ever before.

Mrs. Robert Taft and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenburg, wives of two Senators who are potential Presidential candidates, led the way for the Republicans yesterday. They talked at the opening of a public-speaking class under Mrs. Butler, sponsored by the League of Republican Women at the headquarters, 1301 Seventeenth street. Both are noted for being able to "think on their feet" as well as able to say something after they have thought. They emphasized the importance of women being articulate on public problems.

"The label 'strong-minded woman' was once as odious as that of 'weak-minded man,'" said Mrs. Taft, "but now women must be strong-minded to meet the problems that confront us.

"Don't feel ashamed or worried about getting into politics," she advised. "Politics, as we know it, is the handmaiden of liberty. We could not have that kind of politics except in a free country.

Too Many Generals, Not Enough Privates

"More women are becoming interested in politics everywhere, but there are many who are not yet persuaded. They need to be encouraged and to realize how good they can be, although one of their greatest qualifications is humility—the concept of the work being of greater importance than themselves. There are too many generals in most organizations, and not enough privates."

Mrs. Vandenberg gave credit to her mother's foresight and training for her ability to do her bit in speech-making for her husband. When she was 6 years old, her mother started her in elocution lessons and thereafter she spoke pieces for all of the organizations in town. Later she attended the University of Michigan, taught school, did social work and became assistant to the lovelorn editor of a Chicago paper, for whom she had to substitute in speech-making, then she "married into politics."

"I'm no example, but I'm never scared about getting up before an audience," she said, advocating training which developed confidence.

Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church of Illinois, said she thought her ambition to be a speaker was about to be realized when she "married into politics" but her hopes were dashed when her husband decreed that "one voice in a district is more than enough."

Mrs. Gann Presides Over the Meeting

"That theory has been maintained in the Tenth District of Illinois," she said, "and the responsibility of speaking is too great to assume. If my husband should be defeated after I had made a speech how would I ever know it was not my fault?"

But (outside of the District), she demonstrated yesterday, she was not willing but able to talk and keep her audience entertained. "Facing 1940, there is not a Republican woman who can afford to keep her lips closed," said Mrs. Church. "Learn what to say; what not to say, and how to say it."

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, president of the league and sister of former Vice President Charles Curtis, presided. She introduced Mrs. William M. Butler, widow of former Senator Butler, of Massachusetts; Mrs. Ralph D. Brewster, wife of Representative Brewster, of Maine, and Mrs. Harry Engelbright, wife of Representative Engelbright, of California.

Mrs. Brewster declared that more and more, women were awaking to the needs of the country and their part in solving them. "Let us leave abuse to others," she said, urging the women to do constructive thinking and talking. Mrs. Engelbright and Mrs. Butler gave reminiscences of their impromptu speaking, as did Mrs. Gann, who campaigned for her brother. The first class for Republican women will be February 2 at 10:30 at the league headquarters.

Democrats Plan Speaking Class

Democratic women, whether members of the Woman's National Democratic Club or not, are to have the opportunity of learning public speaking at a class which will be organized tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the club's headquarters, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

So far with less than half the associations accounted for the paid-up memberships are over 11,000 compared to 7,000 at this date last year. The large increase indicates that by the end of the fiscal year, March 31, the goal of 20,000 members will be reached.

2 Economists Discuss Cuts In Steel Price

De Chazeau Takes Issue With Yntema At Trust Hearing

By the Associated Press

A Monopoly Committee economist challenged yesterday a United States Steel Corporation contention that price reductions in the industry during times of depression would not result in sufficient increased demand to justify them.

The witness was Melvin G. De Chazeau, of the University of Virginia.

Conceding that steel demand was relatively inelastic on the basis of price alone, as compared with other products, De Chazeau asserted that this was of "little significance." Other economic factors which would be varied with fluctuations in steel price, he contended, would tend to make greater "long-run" shifts in demand that would result directly from a price reduction.

Theodore O. Yntema, of the University of Chicago, who made a study of prices, volumes and costs for the United States Steel Corporation, summarized his findings, which the corporation submitted to the committee for study last year.

A major difference between Yntema and De Chazeau centered around the former's computation of fixed and variable costs. Under Yntema's methods the increase in volume needed to compensate for a price reduction of 10 per cent would be 48.75 per cent.

"If the contentions of the corporation with regard to cost and demand are admitted," the committee economist declared, "one is forced to conclude that from any break-even point a price reduction will bring losses and an upward price movement will bring continuous and increasing profits."

De Chazeau contended that the steel corporation's measure of costs was appropriate only for a single plant producing a single product.

Longshoremen's Union, Ryan Indicted on Antitrust Charge

Several Officials, Locals Face Federal Accusation They Coerced Lumber Dealers In Violation of Monopoly Control Laws

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 23.—The International Longshoremen's Association, an A. F. L. union, and Joseph P. Ryan, president, were indicted today for violation of the Federal antitrust laws.

They were specifically accused of putting illegal pressure on lumber dealers to coerce their employes into I. L. A. Union membership.

The indictment, the broadest of its kind ever returned here against a labor organization, charged a conspiracy to impede interstate commerce.

Others accused included Anthony John Camarda, I. L. A. vice president; nine officers of union locals and Local Union No. 282 of the Building Material Teamsters.

The Government claimed that the defendants, seeking to coerce workers to leave a C. I. O. local, prevented lumber retailers from obtaining shipments brought to New York City docks; prevented retail employes from taking the lumber at the docks; instituted boycotts and issued blacklists of retailers for the purpose of inducing dock employes and trucking companies to refuse to handle the retailers' lumber.

Maximum penalties upon conviction would be imprisonment for one year and a $5,000 fine, the latter applying to organizations.

'30-30 Jack' Pratt, Alaskan Pioneer, Dies

Colorful Figure of Early Days Leaves Sister in Takoma Park

Friends here learned yesterday of the death at Wrangel, Alaska, Monday, of John (30-30 Jack) Pratt, frontiersman and Government employe.

One of the most colorful figures in the Northern Territory, Mr. Pratt succumbed after a six-week illness, according to a sister, Mrs. Leola T. Coleman, 202 Cedar stret, Takoma Park, Md.

Mr. Pratt told of his life in Alaska on a visit to Washington last year, his first trip "outside" the Territory in 38 years.

Born at Pierre, S. Dak., 56 years ago, he traveled to Alaska when the territory still was in its pioneer stage. By turn "sourdough" gold miner, traper and fisherman, he won and lost small fortunes in various pursuits.

He operated one of first halibut fleets in Alaskan waters and hunted bears to supply fur for the shakos of the Russian czarist army. In his later years he became a student of classical literature.

Mr. Pratt made his home in a one-room shack on Anan Creek, near Wrangel, in south Alaska, where he lived in comparative seclusion.

He derived his nickname from the fact he invariably carried a .30-caliber rifle. Most 'sourdoughs" were armed with six-shooters.

In 1935, C. E. Jackson, acting commissioner of the Bureau of Fisheries, appointed Mr. Pratt fish warden in the Wrangell District.

Also, its medicated vapors are breathed into cold-irritated air passages to help relieve the congestion and loosen phlegm. And, when you melt it in boiling water, it gives you a marvelous medicated vapor-steam treatment.

These simple VapoRub treatments are standbys in millions of homes—used whenever colds strike. More people use the poultice and vapor action of VapoRub than all similar treatments combined. Follow the full tested directions that come with every jar of VapoRub.

Madden Flays Opponents of La bor Act in Speech

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Jan. 23.—Chairman Madden of the National Labor Relations Board declared tonight that constant agitation by Wagner act opponents was a "menace to public order."

He sent this message to a conference of the United Christian Council for Democracy—a conference criticized by several organizations for alleged left-wing tendencies, but described by its leaders as merely "liberal."

"The national labor relations act has fulfilled its avowed purpose and has, in addition, produced by-products which are of great social advantage," Madden asserted. "Yet there is constant agitation for its repeal or emasculation.

"Most of this agitation originates with organizations such as the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

With Madden ill of grippe in Washington, his address was read to the council.

Leaders said the purpose of the conference was "to express the voice of the Christian religion concerning the war and its relations to the life and the future of the American people."

An American Legion committee in a statement criticized several scheduled speakers, including Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the Methodist Church, and others. The committee said those criticized were members of left-wing or of "Communist Front" groups.

3 on Hill Support Dr. Ruhland

Medical Society Is Expected to Oppose Proposed Transfer Plan

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Stanch support by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, and condemnation of a devious plan to oust him, came yesterday from Congress and from a former president of the American Medical Association on the eve of a vital step in the controversy.

While Senators William H. King and Arthur Capper were denouncing the District Commissioners' "purge proposal," Dr. William Gerry Morgan was expressing confidence that the District Medical Society tonight will throw its weight against the movement to replace Dr. Ruhland with an Army, Navy or Public Health Service appointee.

Dr. Morgan, a former president of the A. M. A., was chairman of the advisory committee which, following a painstaking investigation, recommended Dr. Ruhland's appointment five years ago.

King Explains Opposition

Senator King, Senate District Committee chairman, explained that his opposition was based on the method attempted. Citing published reports Commissioners had been subject to outside pressure when they wrote the provision, Senator King said he thought the District heads should have a free hand.

Senator Capper, ranking minority member of the District Committee, not only assailed the ouster method but sprang to Dr. Ruhland's defense on grounds of merit.

"I have followed his career in the District," he said, "and am convinced of his qualifications for the job. I am against any underhanded method such as this appears to be to get rid of him."

Kennedy Defends Him

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, indicated he would come to his defense in a statement on the reorganization bill.

The bill's "purge section" faces ertical analysis if it reaches the Capitol. The deciding factor is the action to be taken tonight by the District Medical Society.

The society is certain to oppose any move to make the post of District health officer a Federal job.

Dr. Morgan yesterday revealed all details of the Nation-wide search, instituted at the request of the Commissioners, which led to the recommendation of Dr. Ruhland. Among the men who recommended Dr. Ruhland, he said, were Dr. Thomas Parran, then New York State health commissioner and now United States Surgeon General; Dr. A. W. Freeman, dean of the School of Public Health at Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Olin West, general manager of the American Medical Association, and Dr. David L. Edsall, public health dean at Harvard.

Citizens Back Ruhland

The Hampshire Heights Citizens' Association went on record last night favoring "the retention of Dr. George C. Ruhland as health officer of the District."

A resolution introduced by Dr. S. J. Sugar, chairman of the health and sanitation committee, pointed to the "improvement in efficient dental and medical services, greater efficiency in inspection of restaurants, and the fact that the annual death rate in the District has decreased" as evidence of Dr. Ruhland's ability.

The association recommended the Federation of Citizens' Associations ignore boundaries between member groups.

Police Get the Gate

The police radio bawled out orders to the park police cruiser last night.

"Let out your sergeant at the proper gate in the garden."

Since when did park police sergeants have proper gates in gardens to be let out at, and in the snow at that? Some wondered. A call to park police headquarters resolved the mystery. The announcer meant "Propagating Gardens" adjacent to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where the police garage is.

Meeting at the health department offices members of nearby county departments were told that 192 Maryland residents and 100 Virginia residents received treatment at Gallinger Hospital, at a total cost of $12,622. These same patients were given 7,704 days of treatment, according to Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, hospital superintendent. At Glenn Dale, 12 patients were treated at a cost of $10,909.

Dr. Ruhland said it was his intention to work out some contractual relation with adjacent jurisdictions so the District might be reimbursed for medical and surgical services.

Bandit Suspect Caught After Gun Battle

Customer Interrupts Shop Holdup; Quarry Chased for 5 Blocks

A colored youth of 20 was nabbed in a five-block running gun battle last night in which a dozen police in four patrol and scout cars and two motorcycles, participated.

SANDLER

The man was held for investigation in connection with an attempted holdup of the Reliable Pawnbrokers' Exchange, 1218 Seventh street northwest.

E. H. Simpson, proprietor of the shop, and his clerk, Hyman Sandler, were being held up early last night when a customer entering the store noticed the two men with their hands up, while a colored man pointed a revolver at them.

The customer ran and called police. The holdup man darted out.

Several minutes later Sergeant Thomas Edwards and Lieut. Nelson Holmes, cruising along Seventh street with Sandler, saw a man Sandler identified as the gunman.

Edwards led the chase along N street to Tenth then up Tenth to an alley in the 1200 block. When police fired as their man ducked into the alley, he returned the fire. They finally caught him in a house into which the man ran.

Women Workers' Wages Decline

Women industrial workers suffered drastic wage fluctuations during the depression years, according to a Labor Department report on the job histories of women from 1931 through 1934.

The report, announced yesterday, is based on questionnaires returned by 595 women. Their returns showed the average worker was 24 years old, native born, single, and an experienced worker with considerable skill. Wages for the average worker unable to find steady employment dropped to $364 for 1933.

Dentists Fight Plan to Merge With Medicine

Gies Says Doctors Aren't Qualified to Absorb Practice

Proposals for merging the dental profession with medicine as a specialized branch were denounced yesterday at a forum meeting of the District Dental Society, in the Public Health Service Auditorium.

Dr. William J. Gies, of Columbia University, declared that dentistry has advanced to its present high stage because it grew separate of medicine. He asserted that the medical profession had been "inattentive to dental conditions," and as such was not qualified to absorb dental practice as a medical specialty.

Two hundred members of the society also heard a similar attack on a proposal to leave the field of teeth replacement to technicians, rather than to dentists.

Members of a panel, which generally agreed with Dr. Gies' sentiments, included Dr. Lloyd E. Blauch, of the United States Office of Education; Dr. J. Ben Robinson, dean of Maryland University dental school, and Dr. Walter Bloedorn, dean of George Washington University medical school.

Union Directors Meet Today on Symphony Pact

Directors of the Musicians' Protective Union will meet this morning to discuss the stalemate in negotiations with the National Symphony Orchestra Association.

The deadlock over wages in the 1940-41 contract might mean the end of the orchestra, L. Corrin Strong, president of the association, reasserted last night. He said that no new developments had occurred to justify reopening the annual fund drive, which was canceled as the result of the impasse.

The next move, he stated, "is up to the union." He believes, however, that negotiations may have to wait until the orchestra returns. It is in West Virginia, having left Monday on a nine-day tour.

Charles R. Brinton, secretary of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, intimated yesterday that negotiations would be resumed after the meeting tomorrow.

Commissioners Approve D. C. Income Tax Instalments

Budget Bureau Gets Revenue Act Change; Action Is Expected in Time to Make Split Payments Effective This Year

The Commissioners yesterday approved and sent to the Budget Bureau an amendment to the revenue act providing for divided income tax payments on April 15 and October 15. Action is expected in time to be effective before the tax is due on March 15.

Five other legislative pieces, four of which deal with next year's inaugural ceremonies also were approved.

The tax amendments, requested by merchants, goes a step farther than originally intended. In the request for split payments, the date for the first installment was set for March 15.

But the Commissioners held that, since all other District levies are due on that date, March 15, the offices of the tax collector and assessor would be spared a "terrific burden" if the first payment date were moved back a month—to April 15.

As the income tax law now stands the total levy is due and payable on March 15. The new plan would not call for any penalty interest for the deferred payment.

The bills dealing with the 1941 inauguration would:

Exempt spectator tickets from the admission tax.

Provide for the quartering of troops.

Authorize the Commissioners to grant permits for stands and concessions.

Authorize an appropriation of $25,000 for District expenses, such as extra police, moving stands and care of the troops.

Nolan Denies He Sold False Paper to Bank

Jury Is Expected to Receive Auto Dealer's Case Late Today

William J. Nolan, 48-year-old bankrupt automobile dealer, denied in the District Court yesterday that he had anything to do with ten allegedly false vehicle mortgages and their sale to the Munsey Trust Co. for $8,436.

A jury before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue is expected to receive the Nolan case late today.

Nolan was indicted for criminal conspiracy and obtaining money by false pretenses after his firm collapsed.

Rudin Warns Peace Is Unlikely When War Ends

Six hundred seekers of lasting world peace were told last night settlement after the present European war is likely to "leave the world very much in the same place that it has been for the last 20 years."

Dr. Harry R. Rudin, Yale history professor, spread before delegates to the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War a stark prediction of the years ahead. He said the economic rivalries and military aggression of recent years are "the merest beginning."

"Those in our midst whom we curiously call statesmen are neither intelligent enough nor bold enough to write a new peace any better than Versailles," he continued.

The Yale historian advised his listeners to recognize that "in terms of universal history . . . democracy is a departure from the normal way of European life. Since democracy was realized in the nineteenth century, we must consider the proposition that possibly democracy belongs to that century and may not be able to sustain itself in the twentieth century."

Dr. Rudin said "it seems nearly axiomatic that peace is impossible where there exist two states with power fairly equal." Europe may not achieve any real stability, he warned, until "elimination of all powerful states but one."

Bankers Fight Larger Checks For D. C. Idle

The District Bankers Association will oppose liberalization of employe benefits in the unemployment compensation act when hearings open at 10:30 a. m. today before a subcommittee headed by Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi.

Francis G. Addison, jr., as spokesman for the association, said last night his organization believed the businesses which pay the pay roll tax should get the full benefit of the accumulation of any unnecessarily large reserve in the unemployment compensation fund.

The Commissioners are recommending that the pay roll tax be cut from 3 to 2.7 per cent and that employe benefits be increased from $15 for 15 weeks to $20 for 20 weeks.

Editor Urges Cut-Throat Car Dealing End

Dealers' Association Is Told Retailers Should Be Limited

Measures to curb "cut-throat" competition among automobile retailers was urged by James Dalton, editor of Motor Magazine, yesterday at the opening session of the convention of the National Automobile Dealers Association at the Mayflower Hotel. Upward of 1,000 delegates are here.

Dalton asked some form of restriction by manufacturers on the number of dealers in one section. With too many retailers in the same city a drastic price-cutting situation results, it was explained.

Stanley H. Horner, Washington dealer and president of the association, lamented the District's voteless plight. Horner opened his remarks in one talk declaring "I have lived here all my life and never have been able to vote."

Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator, speaking on the topic, "After the NRA—What?" declared American business is facing a choice "not between pioneer individualism and state socialism but, a choice between self-government in industry and . . . complete political control of industry."

Federal legislation was discussed by the association's directors. Action on regulation will be taken at a later session.

Other speakers included Charles W. Bishop, general counsel of the NADA.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, will speak this morning at 10:45. Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt will address the delegates at a banquet at 6:45 p. m. on "Social Security and Business Security."

Mrs. Wright Dies At Son's Home

Reports on 3 Child Welfare Bills Made

Legislation Would Curb 'Baby Brokers,' Guard Illegitimates And Offer Protection

Progress in drafting three pieces of District child welfare legislation—designed to curb "baby brokers," to safeguard illegitimate children and to provide more protective service for children—was reported yesterday by committee of social workers and citizens at work on the problems.

The Citizens Coordinating Committee for Public Child Welfare heard the reports at a joint meeting with the legislative committee of the child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies at council headquarters.

A subcommittee will be recruited by the citizens coordinating committee to appear before the House Committee on Appropriations in support of additional appropriations for child welfare under the Board of Public Welfare, it was decided yesterday.

Mrs. Ottenberg's Message

Miss Louis Ottenberg, chairman of the coordinating committee, who was absent yesterday, sent a message calling attention to the fact that interested organizations must be "ready to act" at the hearings in February "on recommendations of the Budget Bureau adding $25,000 for board and care of children under the Board of Public Welfare."

The bill to check the casual and commercial placement of children will require that an agency be licensed to do the placing, and that no agency shall charge or receive any compensation from persons adopting a child.

The bill will be ready within a few weeks for consideration of the legislative committee of the council's child welfare division, it was reported by Mrs. Herbert N. Budlong, chairman of the subcommittee on this bill.

Conradis Explains Bill

The committee yesterday took under consideration the proposed bill dealing with support and maintenance of children born out of wedlock. Its provisions were explained by Albert Conradis, chairman of the sub committee on the revision of the bastardy act of 1912.

The third piece of legislation, to empower the Board of Public Welfare to set up protective services and to accept children for care away from their homes without court commitment, was discussed by Miss Alice Padgett, instructor at Catholic University. The draft of this bill has been approved by preliminary committees and is now ready to go before the board of the council. If it is acted upon favorably there, it will then be sent to the member agencies of the council for their action.

Taxi Driver Kills Wife and Himself After Quarrel

A Washington taxi driver yesterday shot and killed his wife and then killed himself following a quarrel on Elm street just off Wisconsin avenue in Bethesda, Md.

Samuel Allen, colored, 38, of 5326 East Capitol street, followed his wife, Ethel, 35, to an Elm street residence where she was employed as a domestic. He shot her to death as she sat in the cab, Montgomery County police said.

William O. Baker, an employe of a nearby hardware store, saw Allen jump out of the parked taxi, place a gun to his temple and pull the trigger, he told police.

Citizens Approve Car Parking Plan

A proposed plan of the District Zoning Commission that constructors of new buildings provide parking facilities was indorsed last night by the Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association.

The association urged the Public Utilities Commission to take over control of fuel oil prices in the District.

Nats Reach Verbal Agreement With McCoy

The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1940 X*

Harris' Bid Favored by Free Agent

$30,000 Is Believed Figure; Friendship For Nats' Manager Factor in Decision

By Shirley Povich.

The Washington baseball club ten days ago reached an agreement with Second Baseman Benny McCoy whereby he would join the Nats, The Post learned yesterday.

Despite continuation of brisk bidding for Free Agent McCoy by several other clubs, notably the Pirates, Dodgers and Giants, Washington club officials are confident that the infielder will wear the Nats' uniform next season.

McCoy already has told the Washington club that its offer was acceptable, according to Owner Clark Griffith.

A ruling by Baseball Commissioner Landis forbids any team to sign a free agent until 15 days after the player has been liberated, but all clubs received immediate permission to "contact" McCoy.

Harris Saw McCoy

Griffith dispatched Manager Bucky Harris to Detroit to interview McCoy on the day that the list of newly declared free agents was announced and the Nats' manager was the first to make the player an offer.

The Post learned that Harris was authorized by Griffith to offer McCoy $25,000 for signing. McCoy turned down that figure.

"How much do you want," asked Harris.

When McCoy named a higher figure, believed to be $30,000, Harris telephoned Griffith in Washington. He was told by the Nats' owner to meet McCoy's demands. Thus satisfied, McCoy told Harris:

"You have a ball player."

The Nats' bosses are counting on McCoy to carry out his bargain despite what may have been higher offers by other clubs. A report that the Pirates had made the player a $35,000 offer was not confirmed yesterday by Owner Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh club, who admitted only that he had "gone pretty high."

McCoy's status will be definitely known when the 15 day limit expires on Sunday.

A personal equation between Harris and McCoy may be the deciding influence in the second baseman's decison to cast his lot with the Washington club. The Nats' manager gave McCoy his first big league tryout as a 16-year-old rookie when Harris was manager of the Tigers in 1933, and a warm personal friendship between them exists.

McCoy is regarded as the prize member of the list of 91 former Detroit players declared free agents by Judge Landis last week. Playing second base and shortstop in 54 games for the Tigers last season, he showed a healthy batting average of .302 and proved a sensation in the field at bith positions.

Earlier in the year he batted .323 at Toleda in 87 games and hit 14 home runs, despite the fact that he is a mere 152-pounder standing only 5 feet 8 inches.

Lynn Patrick Star, Rangers Top Americans

10,100 See Boss' Son Score Three Goals in 5-3 Win

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 23.—The boss' son, Lynn Patrick, took personal charge of the New York Ranger hockey machine tonight and guided it to a hard fought 5-to-3 victory over their intercity rivals, the Americans, before 10,100 fans.

It was the first-place Rangers' third straight victory since Chicago broke their record string of 19 games without defeat last week and also the Rangers' thirteenth win in 14 games.

The Americans were ahead only once, Buzz Boll opening the scoring after seven minutes' play. But Patrick got that one back in the same period and he picked off another in each of the last two stanzas. Bryan Hextall and Clint Smith, a linemate of Patrick's, got the other Ranger goals.

Golden Gloves Fighters Clash

One of the heaviest programs of the cufrent Golden Gloxes Boxing Tournament is scheduled for tonight at Turner's Arena with 48 rounds of fighting in the quarter-final leg of the tourney. First bout is at 8:30 o'clock.

Nick Mancini, of Pete's A. C., and Frank McCaleb, of St. Mary's Boys Club, will clash in the 147-pound senior battle, which shapes up as the "main event" of the night.

Mancini and McCaleb will have as their goal a shot at the welterweight amateur star, Billy Kekeris, on next Wednesday night's semi-final card. Nick defeated the National Guard Greek on an amateur show last summer in Griffith Stadium and is anxious to make it unanimous that he is the superior fighter with another victory.

Sharing interest with their fight will be the 135-pound affair between Ray Landis, Phil Furr's protege, and Ray Bernard, of Merrick Boys Club. Another bout that promises plenty of action is the 126-pound novice battle between Hilton Rudd, of Police Boys Club No. 10, and Donald Gray.

The pairings for tonight:

Armstrong Favored In Title Bout Tonight

Crowd of 16,000 Expected to See Hammerin' Hank Lay Crown on Line Against Montanez In Garden; Odds Are 1-3

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 23.—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong puts his world welterweight championship on the line for the fifteenth time tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden against the stiff-punching body attack of Pedro Montanez, of Puerto Rico.

They tangle over the 15-round route and the way the public has taken to the tea party has Promoter Mike Jacobs beaming like a summer sun. "Uncle Mike" figured tonight that some 16,000 of the faithful would be on hand for the festivities, contributing to a gross gate over the $56,000 mark.

The little buzzsaw who climbs into the ring about 10 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow night is a slower Armstrong than the rip-tearing Negro dynamiter who skyrocketed out of the West a couple of years back to become the first fighter in ring history to hold three championships simultaneously. But he still sets a red-hot pace and he is punching sharper and harder.

Hank 1-3 Favorite

As a result, the odds-layers have made Henry the Hammer a 1 to 3 shot to wind up as "winnah and still champeen." This corner, remembering the Armstrong who piled up nearly 50 straight victories in his all-conquering sweep through 1937, '38 and '39, before Lou Ambers outpointed him for the Lightweight crown last August, strings along with boss-man Armstrong.

Although Armstrong rightly is favored by the betting folks, the 1 to 3 price seems somewhat farfetched on the face of Montanez's record. Like Henry, Pedro the Pounder has had two get-togethers with Ambers, and, like Henry, he has split a pair of decisions with the 135-pound titleholder. He has been a consistently good campaigner in both the lightweight and welterweight classes.

What's more, Pedro is one of the toughest body punchers among the ring's little men. A good portion of his ring triumphs have been chalked up simply by pitching at his

A.A.U. Reverses Metro Decision On Trip Permits

Three Stars Granted Traveling Okays to Games in Boston

By the United Press

New York, Jan. 23.—Lawrence di Benedetto, of New Orleans, national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, today reversed an action of the New York Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. by authorizing traveling permits to be issued to three New York athletes who wished to compete in the Prout Memorial Games at Boston Saturday night.

The Metropolitan Association had refused the permits to three middle-distance runners—Charlie Beetham, Howie Borck and Harold Cagle—because of its policy of keeping New York stars in town for New York meets.

Beetham, Borck and Cagle are running under the auspices of the Sixty-ninth Regiment Association. Accordingly, Capt. Bill Lynch, athletic officer of the Sixty-ninth Association, appealed to Presiden' Benedetto today, and Benedetto authorized Secretary Dan Ferris, of the A. A. U., to issue the permits.

Galento-Baer Bout In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP).—Joe Jacobs announced tonight his protege, Tony Galento, will fight Max Baer in Philadelphia's Convention Hall early in April and then—if victorious—may meet oe Louis at Municipal Stadium next June for the world heavyweight title.

Jacobs said he had talked by telephone with Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager in Los Angeles. He asserted the scrap would be signed by next Tuesday.

Gene Autry To Perform At Fort Myer

John Hay Whitney's Stars Will Compete In President's Birthday Event Tonight

With Cowboy Star Gene Autry galloping President Roosevelt's horse, Pal o' Mine, around the ring and some of the town's best mounts taking fences in preparation for the opening of the President's Birthday Horse Show tonight, Fort Myer was a busy spot yesterday afternoon and evening.

In addition to the general activity, came word that Mrs. John Hay Whitney is vanning seven horses to the show, including Airy Spirit, Bon Nuit, Faithful Heart, Mickle, Missing Caddy and Strong Tea for the hunter events and her well known bob-tailed chestnut, Nip, for the open classes.

Mrs. Whitney's hunter string will meet plenty of top-flight competition in the two handsome 4-year-olds, Abdication and Palm Sunday, from Mr. and Mrs. George Greenhalgh's Springsbury Farm, and in Big Boy, Mrs. Greenhalgh's favorite hunter, who is making his show ring debut. The Springsbury entries will be ridden by Shirley Payne and Sue Bolling, young Charlottesville horsewoman.

Also to be considered in the figuring is Mrs. D. N. Lee's Red Fox, to be ridden in the hunter classes by Aubrey Fishback, of Warrenton. Other last-minute entrants are Harry H. Semmes' Life Boat and Obvious, Lieut. O. K. Kane's Lord Barrie, Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry's Gabby's Scamp, Hall Poole's May I, George Pierce's Lois M, Stanley Jones' Way Over, Representative Sasscer's Virginia Lee, U. S. Randle's Way, So Long, Find, Pride and Shadow; J. W. Hechtor's Reliance, Charles Lang's Pat O'Malley, and Arnold Lusby's Lurline and Cash Cargo.

Tonight's exhibitions will be staged by Troop E, which will put on their musical drill, and by Troop F's hard-riding rodeo boys. Tomorrow's features will be a 24-horse lance drill by Arlington Hall Junior College girls and the Sixteenth Field Artillery's gray horse battery.

It has ceased to be news, of course, that Gene Autry will ride tonight and that Bill Boyd will appear tomorrow night for a top-hat audience that will include the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and various diplomatic and local society members.

Tonight's session will begin at 8:15 with a class for green hunters.

Revised G. U. Line-Up to Face Loyola

Coach Elmer Ripley yesterday served strong warning on his losing Georgetown University basketball team by benching Capt. and Forward Johnny Schmitt and revising his starting line-up for the game with Loyola of Baltimore at Tech gym Saturday.

Schmitt has been demoted to the second team in an effort to inject more scoring punch in the regular team, Coach Ripley said. Also affected by the shakeup are Al Lujack, George Pajak and Jim Geibel. Lujack has been shifted from center to forward to make room for Geibel, and Pajak has been changed from forward to guard, replacing Schmitt.

Thus the starting Hoya line-up against Loyola will include three sophomores, Lujack, Giebel and Buddy O'Grady, and two juniors, Pajak and Irving Rizzi.

Hitherto little used reserve players also are likely to benefit by the revised line-up, Coach Ripley said. Don Martin, sharpshooting forward whose play almost upset Maryland in the final minutes, is ticketed for more action.

POVICH

Hey, this is getting serious. Satan's kingdom has broken loose in baseball, if Judge Landis means what he has been saying of late, and that has been his habit. His rulings of late have been no mere gentle reminder that he's boss of the works. They constitute a depth bomb that threatens to shake the very structure of baseball.

Already the New York Yankees, the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers have canceled working agreements with minor league teams. The minors may be bereft of as much as $2,000,000 in working capital previously supplied by major league clubs. Big league club owners are in haste to get out from under. There is no doubt of their panic.

They're plain scared of Landis. They know he has never had any love for chainstore baseball and now it seems he's cracking down in earnest. It means big league clubs can't continue to manipulate minor league players with the freedom they've enjoyed for several years. At least that's what they fear in the wording of point five of Landis' recently announced seven-point program for the conduct of farm systems. Landis' point five reads:

"Working agreements must be executed by the club actually making same and must not be executed in the names of affiliated or subsidiary clubs to whom the major or other higher classification club supplies the necessary funds therefor by loans, advances, capital stock subscriptions, player purchases or other methods whatsoever."

Let's boil that down to the nub. What does it mean? Well, it means, for example, that if the Yankees own a player at Norfolk and want to send him to their Kansas City farm for more seasoning, they can't do it. He must be called directly to the Yankees. The Yankees can have a working agreement with Norfolk and they can have a working agreement with Kansas City, but between those two latter clubs their must be no trafficking in players, according to Landis.

Major Moguls Fear Wrath of the Commissioner

It would be the same in the Washington Club's set-up. The Nats own Charlotte in the Piedmont League and Shelby in the Tarheel League. Funds of the Washington Club support both teams. Heretofore, Charlotte has operated Shelby as a farm, but because Charlotte gets its funds from Washington, the Nats are now forbidden to install players in Shelby.

It is significant that such potent teams as the Yankees, Cardinals and Dodgers have not chosen to fight Landis on his ruling, but are picking up their belongings and pulling out of many of their minor league spots. Whether they like it or not, they are bound by Landis' decisions and prefer to scuttle much of their farm system network rather than risk the wrath of the judge.

Of course, Landis' edict won't affect such tie-ups as the Yankees have directly with Newark and Kansas City. The Yanks are entitled to send players to both of those clubs and to claim players from them, but there can be no more shuffling of talent. All players must be sent from New York to Newark and New York to Kansas City and vice versa. No longer can there be any traffic between Newark and Kansas City, if we read Landis' ruling rightly.

The worst blow, however, falls not on the big league clubs but on the minors. The major leagues are taking only a financial rap. They can still operate as in olden days, with a very moderate farm system. But the day of the vast baseball empire is ended because with Landis barring the way to intra-system shuffling, there is nothing to be gained. But the minors, ah, they'll suffer plenty.

Minor Leagues Will Be Hard Hit

There is grave doubt that a great many minor leagues will be able to operate without the capital supplied by the big league clubs, especially in the class B and class C range which outnumber the class AA and class B leagues four to one. Minor league baseball was built up through funds supplied by major leagues either directly or by working agreements that gave big league teams the choice of certain players.

When baseball was in the depths of its own private depression, there were only nine minor leagues operating. Then Branch Rickey, of the Cardinals began to experiment with farms ten years ago. Cardinal teams began to inherit a steady flow of talent from the minors, and other big league clubs followed Rickey's cue. The team that didn't fall into step was behind the times. Under the stimulant of big league money, minor league baseball burgeoned into 42 leagues last year, a new all-time high.

There won't be 42 minor leagues next season. Each succeeding week is sure to bring news that this league and that one has folded. Without the life-blood of big league money they can't operate. Watch and see.

Finn Fund to Benefit From C. U. Track Meet

The Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University, announced last night that the net profits from C. U.'s seventh annual indoor track and field meet March 2 will be turned over to the Finnish relief fund.

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., local director for the Finnish fund, heartily approved the measure and assured Mgr. Corrigan the committee would throw all its weight in support of the plan. Details are only in their formative stage now, but a move is under way to set aside special boxes to sell for $5 or $10 a seat.

All details will be worked out by Arthur J. Bergman, director of athletics at Catholic U., and Dorsey Griffith, track coach and generalissimo of the games. The decision to use the funds to aid the Finns was made after a lengthy conference yesterday.

This will mark the second time that Catholic University has taken the lead in dedicating an athletic event to a worthy cause. Last year, the basketball team donated a large share of the receipts to the Infantile Paralysis Fund.

Meanwhile, Griffith announced that he would contact the great Finnish middle-distance runner, Taisto Maki, about participating in the meet. Maki sailed yesterday for the United States and will make personal appearances to give the fund an added impetus. C. U. officials will bend every effort to get the great Finnish star.

Maki is the world record-holder for 2 miles, 5,000 and 10,000 meters. With the announcement of C. U.'s plans the meet is expected to be the largest and best of all the games. Entries already are pouring in and the C. U. meet may steal the spotlight from the famed I. C. 4-A games which are always held on the same night in New York.

Preliminary plans call for three divisions: college, high school and athletic clubs. The number of colleges is expected to be at least 35 with some of the largest universities, such as Navy, Maryland, Georgetown and Pennsylvania, entered.

C. U. Boxers Aim to Erase Miller's Grin

Maryland U. to Face Capable Substitutes In Saturday's Bouts

That large grin Coach Heinie Miller is wearing over the prospect of what his Maryland team might do to a Cardinal squad minus three of its most potent punchers, when the two meet Saturday night in the Catholic University Gymnasium, won't be so big when he hears this.

In the place of the dangerous trio of Fred Stant, Capt. Joe Bunsa and Jay Turner, Coach Eddie LaFond will send out three boys he has been saving especially for the date with the Terrapins.

In the 155-pound position usually filled by Bunsa, LaFond even has an alternative. Leo Wowak, quarterback on the football team, and Bob Viner are in the running, but the latter probably will be called on because of his greater experience. He is just about as hard a hitter as Bunsa.

The light-heavyweight duties, which have been performed by both Turner and Stant so far this year, will fall to Joe Carrig, football and basketball star.

LaFond at first was merely toying with the idea of using Carrig, but after Joe's fast workout with

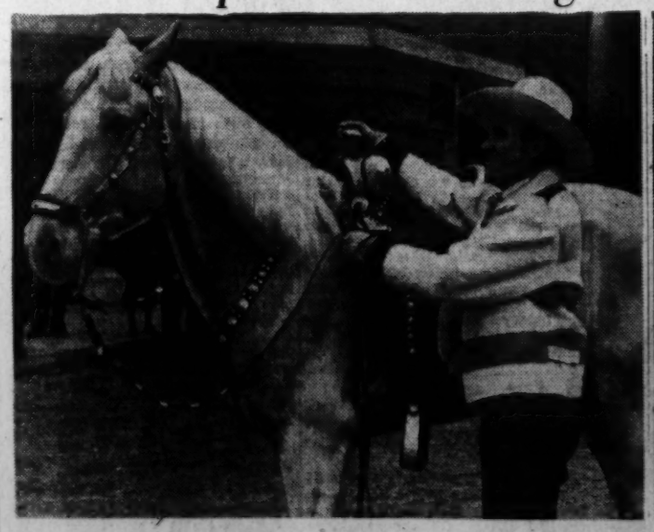
Here's a Tip on That Mounting Problem From Hollywood Cowboy Star and President's Horse



If you're baffled when it comes to boarding your favorite steed you might study the Western technique of Gene Autry with Pal O' Mine, from President Roosevelt's string of horses stabled at Fort Myer. Gene starts with right hand on pommel, or horn, of the saddle, and his left holding reins lightly

In contrast to the method generally used by the hunting gentry of facing to the rear and pivoting into the saddle, Gene faces the horse's head as he places his left foot in the stirrup and prepares to swing aboard the flashy palimino horse he'll ride tonight in the President's Birthday Horse Show at the post

The way up is easy—at least Gene makes it look that way as he throws his right leg over the horse's back in a quick, light motion and prepares to land with situation well in hand. Note how, reins gathered lightly but firmly, the film star brings Pal O' Mine to attention, all set to go places

Woodrow Wilson Defeats Western, 25-22, in Series Game

Last-Minute Fight Brings High Victory

Presidents Gain in Standings With Win Over Inter-High Rivals Before 1,000

By Bill Burnett.

Woodrow Wilsosn's big green and white basketball team—proved itself a worthy contender for inter-high championship honors yesterday when it tightened in the last minute of play to beat Western, 25 to 22, and take undisputed second place in the series.

Western droped two notches in the standings with the loss, from second to fourth place. Roosevelt remained on top and Central ranks third.

In its second series victory, Wilson displayed a fire and fight highly pleasing to the 1,000 spectators at Roosevelt gymnasium. At one stage of the game it was behind, 16 to 12, but rallied to hold a 20-to-18 lead at the end of the quarter—the third. With Western desperately trying to tie things up in the final minute, with a 23-to-22 count against it, Wilson's Jordan Bentley rolled in a snowbird that finally took the game out of Western's reach.

Western, too, turned in a brilliant rally. Staggering under a 10-2 deficit after the first period, the Raiders bounced back to hold a 14-12 margin at the half. The only points Wilson took in the period were on Row Cowdrey's snowbird with eight seconds of the quarter left. Jake Hilleary and Irvin Schenker sparked a Raider attack on Wilson's zone defense that netted 12 points.

Wilson's only field goal in the third period again was by Cowdrey, though its scoring was supplemented by six foul shots. Hal Mitchell registered the Raider's pair of goals in the stanza, both his specialty—follow shots.

To its towering center, Cowdrey, Wilson owed its victory. His 11 points were high for the game and the balls he took off the foes' backboard stopped numerous Western threats. Johnny Lumpkin and Schenker sparked the losers with 6 points each. Julie Columbus, of Wilson, and Lumpkin were the games' only casualties due to excessive fouls.

Hal Mitchell (9), of Western High, appears to be blocking Jackson's dribble in this shot of yesterday's interhigh game with Wilson but it wasn't a foul. After a scramble Jimmy Karas, the player on his knees, got the ball. Western's Irvin Schenker (6) and Wilson's Moke MacDonald and Roy Cowdrey (17), are also shown. Wilson won the game, 25-22

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, Jan. 23.—Eddie Mead, the manager of Hammering Henry Armstrong, the inventor of perpetual motion, tells us that we cut him and Henry to the quick (a slice that Henry can ill afford to take) by writing that we doubted the altruism in Henry's recent boycott of the American Legion fight club in Los Angeles.

CONSIDINE

Henry announced a few days ago that he would not go through with his scheduled fight against Ceferino Garcia for the Los Angeles Legion, because the legion had barred colored fighters from its shows. We pointed out that another, and perhaps more important reason, was that Mike Jacobs, who controls both fighters, wasn't in favor of the fight.

We said that Henry had boxed for the legion, in his earlier days in Los Angeles, but this is a mistake— Eddie says. The only colored fighter they ever used out there was George Crouch. Henry fought for the opposition, the Olympic crowd, when he fought.

As a result of Henry's stand the legion met the other night and decided to use at least one colored fighter a month on its cards. Henry has done his race a good turn, and taken another poke at the fight game's almost nonexistent intolerance.

Mead Wants the Fight

Mead wants the Garcia fight—for Henry, of course. "It'll do between a hunnert and twenty five and a hunnert and fifty (thousand) if it does a quarter. But I can't make the move. It's up to Parnassus (Garcia's manager). It ain't my title they'll be fighting for. It'll be his. I can fight, for y'see Mike hasn't got anything to say about Henry fighting when the welterweight title ain't up. I figure if Parnassus get's Mike's okay, we can go. But gettin' it's somethin' different."

Meanwhile, Henry has a fight on his hands tomorrow night. If Pedro Montanez can biff him one early in the fight, it's going to be all that Henry can do to keep the third and last of the trio of titles he once held. For Pedro, who frightens easily, is a front runner of merit. Like Baer, he's five times tougher when he thinks he's got his guy.

The fight is for the first championship event in New York this year, and Henry's first showing since last summer, when he lost the lightweight title to Lou Ambers in an eerie exhibition which saw him penalized for fouling in 5 of the 15 rounds. That was Henry's first setback in 46 fights—a record you might tarry over—and of course he hasn't been beaten since then.

He Is Fighting Champion

They call Joe Louis a fighting champion, but what about that Armstrong? Tomorrow night's fight will be his fifteenth defense of the welterweight crown he won in May, 1938, from Barney Ross. Ten of the 14 welterweight matches he has had ended in kayos, and the other four in point triumphs. Armstrong has placed his 147-pound crown on the line more often than the previous 11 welter kings combined.

Montanez has a great record, for a guy who never won a title. The only title he ever fought for—the lightweight crown—saw him tied up like a trunk murder by Lou Ambers. He had beaten Ambers when the title wasn't at stake, flooring Luigi with an imposing right to the jaw. But when they played marbles for keeps, Lou fairly sabotaged him.

Saint Albans Beaten, 24-17, By Friends

Paced by a pair of high-scoring brothers, Jack and Frederick Ogden, Baltimore Friends School took a 34-to-17 basketball victory from St. Alban's yesterday on the local court. It was the Saints' second loss in four games.

Between them the Ogdens registered more points than the combined St. Alban's Club—19. Brother Frederick won out in the family duel by a single point.

Though behind at the end of each quarter, the Saints managed to stay within reach of their opponents until after the half. They trailed, 10 to 4, after the first period, but rallied somewhat for only a 14-to-10 deficit at intermission. The Baltimoreans' rush from there in gradually increased the margin.

Bill Hannon and Bill Terry stood out for the losers with 6 points apiece. Only two other members of the club were able to score at all—Hare getting 3 points and Le Fevre 2.

Bethesda Five Beaten, 45-39, By Roosevelt

Travis' 23 Points Paces Attack; Riders Without Two Stars

Two of the highest single-game scoring records of the schoolboy cage season were chalked up yesterday at Bethesda gym as the home team lost a 45-39 decision to Roosevelt High.

Ernie Travis, giant center, scored 23 points in the Riders' behalf, and Johnny Shumate's total for the losers was only one point lower. Sixteen of Travis' markers came in the first half while Shumate registered eight. In the second half the tables were reversed, Shumate getting 14 while Travis got 7.

In winning their eighth game in nine starts the Riders were minus two of their outstanding players. Hymie Perlo and George West, the first in second place among the District's schoolboy scorers, were left at home due to slight colds. They will both be able to play in Roosevelt's interhigh clash with Western Friday, however.

Score Is Tied

At the end of two periods—the first and third—the score was tied up at 8-8 and 29-29, respectively. Shumate was mainly responsible for Bethesda's even break going into the last period, using his knife-like pot shots and one-hand shots to pull the team out of a 22-13 deficit at the half. He nor his mates, however, could stop Roosevelt's mad rush down the stretch.

The defeat was Bethesda's fourth in 12 games to date. Largely responsible was the loss of Shumate midway of the final period through personal fouls. Al Goodman, Rider forward, was also waved out.

Franny Hughes, Bethesda star guard, was unable to play because of an injured foot but it was announced he might be ready for Bethesda's important game with Montgomery Blair Friday night.

Eagles Win, 4-3; Oriole Slugs Official

3 Major Penalties Inflicted; Courteau Leads Local Attack

By Jack Munhall.

In a riotous finish which saw an official slugged by a visiting player and two other players banished for fighting, the Washington Eagles last night snapped their three game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles at Riverside Stadium.

A crowd of 2,000 fans saw Coach Redvers Mackenzie's setet overcome a 2-0 first period deficit to win a hard-fought and well-played match that gave them undisputed possession of second place. Baltimore slipped down to third position.

Rough throughout, the game was nearly climaxed in a free-for-all in the final minute of play after Jack Tuten, burly Baltimore defense had punched Lineman Phil LaBatte to show his displeasure over an offside penalty unfavorable to the Orioles.

Amid the confusion to which a pressing crowd contributed, Paul Courteau, of Washington, and Jack Riley, of Baltimore, engaged in a toe-to-toe slugging exchange and several other players of both teams jostled each other. The action, occuring just inside the restraining wall in front of the entrance, quickly drew an audience of fans who, despite the efforts of ushers, were within slapping distance of the participants.

Tuten Gets 10 Minutes

For his part in the fracas, Tuten drew down the stiffest penalty yet awarded here, ten minutes for misconduct, while Courteau and Riley each was banished five minutes for fighting. The penalties, however, made little difference for at the time of their infliction there was only 40 seconds remaining to play.

Courteau, the fiery-tempered little French Canadian wing and the Eagles' most improved player, was Washington's big hero. Responding to Coach Mackenzie's ultimatum of play hockey, and stop fighting—or else—Courteau contributed his top performance of the campaign. He scored three goals, including the decisive point, in the final period, and otherwise acquitted himself with honor.

Big Bill Davies and Len Burrage, at defense posts, and Roy Covert, at center, also were prominent in the fashioning of the triumph that ended the string of Washington losses which were suffered, two from River Vale and the third from Baltimore, by a humiliating 10-to-2 score.

Orioles in Form

The Orioles, although they were playing their third tough match in as many days, gave the Eagles a terrific battle.

Looking anything but weary from their strenuous activity of the week-end, the Orioles hopped off to a 3-2 lead. Although they played and lost two matches Sunday, the visitors carried the fight to the Eagles who muffed several excellent scoring opportunities by sloppy passing in front of the net.

After Baltimo had run up a 2-0 advantage on goals by Hunt and Erickson, Washington tied it up as Courteau slapped in a pair of long and difficult angle shots, one of which was helped in by Baltimore Goalie Kelly. Though Kelly will

White, Wrestling's New 'Sugar Baby,' Faces Ernie Dusek

Determined to follow in the footsteps of other football stars who found wrestling a more lucrative field, Tarzan White, New York Giants' tackle, will find himself in the headline role tomorrow night at Turner's Arena well on the way to the mat business' "heavy sugar."

In the brief space of six weeks Tarzan has worked up to the top spot at the arena—a somewhat dubious honor, but one which pays better than a preliminary role.

The feature bout is worked on a sort of rotating basis, with all of the preliminary boys getting a shot at it after so long a period, a certain period of service at the arena. Tarzan's opponent will be Ernie Dusek.

The supporting cast features Tommy O'Toole and Joe Cox, Chief White Feather and Lou Plummer, Frank Judson and Joe Maynard and Alan Eustace against Tommy Rae.

EDDIE BRANNICK

Secretary Eddie Brannick Worked 3 Years for $3 Weekly; Loved It

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Jan. 23.—He couldn't make it one way, but the one-track ambition—to be a member of the New York Giants—that burned in the breast of Eddie Brannick found another gateway, and today he has a record of 36 years continuous service with the organization, and the word "secretary" after his name.

It was a long, tough road for the genial Irishman who today, at 46, is one of the best liked, or, to be more accurate, most beloved men in the game. To know Eddie Brannick is to go overboard for him, possibly because he himself is always thinking of the other fellow.

He sat in his big, comfortable office, a short, sturdy, black-haired, red-faced figure with long, lean jaw and eyes which twinkled and were deadly serious by turns. Words of philosophy, stories of baseball's great—the McGraws, the Mathewsons, the McGinnitys—flowed easily from the lips of this little walking encyclopedia of baseball.

"I dreamed as a boy of becoming a Giant ballplayer," he mused. "But I weighed only 135, and never could make it. On my eleventh birthday, in 1905, President John T. Brush made me his office boy.

"I got $3 a week for three years. Other kids would say: 'Aw, come on, I know where you can get $4.50.' But I loved it and stuck it out. You know, that's what is the trouble with the young fellows today. They leave school and expect to step into a white collar job as boss. They're too impatient.

"And they don't have heroes. Why, I used to go to bed at night like this." He crossed his arms reverently over his chest, "thinking of Mr. Mathewson. He was my hero."

Eddie misters practically everybody. John McGraw is never anyone but Mr. McGraw, whose memory still brings awe to Eddie's voice.

"It's been a great life, and I've been happy," he continued. "The contacts you make—politicians, business executives, sportsmen, the big and little in all walks of life."

Johnny Five Rallies to Beat Tech by 28-24

3d Period Attack Nets Improved Scarlet Victory

St. John's big basketball club continued to acquire considerable caste as one of the most improved high school teams in this area as it nosed out a scrappy Tech five, 28 to 24, yesterday on the ----'s court.

Once again it was blond Frank Cady who only last week set a seasonal scoring mark with 27 points who paced the Cadets to victory. Shackled in the first half by the effective guarding of little Jake Walsh, Cady found the range in the second half and wound up his day's work with a total of 13 points.

The small crowd which wormed its way into the Tech gym was entertaining its doubts concerning the outcome as the first half closed with the Maroon holding a slender 14-13 margin. But with the advent of the second half the Johnnies outshot, outpassed and generally outclassed the hosts.

It was in the third quarter that St. John's attack manifested itself to place the game beyond Tech's reach. Cady sparked the Cadet flame as he dropped in two quick field goals to give his team a 17-to-14 lead. Dick Hathaway, slender Johnny guard, followed suit with a 2-pointer and from then Tech was forced to battle valiantly in order to keep the score within reasonable bounds.

Nor was St. John's defense overlooked in its offensive splurge. Not a Techite was able to score from the field in the third quarter, their only points being registered on two successful free throws by Marshall Dellinger, captain and guard. It was not until the fifth minute of the final quarter that Charlie Ellis, a reserve forward, made Tech's first field goal of the second half.

Tech started strongly in the opening quarter by scoxing 6 consecutive points before Cady was able to count St. John's first point with a foul shot. Corrado and Cady teamed in drawing the Cadets almost abreast of the hosts at 6-5, but Webb tallied a follow-up shot to give Tech an 8-5 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Rain, Wind, Fog and Scratches Hamper Racing at Hialeah

Okeechobee Purse Is Won By Dolly Val

Flying Lee Places, With Counterpoise Third; Winner Pays His Backers 3-1 Odds

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Jan. 23.—A brief but terrific rainstorm, accompanied by fog and a driving wind, broke out shortly before the first race and raised havoc with the program here today. Of the 92 horses entered overnight, 36 were scratched, leaving only 56 starters for the eight events. For a time it was doubtful whether the featured Okeechobee Purse of 1 1-16 miles would be run over the turf course, as the grass strip can easily be torn up and become slippery as well following a heavy rainstorm. The rain ceased after the second race and the stewards finally decided to let the event be run as per schedule, with six of the dozen original entrants accepting the issue.

James Emery's consistent mare Dolly Val, after several promising attempts, took down top honors by a length after a drive with H. P. Headley's Flying Lee. Louis B. Mayer's Counterpoise was third best, another five lengths behind. The favored Parscout was a non-threatening fourth in front of Shot Put and Cardinalis. The winner, a 3-to-1 chance, negotiated the soggy course in 1:50 4-5 under Apprentice Merle Packer.

Counterpoise Leads

Counterpoise showed his usual early speed for more than a half mile, racing Cardinalis into defeat before being tackled by the easy-going Dolly Val. The latter asserted her superiority around the last bend. Flying Lee also spurted and made her bid through the stretch. For a moment the Headley mare appeared a threat, but she hung in the closing drive.

Seed, a mud-loving 5-year-old, was too good for five other platers in the mile and a furlong seventh event. Nicely rated behind Sun Mica's pace by Eddie Arcaro, the son of Chestnut Oak swept to the front in the stretch and drew off for a four-length triumph at odds of $7.50 for $2. Sun Mica was second by a length over the favorite, Play Gold, which was sharply blocked leaving the backstretch.

The going was very sloppy for the initial contest. Honeyboo, in the tote "field" with White Time, came from close off the pace while racing on the extreme outside and got up to win by a length. Black One, an alleged "good thing," set most of the pace and lasted to beat Red Burr by a length and a half for the place. Honeyboo paid $17.80 and finished the 3 furlongs in 0:36.

Transday, with Eddie Arcaro up, was confidently backed in the third race. The gelding flattered his followers to the stretch, where he tired and lost a length verdict to Depthbomb, an $8.50-for-$2 shot. Strolling By was a well-beaten third. Depthbomb forced Transday's pace and responded willingly under a nicely judged ride by Apprentice Charlie Wells, who chalked up his first victory of the meeting.

HONEY BOO, far out on the outside, was lightly punished in the early racing while going in the first flight, responded stoutly approaching the finish and wore BLACK ONE down in the last sixteenth. BLACK ONE showed much speed in the footing while setting the pace, raced straight and true and held on willingly. RED BURR, in tight quarters early, obtained racing room and finished determinedly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLD BAND, $26.70, $14.20, $6.80; DISCOBOLO, $18.30, $9.70; WAR STREAK, $6.30.

GOLD BAND broke swiftly to sprint into an easy lead, rallied stoutly when threatened midway of the turn, was placed to punishment when reaching the homestretch and had enough in reserve to stall off DISCOBOLO. The latter, hard urged to keep within striking distance of the leaders, responded to urging in the late stages and made up ground steadily. WAR STREAK, racing kindly, was under steady pressure in the early racing and came with good courage for the closing drive.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DEPTHBOMB, $8.50, $3.70, $3.00; TRANSDAY, $3.40, $2.60; STROLLING BY, $3.50.

DEPTHBOMB, steadied close to the pacemaker in the early stages, made repeated challenges in the last half mile, rallied strongly when approaching the stretch, withstood a stout drive willingly and overhauled TRANSDAY inside the closing furlong. TRANSDAY, hustled to get into the lead going to the first turn, was rated smoothly while saving ground, was placed to punishment after reaching the homestretch, but failed to withstand the winner. STROLLING BY, in full stride after the first 5 furlongs, bettered his position gradually to enter contention, but could not gain on the leaders in the closing drive.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GO HOME, $4.90, $3.30, $3.20; LITTLE RHODY, $4.20, $3.70; COMO NO, $4.50.

GO HOME, suited by the footing, was ridden strongly to get to the front early, shook off stout opposition from COMO NO in the first 5 furlongs, drew clear when entering the homestretch, then was lightly punished to hold sway in the stretch run. LITTLE RHODY, racing on the outside of the leaders, improved his position gradually and was going willingly approaching the finish. COMO NO forced a steady pace for 5 furlongs, then weakened in the last quarter mile.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:06. Off 4:06½. Winner, Woolford Farm's b. c. TONGANOXIE, racing in close attendance of the early leaders, went to the front with a rush when reaching the turn, was mildly punished to draw clear, then was kept out in front striking distance of the leaders, displayed a mild rally going the last half mile, continued to save ground, but was no match for the winner while proving best of the others. YELLOW ROSE could not engage the leaders at any stage and was under strong pressure throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles (on turf). Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Okeechobee. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36½. Off 4:37. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOLLY VAL, $8.00, $3.90, $3.10; FLYING LEE, $5.80, $4.20; COUNTERPOISE, $4.40.

DOLLY VAL, stoutly reserved for the first 6 furlongs while racing close up, responded to overhaul COUNTERPOISE when reaching the final turn, saved ground when in front and was shaken up vigorously in the last furlong to stall off FLYING LEE. The latter, steadied back of the leaders until nearing the last curve, moved forward swiftly on the outside and came with good courage approaching the finish. COUNTERPOISE displayed good speed while setting the pace and raced CARDINALIS into submission, but was unable to stay with the first two when the real test came.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:05. Off 5:06. Winner, F. H. Williamson's br. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEED, $7.50, $4.20, $3.20; SUN MICA, $7.10, $4.20; PLAY GOLD, $3.00.

SEED, racing kindly and in his best form, followed abreast of SUN MICA after drawing on almost even terms at the first turn, rallied strongly to gain the lead in the last furlong, then under stout urging, came out swiftly at the end. SUN MICA showed good speed to set the pace and met repeated challenges from the winner in the first mile, but failed to hold on approaching the finish. PLAY GOLD was badly impeded about in the first 7 furlongs when Eccard attempted to drive through on the inside of the leaders, was crowded back a couple of times, then weakening after being finally taken to the outside in the last quarter mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:38. Off at once. Winner, J. F. Quinn, sr.'s br. c. LACKAWANNA, eased back off the pace after being hurried to the first turn, moved up stoutly after going 7 furlongs, stole through on the inside of the leaders to take command entering the homestretch, was kept under strong pressure and had enough left in reserve to withstand PICCOLO. The latter, outrun for 6 furlongs, worked his way forward on the outside until reaching the leaders, then finished strong while saving ground through the stretch. WHITE SAND dropped far out of contention in the early running.

Selections at Hialeah Park

Dear Al:

How did you like that "Confucius" horse in yesterday's first race? I mean Honeyboo at that $17.80 mutuel, and the price would have been sweeter if she hadn't been a "field" horse. For today, Confucius says: Horse named Barker big noise in seventh race. What racing needs is a Judge Landis. All along the line, the boys shoot too many angles and at each other and the public. There are too many sets of rules and too much favoritism shown. Then there is no appeal in many cases. I would not suggest taking the "Judge Landis of racing" from any part of the present turf setup. I would rather have a man who would start from scratch with an open mind. The tracks could well afford to pay him a big salary. The way things are going now, those who make the money out of racing sooner or later will kill the goose that's laying the golden egg. There are 111 riders available at Hialeah, according to a checkup by Al Burlen, clerk of scales. On the list are 86 full-fledged jockeys and 25 apprentices. The lightest of the vets is F. A. Smith, under contract to Col. E. R. Bradley, who weighs 100 pounds. The heaviest are Raymond "Sonny" Workman, free lance, at 116 pounds, and H. Cruz, under contract to Nat Ray, at 115 pounds. The apprentice crop lightweight is Conn McCreary, employed by C. W. Pershall, who tips the scales at 96 pounds. J. Flinchum, riding for the Byrum brothers, weighs 97 pounds. Top-weight in the apprentice division is J. Mattison, 108 pounds, who is under contract to Hirsch Jacobs. Jockey Eddie Arcaro is the leading veteran rider of the meeting in the race for the P. A. B. Widener gold watch award. In all, Arcaro has been astride 18 victors since the first of the year, 8 being acquired at Tropical Park.

BILL.

First race—I'm going to try to chase the Zantker-Young Entry of I Bid and Too Easy to the wire in the opener. I'm putting chief reliance in the first named. Chance Cut will draw the bulk of the play and is the one to beat. Blue Lily to take care of the others.

Second race—A sprint of this kind is not beyond the reach of Cornwallis. The promise of an off track will be in his favor and Mannie Berg knows how to ride this one. Persuasive and Malinda B. are good ones and will be in the thick of contention.

Third race—I'm going to back another old Maryland friend for a longshot winner in this field. Clapair has worked well and is another who will like the rough track conditions William Palmer and Witheraway have class and will battle it out if I have overrated the top one.

Fourth race—Damaged Goods is in excellent form, as that recent winning effort suggests. This field seems to suit and I'm going to string along. June Bee and Liberty Ann to fill out the money bracket.

FIFTH race—Visigoth, one who failed me at a long price, fits in this field like a glove, and I see no reason for mistakes. I'm depending upon Flinchum for one of his better rides. Greeny was scratched yesterday for this and is a threat. Our Kecham for the minor award.

Sixth race—Wise Barrister has been sent along to me as one with an excellent chance of scoring in this field. Goes coupled with Chief Gamble as the Boeing Entry and may get help from the stable mate. Bucking is as fit as that recent smashing effort. Stormscud for the show end.

Seventh race—Our Teddy is in light and turned in a good race last out. Mike Caffarella will handle the booting and I'm going to be there. Fly Me will like the change in track conditions and is dangerous. Copper Tube for award No. 3.

Eighth race—Star Mint moves up in the rough going, but I don't know if this one can overcome the inside post position. However, I'm willing to gamble on that and shoot for a long price. Midshipman definitely is on his feed and a fit horse. Broadus for the third money.

Best bet—Damaged Goods.

49 Widener Candidates Still Eligible

Owners Pay $100 Fee; Field to Be Further Cut by $500 Payment

Miami, Fla., Jan. 23.—Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit, a very doubtful starter, was assigned for top weight of 132 pounds today as 49 horses were declared for the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup race at Hialeah Park March 2.

William L. Brann's Challedon, voted the country's best 3-year-old last year, was named at 130 pounds and Howard's Kayak II at one pound less.

Although Howard posted the $100 declaration fees for Seabiscuit and Kayak II it appeared likely both would be campaigned in California. Brann also has not said definitely he would bring Challedon here for the Widener.

Townsend B. Martin's Cravat and Marshall Field's Sir Damion were listed at 120 pounds, with Olympus, one of William Woodward's three English racers, getting in nicely at 119. Woodward's other two Belair stud nominees were Bosley at 115 and Valerian at 106.

Among the high weights Wheatley Stable's Stormscud and Woolford Farm's Technician were named at 118 each.

Last year's Widener winner, Bull Lea, was withdrawn by the Calumet Stable after the horse failed to train properly. Another Warren Wright horse, Easy Mond, was declared for the Widener at 112 pounds.

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Jan. 23.—Good Memory, a consistent performer from the stable of Mrs. L. Fry, won his first victory at the Fair Grounds this year, when he beat out Mrs. C. D. Boyd's Oxford Lad by a half length in the featured sixth race today.

After Oxford Lad had set the pace for the greater part of the mile and 70 yards journey, Good Memory, ridden by G. Oros, took command at the head of the stretch and held on well to win.

Local Building In 1939 Is 52% Above 1938

Total of Last Year's Contracts Amounts To $119,512,000

By Thomas M. Cahill.

While home building was a leading item in last year's construction in the Washington metropolitan area, nonresidential building and heavy engineering also advanced from previous levels.

A year-end summary prepared by Henry A. Johns, local manager of Dodge Reports, a division of F. W. Dodge Corporation, reveals that contracts awarded for all types of construction materials and labor throughout this area reached $119,512,000 last year, or 52 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1938 valuation total of $78,659,000. Largest contract volume of last year was recorded in June, second and third highest valuation being in August and April, respectively.

The local gain of 52 per cent exceeds the average increase of 11 per cent, recorded for the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains. It is also significant that 1939 residential work developed the best record in the local metropolitan area, which includes the District of Columbia; Arlington and Fairfax counties, Montgomery and Prince Georges, Md. The final figure for this classification was $60,617,000, or 36 per cent ahead of the 1938 total, $44,452,000.

Home Building Gains

This gain of 36 per cent in the residential category exceeded the average upturn of 35 per cent in the 37-State area. Nonresidential building throughout the country was less active than it was in 1938, a decrease of 10 per cent being revealed by the year-end total. In the local metropolitan area. However, nonresidential work accounted for 1939 contracts valued at $42,956,000, while those of 1938 reached $24,987,000, the gain amounting to 72 per cent.

Engineering construction undertaken by the Federal, State and local governments and the utilities amounted to $15,939,000, a gain of 73 per cent over the 1938 total of $9,220,000. The average rise throughout most of the country was set at 10 per cent.

Private ownership was responsible for more 1939 construction in the Washington metropolitan area than was credited to public ownership, the summary concludes. The private total mounted to $76,098,000 in an advance from the 1938 level of $54,434,000. Public contracts went to $43,414,000 from $24,225,000.

Mass Mutual Life

An average of $131,608 a day was paid to living policyholders and beneficiaries by Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. in 1939, according to the company's "simplified and humanized" annual report made public by Bertrand J. Perry, president. The report contains a number of innovations designed to help its 375,000 policyholders to visualize the social and economic contributions of the company as well as to depict its financial progress.

Total benefit payments last year amounted to $48,036,985 of which $30,736,733 went to living policyholders in dividends, matured endowments, surrender values and disability and annuity payments, while $17,300,253 was paid out in death claims. Assets increased $40,893,530 during the year to $688,640,431. The company's total receipts during the year amounted to $119,939,187, with disbursements of $80,904,843. The balance of $39,034,343 was added to policyholders' funds for the further guarantee of future benefit payments.

Policy Total Nearly 2 Billions

Life insurance in force increased $31,812,106 to a total of $1,963,572,243, representing 512,937 policies at the year end. In addition there were in force at the close of the year 11,285 annuity contracts under which $3,611,037 is being paid annually and 27,329 contracts under which annual income of over $14,780,000 will be paid in the future.

Further improvement in the mortality experience of the company was recorded, $950 out of every $100,000 of insurance in force becoming payable through death compared with $998 in 1938. The actual interest rate earned by the company's investments was 4.6 per cent and after deducting investment ex-

The final ginning report will be issued March 20.

Ginnings were 11,552,913 bales to January 16 a year ago, and 16,644,208 bales two years ago.

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Plans for an $85,000,000 construction program in the first three months of this year were made public today by American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Wheat Falls With Slump In Soy Beans

Wheat Closings Are 1-1⅜ Cents Under Previous Day

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The wheat market weakened today after a steady to easier start and prices at times lost 1½ cents a bushel. Closing values were near the day's lows.

A dip in other commodities, especially cotton, prospects of more snowfall in the grain belt and a 3-cent break in soy beans contributed to the downturn. Also a bearish factor and tending to restrict trade, was uncertainty concerning the ultimate disposition of wheat held under Government loan. The Government announced recently that it did not contemplate extending loans beyond the maturity dates, which are March 31 on 1938 wheat and April 30 on 1939 wheat.

May wheat fell to 99¼, down 1½, before showing rallying power, and July to 96¾, down 1¼. Early in the session milling interests were credited with buying wheat.

Wheat closed 1@1⅛ down, May 99⅜@99½, July 96⅞@99¾; corn 1@1⅛ down, May and July 37¼; oats ⅛@⅜ down; soy beans 2⅞@3 cents down; rye 1@1¼ down; lard 12 to 18 cents a hundredweight lower.

Steel Rally at Close Steadies Prices; Commodities, Lower, More in Public Eye; Treasury Bonds Hold Firm

New York, Jan. 23.—Steel shares rallied in a somewhat unaccountable fashion in the late trading today and prevented the list from closing on the minus side. Share prices had been irregularly lower all day up to the last half hour when new buying, centering principally on the pivotals, developed. Some issues came back as much as a point from their lows and most groups ended with fractional gains. An exception was the utilities, which were handicapped by vague rumors of further activity in the power industry by the energetic Securities and Exchange Commission. The 100 stocks closed 0.07 point higher.

Commodity sections once again took the play from equities. Foreign selling of cotton futures carried over at the same pace as on Monday and brought about breaks of 30 to 39 points. In the first two trading days of the week, king cotton has lost nearly $4 a bale in some positions. Wheat yielded 1 to 1⅜ cents a bushel to return virtually to the point it occupied before Saturday's buoyant dealings. Pork sold at a 6-year low.

Steel Outlook

There was no very definite reasons assigned to the late upturn in the steels other than the group is considered by some Wall Street commentators as oversold. It might have been that there was a little short covering, based on the thought that U. S. Steel's fourth quarter and 1939 earnings, due Thursday, may be a bit better than forecasters have indicated. The consensus is that $2 a share or more will be shown on common stock. Whether or not such a showing will enable directors to declare a dividend is, of course, of great moment to the financial district. It is felt that irrespective of the size of the 1939 profit, big Steel's board would not be inclined to make a distribution unless prospects for the immediate future are fairly satisfactory.

The early irregularity of the market reflected not only pessimism over the plummeting of some commodity prices and appearance of weakness in others, but was the result of prominence in the news of proposals for higher State income taxes; as well as the view of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that he favored higher taxation and an increase in the National debt limit.

Bethlehem Steel came back a point from its low and closed at 71¼, up ¾ point. U. S. Steel at a last price of 57 was ahead ⅝. Chrysler rallied from 81¾ to 82¼ for a small advance and General Motors, in the active section, was up a small fraction. Loft was again the most active issue and Standard Brands held second place. New highs were made by Brooklyn-Manhattan-Transit preferred and International Harvester preferred, while gains of a point or more appeared in Union Pacific, National Steel, New York Air Brake and Liquid Carbonic. National Dairy preferred issues had losses running to more than 2 points. Union Carbide was off more than a point.

Aircrafts in Demand

Aircrafts benefited from a steady though small demand based on announcements by the British purchasing authorities here that deliveries are being maintained, and new estimates from unofficial but well-posted sources that orders already placed by the allied governments by no means represent the peak of their needs. Douglas, with a gain of nearly 2 points, was a feature and several stocks in the group appeared in the list of active leaders including Lockheed, G. L. Martin and United.

Bond Market Irregular

In trading somewhat more active than that on Monday, the bond market displayed an irregular tone today. United States Government issues, after a mild show of strength in the forenoon, wound up the day unchanged to 2/32 higher, with the largest advance recorded in the longest dated issues.

Corporate bond dealings were featured, both on the New York Stock Exchange and the curb, by the sudden break in several of the Pacific Coast utility issues. On the stock exchange, Portland General Electric 4½s of 1960 dropped 4⅜ points, while on the curb three issues of Puget Sound Power and Light bonds fell from 3⅝ to 4 points and Pacific Power and Light Prior Lien 5s declined 4¼ points. The explanation for this weakness in utility bonds of companies operating in the Northwest to the indication that the Eugene, Oreg., vote a few days ago against buying power from Government projects did not dispose finally of the question of private versus Federal power in that locality.

Some of the better grade rail bonds scored small advances, but second grade rails were irregular. In the foreign bond list, Danish Government and Estonian obligations were soft, but Norwegian and Belgian bonds were higher. Australian issues also found a better demand.

Steel Buyers Add Heavily To Inventories

Increase Figured At 21 Per Cent Above September 1

Cleveland, Jan. 23.—Steel inventories of buyers increased 8 per cent in November and December, 1939. Since September 1, stocks have expanded 21 per cent. This is indicated by results of the latest survey conducted by the magazine Steel to ascertain the trend in steel users' inventories, and reported in detail today in its current issue.

Representative companies of all sizes were questioned in compiling this study. The sampling of several hundred firms showed an inventory of 8 per cent in November and December. A previous survey, undertaken in November, disclosed that between August 31 and October 31 stocks rose 12.2 per cent.

On the basis of the separate increases recorded in September-October and in November-December, it may be calculated that consumers have built up their inventories approximately 21 per cent since September 1.

During this period ingot production showed a monthly average increase of 34.5 per cent, compared with August, and finished steel shipments—as measured by data of United States Steel Corporation—had a monthly gain of 48.6 per cent.

The increase in amount of material on hand apparently may be attributed to inventory additions by larger buyers. Major consumers, designated as those having inventories on December 31 of $100,000 or more, boosted their stocks 10.6 per cent between October 31 and the end of the year. Companies having inventories between $50,000 and $100,000 recorded a gain of 6.1 per cent; those in the $25,000-$50,000 classification had only a 1.2 per cent increase, while the smallest users showed a reduction of 3.9 per cent in stocks during the two months. In all cases inventories on December 31 remained higher than on September 1, but the average for small buyers was an increase of only 3 to 4 per cent.

Numerically, 41 per cent of all companies carried less steel on hand December 31 than they did October 31. Little or no change was shown by 6 per cent of the reporting buyers and 53 per cent enlarged their holdings. By contract, only 26 per cent lowered their inventories between August 31 and October 31, while 68 per cent were bolstering their supplies to support the rising tide of consumption.

Australia Seeks U. S. Auto Experts And Machine Tools

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 23 (AP).—William J. Smith, managing director of Australian Consolidated Industries, is en route to the United States to purchase tools and employ supervising experts to establish a government-backed £1,500,000 (nearly $6,000,000) automobile plant in Australia. Erection of the factory is part of a government plan to curb the flow of dollars to the United States. Smith is due to arrive in Los Angeles January 26.

The government will provide a bonus on 60,000 motors of 15 or more horsepower to an Australian owned and controlled company. The bonus amounts to £30 ($120) for each of the first 20,000 motors, £25 ($100) for the second 20,000 motors and £20 ($80) for the third 20,000.

The plan calls for the government to grant a five-year monopoly to the Australian Consolidated Industries.

During the last fiscal year Australia imported £6,250,000 ($25,000,000) worth of automobiles, truck chassis and parts.

The practice has been to import motors and chassis from Britain, Canada and the United States and to add them to Australian-made bodies.

The bounty fund now totals more than £1,000,000 ($4,000,000) derived from an earmarked seven-tenths pence per pound tariff on imported motors and chassis which was first levied in 1937.

Cotton Prices Drop $1.50 to $2 Per Bale

By the Associated Press

New York, Jan. 23.—A wave of foreign and domestic selling engulfed the cotton futures market today. Prices were driven down to final losses of 30 to 40 points. Orders to sell piled into the ring at such a furious rate that not until nearly one-half hour after the closing bell were complete final prices available. A break in foreign markets—notably Bombay and Liverpool—was the main clue to the decline, brokers said.

One cotton expert explained it this way: "A huge speculative position was built up between Bombay and New York markets over a period of weeks late last year.

"Cotton at Bombay and Liverpool sold at unprecedented levels over New York. Suddenly the bubble burst. Traders realized there was no basis in the supply and demand picture for the huge disparities between local and foreign markets.

"The readjustment to a more normal relationship has taken place in the last week or so. It has been a shock to the market and many domestic holders of contracts in addition to foreign interests, have unloaded their cotton."

Red Auerbach Tops Colonial Scoring Aces

Has Registered Total Of 91 Points in First 10 Contests

Little Red Auerbach, perhaps the most inconspicuous member of George Washington's great basketball team, continues to lead his teammates in scoring. Figures for the Colonials' first ten games show the fiery-thatched senior guard has pumped in 41 field goals and 15 free throws for 91 points.

Runner-up to Auerbach is Sophomore Matt Zunic with 91 points. Close behind this pace-setting pair are Capt. George Garber and Joe Comer, junior center, with 84 and 81 points, respectively. Bobby Gilham, sophomore guard and fifth regular, has 56.

The Colonials now boasting a record of six victories in a row and eight in ten games, have averaged slightly better than 50 points as a team, a mark claimed by few other colleges playing a major schedule.

Mamakos, D. C. Welter, Fights In Baltimore

Steve Faces Williams As Promoters Seek Opponent for Champ

Still refusing to accept the challenge of Washington's pretender to the local welterweight throne, Phil Furr, to come back home and fight, Steve Mamakos, Southwest battler, will step into the ring in Baltimore's Coliseum tomorrow night to meet Holman Williams in a 12-round bout.

Matchmaker Lew Diamond and Promoter Larry Kaplan are seeking to produce an early opponent for Henry Armstrong, welterweight champion, who has given the two a half-way promise that he will come to Baltimore in the next few weeks.

Mamakos, whose fighting style resembles Henry's hammer-and-tongs methods, has been campaigning in Baltimore and New York rings and avoiding Turner's arena as though it had a smallpox sign on the door. He dropped a decision early last fall to the Cocoa Kid in Baltimore but has had better luck recently.

Furr, who has piled up seven straight victories in his current comeback attempt, has challenged Mamakos to a match for the mythical District championship, but Steve won't listen.

Barney Ross, who once handed Phil one of his worst beatings in the ring, will referee the semifinal fight on the Mamakos-Williams card. Steve will be about an even choice against Williams, despite the fact that Holman recently upset Cocoa Kid.

Western Va. Due to Land Major Golf

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 23.—President W. F. Souder of the Virginia State Golf Association said today he believed at least two of the three major tournaments now sponsored by the association would be played in the western part of the State.

While no definite action will be taken until the annual meeting of the association—tentatively set for March 31 at the Farmington Country Club here—Souder indicated that the State Amateur would be played at Hot Springs over the Fourth of July week-end and the State golf team tournament probably would be played as a one-day affair here early in September.

No invitations have been received from any club for the State women's tournament, but Souder said he understood the Danville Golf Club and the James River Country Club at Newport News planned to bid for it.

The State open no longer comes under the jurisdiction of the State association. Souder said, however, he had heard officials of the Virginia Open Golf Association were dickering with officials at Lynchburg for use of a course at that city.

Henry Armstrong Is Favored Tonight

He Never Lets Up

Opposed to this, Armstrong offers little or no chance to a rival to belt away at his body. He's usually right up close to the party of the second part, with his chin resting on the latter's shoulder, and flailing away with both hands, until he wears an opponent down to size.

As is customary whenever the Hammer goes to the post, he'll be giving away about 7 pounds in this bout. He figures to scale 138, heaviest in his ring career, while Montanez will pack about 145. When he won the welterweight crown from gallant little Barney Ross in May, 1938, Armstrong was 133½. Since then he has slowly added weight, all of it in his punching department—across his back and shoulders. From his waist up, the little Los Angeles larruper looks like a middleweight. His legs are still those of a lightweight.

Cherner Five Sets Season Bowling Mark

Rolls High Set of 1,859 At Ice Palace to Beat Stu-Box; Wright Stars

A new season record was hung up in the Chevy Chase Commercial League last night at the Ice Palace Alleys by Cherner five, a team set of 1,859, as it took an odd-game victory over Stu-Box. All Wright's 162 played a large part in the record.

Cherner also tied for team game honors with Hot Shoppe, both with 661. Paul Jarmon's 421 game was mainly responsible for Hot Shoppe's fine mark, as well as a three-game triumph over E. L. Assurance.

Queen Pin Alleys

Northeast bowlers advanced to within one game of first place in the Diamond Cab A. C. League alleys by taking two out of three from the Service Station rollers. Ed Schmid, with a 125 game and 353 set, paced the winners, while Elmer Wesley was high for the losers with 135-363.

Concessions took two from Credit Union, Restaurant won three straight from Hotels and Union Station was blanked by Southeast.

Lucky Strike Alleys

The District Commissioners rollers set a new record in the Income Tax League by taking their twelfth straight victory over General Council to advance into second place behind the leading Special Adjustments team.

Lucky Strike

A pair of season marks went by the boards in the Washington Catholic Ladies League, "Sis" Calvagno, of All-Saints B team, registering both. Her game and set, 145 and 379, were best of the year, also helping the All-Saints to a 537 high game and three games over Holy Trinity.

Bill Fyock's 393 set was a new season record in the Agriculture Forest Service Mixed League. He also had high game of the night, 140, as his Laurel five took high team game and set, 572 and 1,589, and tripped Spruce in three straight games.

Joe Kroman, of B'Nai B'rith, featured Distributors League rolling with 140 game and 371 set. Metro won team game honors with 552.

Heating System To Be Installed By Riverside

Answering the complaints of many fans that they stayed away from ice hockey matches because of the uncomfortable cold, Riverside Stadium officials announced last night that oil heat would be installed as soon as possible.

General Manager Al Farr said he hoped the heating system would be ready for Friday night's game with the New York Rovers. The stadium, now unheated, is usually little warmer than the temperature outside and this condition is responsible for the dwindling crowds, Riverside officials believe.

Card Boxers Aim To Sadden Heinie

Julius Stanges there was a determined glint in Eddie's eyes. Carrig has had only two days of training for boxing, however, and there's a possibility that Windy Reilly will be conscripted for the 175-pound battle.

The Cardinals' third man is Gerry Strang. Strang, unaffected by the National Collegiate Athletic Association ruling which benches his three teammates because they fought on the varsity as freshmen, will perform in Stant's accustomed 165-pound position.

Strang's bout with Newton Cox, Maryland's Southern Conference senior middleweight champion, should be the high light of the night. Strang, with two knockouts to his credit already this year, outpointed Cox on a late rally last year.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

K. A. P. wants to know who was at fault because he and his partner did not reach a slam on these cards:

South
◇ A
♣ J 10 9 4 2

The bidding, with North-South vulnerable, South dealer:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | 1 ♠ | 2 ♣ | Pass |
| 5 ♣ | Pass | Pass | Pass |

He writes: North and South made seven clubs. What bid do you think South should have made at the time he bid five clubs? I regret it is impossible to give you North's holding.

South might have made several bids other than five clubs, but the terrific leap certainly should have induced North to bid six at least. Possibly South's best bid is a forcing overcall in the defenders' suit, two spades.

With this start the partners might have climbed to slam a little more slowly and with more confidence.

3-Point Program To Increase Shad In Bay Proposed

Newport News, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—State and Federal fisheries men proposed a three-point program to Virginia fishermen meeting here today under auspices of the Commission of Fisheries to discuss means of restoring the once prolific Chesapeake Bay shad.

R. A. Nesbit, in charge of the Middle Atlantic Fisheries investigations of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, compared the recent shad decline in this area with a simultaneous increase in the Hudson River in New York and concluded that over-fishing was the biggest factor in the drop.

Disposing of several proposed conservation measures as "impractical in the final analysis," Nesbit told the fishermen they would have to cut down on the size and the number of their nets to permit more fish to reach the up-river spawning grounds if they wanted to assure a future supply of the fish.

Listen! with Slocum

Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth bring their second "typical American'—the Co-ed—to the Vox Pop" microphone via WJSV tomorrow from the "Deke" house at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., at 7:30.

"Deke" is the affectionate term for members of the 44 chapters of Delta Kappa Epsilon, national collegiate fraternity—from Bowdoin in Maine to U. C. L. A. in California and from U. of Texas to U. of Alberta in Canada.

The typical co-ed to be selected by "Vox Pop" listeners is to accompany Parks and Wally to the Rutgers "Deke" house to join the interviewees. The "typical American" each week is chosen from letters submitteld by CBS listeners who set forth their own reasons why they think their choice should be adjudged "typical."

How long do you suppose it takes to whip together one of those quarter hour daytime serials? Remember a good deal of the 15 minutes is taken up by commercial continuity, yet it takes Bess Flynn, a veteran scripter, about 14 hours a day to fix up episodes of "Life Begins." Don't feel too unhappy for Bess, though, because the money she gets is worth the bother.

Oh, those gay blades in radio! The CBS press department informs the world via its mimeograph department that several of Lanny Ross' co-workers tossed him a birthday party in New York's swank Waldorf Astoria. The piece de resistance was a big, old shoe, served under a huge silver cover. Some fun, eh?

The florists of America have chosen Bea Wain, the "Hit Parade" songstress, "Valentine Girl of 1940." They're using her picture in all their ads. Isn't that wonderful?

The Dragon's Teeth

Chapter 11

KERRIE said good-by to Panjandrum a dozen times. Finally, Henry appeared, and Dr. Pickens. They seemed to think her expression of alarm was caused by anxiety over the mare, and kept reassuring her that Panjandrum would be all right.

And finally the 11:50 rolled in, and she had to get out of the stable car. But she remained to watch the coupling of the car to the northbound train.

When the train pulled out and there was no longer any excuse for lingering on the spur, she trudged back to the platform, trying to appear preoccupied.

"Oh, are you still here?" she said. "I thought——"

He seized her arms. "Kerrie! Listen to me——"

"You're hurting me!"

"You know what happened the other night," he said in a low, hurried voice. "You've got to be——"

"Let—me—go," panted Kerrie. She wriggled out of his grasp and slapped him, hard, on his blue-stubbled cheek. All the bitterness of weeks found expression in that pitiful act of violence. "You're used to manhandling females, I don't doubt," she cried, "but that doesn't mean you can manhandle me!"

His voice was oddly soft. "Kerrie, I just wanted to warn you to be careful. That's all."

"Careful?" Careful. He wanted her to be careful!

The miracle of his solicitude, after all her fears, filled Kerrie with joy. Then it wasn't true! He wasn't Margo's confederate after all!

"I mean," he went on, and something in his tone smothered her joy, killing it with a sort of contempt, "you've got one hell of a way of getting into trouble. You're a nuisance!"

Kerrie jumped into her roadster and drove off blindly. She did not therefore see how his shoulders sagged and the lines of his face deepened. She drove into the city.

When the police permit and revolver came, she felt grimly better. It was a pearl-handled .22 of beautiful workmanship, and the ammunition was slick and deadly-looking.

THE GENUINE Mr. Ellery Queen set down the horseshoe and the twisted nails gently.

"Kerrie's got the finger on her," said Beau.

The tone made Mr. Queen look up. Then Mr. Queen looked down, mercifully. He picked up a nail and turned it this way and that between his fingers.

"Deadly," he remarked. "And a little terrifying. A woman in the grip of a homicidal mania, induced by jealousy and greed, doesn't usually try to commit murder so subtly. Loosening the shoes of a horse!"

"Damn her." Beau turned away.

"A murderess capable of that kind of plot can't be reached through the customary channels. She's probably immune to fear, because she's gone too far in pure cussedness. I'd rather she had tried poison. There's something realistic about poison. This—it's fantastic." He stared at the nail and then flung it aside.

"Just the same," said Beau in his lifeless voice, "I'm not taking that chance, either. I've got an ex-policewoman in the kitchen as assistant to the chef."

"You're convinced it's Margo Cole?"

"I found out from the groom that Margo managed to be alone in the stable with the mare before Kerrie went riding. It was Margo all right."

Beau lay down on the sofa and turned his face to the wall.

"How about the other night?" Mr. Queen regarded him with pity. Really an impossible position, he thought. And the girl—

"We'd been in town, the beautiful Miss Cole and I," said Beau without turning. "Having fun. You know, just a couple of innocent kids out on a tear?"

He sat up suddenly. Mr. Queen let him talk.

"We sat on the terrace and hoisted a few, and she got very, very chummy. I guess I wasn't feeling so palsy that night. I tried not to show it, but she's . . . smart."

His eyes were bloodshot, Mr. Queen remarked. And he had a habit these days of working his jaws, as if he were hungry.

"I knew from the way she looked at me that she spotted my trouble. She knew Kerrie was bothering me. From the way she smiled . . . she gave me the shivers," Beau said hoarsely. I should have known then. But I never thought . . . She said good night as if everything was all right. I sat up a while and then went to bed. I couldn't sleep. When the poor kid let out that awful yell——"

"Yes?" said Mr. Queen gently.

Beau smiled, and there was something cruel and naked in his smile. "De Carlos could hardly have climbed that wall. He was faking when I went in to look him over. Wasn't asleep at all. But he was potted, too. He'd have tumbled to the terrace and broken his damn neck if he'd tried to climb to Kerrie's room.

"But Margo . . ." He jumped off the sofa and began walking around. "She sleeps in the opposite wing, but it gives out on the terrace, too, and it would have been a cinch for her to slip down at that time of night and climb the vines and trellis. She's an athletic bitch . . . Maybe what she saw in my eyes that night made up her mind."

Mr. Queen sighed. "How does it feel to be 50 per cent of the motive in an attempted homicide?"

"That's not the worst of it, although God knows it's a lousy enough spot for a man to be in!" cried Beau. "It's what I'm forced to do to Kerrie that hurts. Every time I show a spark of interest, her eyes start shining like electric bulbs. She looks like a kid under a Christmas tree. She . . . And then I've got to douse the lights by deliberately acting like a heel. She'll wind up hating my guts, if she doesn't hate 'em already."

"Thats what you want, isn't it?" queried Mr. Queen. But he was thinking of something else.

"Yes," said Beau quietly. "That's what I want," he burst out, "but it's more than that, too! She thinks I'm signed up with Margo to put her out of the way!"

"Very natural. The appearance of requited passion, the attempt at murder . . . very natural for her to think so."

"It's easy for you to be calm about it," said Beau bitterly. "You're not in love with her."

"I'm sorry, Beau," said Queen in a gentle voice. "My specialty is murder, not romance."

'What the devil can I do? I've got to find a way out of this mess somehow!"

MR. QUEEN was silent.

"Hell, you're not even paying attention!"

Mr. Queen looked up. "With half a brain. The other half is excogitating a great befuddlement. Beau, what's the connection between these attacks on Kerrie Shawn and the events that preceded and accompanied Cole's death?"

'All I know is that Margo Cole is out for Kerrie's blood. Kerrie's stading between her and me—she thinks—but, more important, Kerrie's death means doubling her income. Knowing Margo, I'd say the money motive was the stronger of the two. Not that it makes any difference to a corpse why he's been bumped off."

"You think the root of these attempts goes back into the past? The development of a plan made months ago?"

"I think," said Beau savagely, "Margo was responsible for Cole's death!"

Mr. Queen raised his eyebrows. "You believe she was on the Argonaut?"

'Why not?" Then Beau growled: "Or she wasn't, and De Carlos did the dirty work for her. It's not impossible those two are working together. They keep away from each other—De Carlos is concentrating on Kerrie, the damn' chaser!—but that doesn't necessarily mean anything. It might be a cover-up."

Mr. Queen looked dissatisfied. "There's so much we don't know," he complained. "Heard anything on the crew and Angus?"

"I had a report this morning. One of my men picked up the trail of three of the crew and the wireless operator. They shipped on a freighter, and they're on the other side of the world by now. Nothing on the others, nothing on Angus. It's just as if——"

"Just as if?" echoed Mr. Queen.

Their eyes met.

"They were dead," said Beau.

Mr. Queen picked up his hat. "Keep watching your light-o'-love. And dont' let your suspicions of Margo make you blind to . . . other possibilities."

"What's that supposed to mean?" snapped Beau.

'Merely what it said. There's only one thing about this case I feel sure of. And that is that it's far less simple than it seems. In fact, I've the feeling it's a case of complicated and subtle cross-purposes. You'll have to be very careful, Beau, and I'll help all I can from under cover. Keep your eyes open—to the four points of the compass. The break may come from the least-expected quarter."

"I don't know what you're talking about!"

"That's not strange," said Mr. Queen with a shrug, "since I scarcely know myself."

Vi pleaded with Kerrie to run away. "If that she-devil doesn't kill you," she cried, "the suspense will. Kerrie, you're such a—a fool I could shake you. Do you really love him that much? Or this money? A fat lot of good it's doing you! You look like God's wrath. Give it up and let's get out of here—while we can!"

"No," said Kerrie stiffly. "I won't. I won't. They won't drive me away. I won't give in. They'll have to kill me first."

"They will!"

Kerrie trembled. "It's something stronger than I am. It won't let me go. Maybe it's plain stubbornness. I'm scared too—I'm scared. Vi, but I'm more scared of what I don't know. I've got to find out. I've got to."

Vi looked at her with a sort of horror.

"I suppose you think I've gone dotty," said Kerrie with a weak smile. "Maybe I have . . . I hate him!"

So it was that. Vi shook her head. And then the enemy struck a third time.

It was a Sunday, and when Kerrie opened her eyes that morning she saw it would be a day of sun and cloudless skies.

"Vi, let's have an old-fashioned picnic, just the two of us!" she cried. "We'll drive into the country somewhere, and camp, and eat pickles and shoo bugs away and swim raw if we can find a stream!"

They found their stream and gorged themselves on the good things the chef had packed in the bursting hamper, and for the first time in weeks Vi heard her friend's unclouded laughter.

BY THE TIME they drove through the gateway to the estate it was dusk, and rapidly growing dark.

Vi yawned. "It's the fresh air, Kerrie. I'm flopping right into bed."

"Sleepy? With such beautiful stars beginning to come out? Here, I'll let you out at the house and you can flop into your old bed if you want to. I'll put the car away."

Vi got out under the porte-cochere and Sir Scram, as she called the butler, opened the front door for her. She disappeared. The butler took the hamper from the car and went back into the house.

Kerrie sat still behind the wheel for awhile, mooning up at the darkening sky, her thoughts dream-woven, afloat in a great peace. But soon the brightening stars made her think of what a lovely night it was, and the loveliness of the night led naturally to thoughts of romance, and romance . . .

She drove off abruptly, headed for the garage.

The garage, located behind the stables, was really six garages under one roof. It was a wide, shallow brick building with six double doors, and each car compartment was separated from its neighbors by brick and plaster walls, making the individual sections complete in themselves.

Kerrie housed her roadster in the second compartment from the right, between the one where the station-wagon was kept and the one reserved for De Carlos' powerful limousine.

In the glare of the roadster's headlights the four double doors to the left were closed; the two on the right stood open.

Kerrie noticed that the station wagon was in its garage and wondered why the doors were not closed. But it was the wispiest kind of thought. She drove into her garage, raced her motor, turned off the ignition, withdrew the key, and reached over to switch off her headlights.

Her hand paused in midair. She thought she had heard the slam of a door.

Kerrie twisted in her seat and looked back. The doors of her garage were shut.

"There wasn't any wind," she thought, puzzled. "I guess they just swung shut by themselves after I drove in." And, without turning off her lights, she got out of the roadster and snapped the switch on the wall which operated the ceiling light.

Then she went to the double door, pressed down the latch, and pushed. And as she pushed, she heard the click of the lock which was attached to the hook-and-staple on the outside of the door.

Kerrie stood still.

The thought seeped into her mind that, while doors may swing shut of themselves, locks cannot. Her lock required a human hand to slip it through the ring. A human hand to slip the ring through the slit in the staple. A human hand to snap the lock shut.

"You out there!" she called. "You've locked me in! I was just about to—"

There was no answer.

And Kerrie did not finish. She knew it was useless to cry out, and why it was useless to cry out. And her heart catapulted into her throat.

But it was so stupid to lock her in. Sooner or later some one would come to release her. Even if she had to stay all night . . .

Hatch Act 'Chiseling' Is Forecast

Writer Sees Federal Jobholders in Control Of Party Delegates

The Hatch act is "probably the most far-reaching reform of its type since the first civil service law," Charles T. Lucey asserts in an article in this week's Saturday Evening Post, published today.

Lucey, Washington correspondent for the New York World-Telegram, analyzes the Hatch act under the title, "Did the President Sign Away 1940?" He says:

"The 1940 Democratic convention will be the first since the Federal establishment spawned its vast patronage machine that finds Federal job-holders barred as delegates."

Factors for Roosevelt

Despite "sharp curtailment of the President's power over the convention," apparently resulting from the Hatch act, Lucey lists three factors operating in Mr. Roosevelt's favor:

The European war, "which, as politicians on all sides agree, has given much new strength to Mr. Roosevelt."

Many local Democratic politicians throughout the country, quite aside from local Federal officeholders, are saying that Mr. Roosevelt is the only man with whom the Democrats have any hope of winning.

In the first year of its operation there is certain to be some chiseling under the Hatch act, while Federal jobholders nominally cannot be delegates, they still will control many who will be delegates.

Attorney General Is Key

Key to the real influence of the Hatch act—"whether it is to stand as another noble but futile experiment"—will be the policy of the Attorney General, Lucey believes.

Frank Murphy, as Attorney General, played an important part in persuading President Roosevelt to sign the measure, the article relates, and then announced that the law was to be scrupulously enforced.

Lucey states that Republican campaign strategists are maintaining an alert watch for any laxity in enforcement. If violations are discovered, Federal district attorneys will be asked to act. "If they decline," according to the article, "G. O. P. Congressmen will attempt to blow the lid off in speeches from Washington."

Electric Rate Cut May Top Last Year's

$450,000 Reduction Forecast on Eve Of Annual Hearing

This year's rate-cut savings to Potomac Electric Power Co. consumers is expected to be considerably larger than last year's, according to indications as the Public Utilities Commission prepared to open the annual public hearings at 10 a. m. today.

Although the commission did not have definite figures prior to the hearing, belief was expressed that rates may be reduced as much as $450,000.

Last year, under operation of the sliding scale plan for annual adjustment of electric rates, the commission ordered reductions in residential A and commercial E schedules, effecting a saving of $394,085.37 for consumers.
